A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III, & IV of the Dictionary are ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross-references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal 8vo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L; and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which consists of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI), but a tenth volume has been issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index is practically a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, is a work of reference, which, it is hoped, will prove of considerable value.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, December 24th, 1898.

The principal feature of the weather of the week was the cold weather disturbance which was approaching the north-west frontier from the Persian region at the close of the previous week. It crossed the frontier into Upper Sind on the early morning of the 18th and drifted eastwards through North Rajputana and the South-East Punjab on the 19th, East Rajputana on the 20th, the North-Western Provinces and the eastern districts of Central India on the 21st, Chota Nagpur on the 22nd, and Bengal on the 23rd, where it died out during the next 24 hours. The disturbance was throughout its existence very diffused and ill-defined, but it gave a moderate fall of snow in Kashmir and the higher elevations of the Punjab Himalayas from the 18th to the 20th, and numerous light showers of rain in the North-Western Provinces and some showers in the North Punjab and the Punjab Hills on the 21st and 22nd. Fine weather obtained generally over the remainder of India throughout the week except in South Madras and the South Coromandel Coast districts, where some local thundershowers were received on the 21st and 22nd.

The variations of the mean temperature from the normal were small and unimportant, except in Chota Nagpur, Central India, the Central Provinces, Berar, the Bombay Deccan and Madras coast, where the weather was from $2\frac{1}{2}°$ to $5\frac{1}{2}°$ warmer than usual.

A

Sunday, December 18th.—Pressure had given way over the whole of the Indian area with the exception of Burma where it was practically stationary. The fall was brisk to rapid in North-Western and Central India and slight elsewhere. Pressure was in moderate defect in Ceylon and in moderate to large defect in North-Western India and Baluchistan. The deficiency was most marked in Upper Sind, where it slightly exceeded a seventh of an inch in amount. The feeble wave of low pressure which was approaching the north-west frontier at the close of the previous week was passing through Upper Sind. Winds were very light and unsteady over the greater part of Northern and Central India except in Upper Sind and the neighbouring districts of Rajputana and the Punjab where they were feebly cyclonic. Winds were strong in Southern India, the Bombay Deccan and the Konkan where gradients were steep. Skies were partially clouded in the North-Western Provinces, Rajputana and Southern India, and overcast in Sind, the Punjab and the North-West Himalayas. Light to moderate snow had occurred in Kashmir and light thundershowers at Trincomalee and Madras. Temperature was in slight defect in Bengal, Assam, Bihar and Mysore, normal in Burma, Chota Nagpur, the North-Western Provinces and Southern India, and more or less above the normal over the remainder of India and Baluchistan. The excess was most marked in Baluchistan (7°), Gujarat (5°) and Rajputana and Berar (each 4°), due chiefly to much higher day temperature than usual.

Monday, December 19th.—The barometric changes were generally small and unimportant except in Rajputana and the South-East Punjab, where pressure had given way briskly to rapidly, due to the transfer into that area of the depression which lay over Upper Sind on the previous day. Pressure was more or less below the normal throughout India. The deficiency was least in North-Eastern India and greatest in the area of depression where it ranged between ·13″ and ·17″. The depression was diffused and ill-defined, and the winds in Upper India, although cyclonic in direction, were very light at the level of the plains. Winds were very strong at Cherat where they were blowing at the rate of 28 miles per hour at 8 A.M. The air movement was somewhat less strong in the Konkan than on the previous day. Skies were overcast in the South-East Punjab, Rajputana, the western districts of the North-West Provinces and Kashmir and moderately clouded in Southern India. Moderate snow had again been received in Kashmir. Temperature had decreased largely in Baluchistan and was now normal in that area. Temperature had fallen to normal also in Orissa. Temperature had, on the other hand, increased 2½° in Rajputana, where it averaged 6½° above the normal during the previous 24 hours. Elsewhere the temperature conditions were practically unchanged.

Tuesday, December 20th.—The barometric changes were again small over nearly the whole of the country except locally in the areas affected by the depression. Pressure had increased briskly in Baluchistan and briskly to rapidly in Upper India, and had fallen very slightly in the eastern states of Central India and the neighbouring districts of the North-Western Provinces. The disturbance had shifted east-south-eastwards and filled up to some extent. It apparently lay over East Rajputana and the neighbouring districts at 8 A.M. The chief features of the air movement were unaltered. Cloud had increased in Baluchistan and Southern India and decreased in the Punjab. Snow in moderate amounts had again fallen in Kashmir. The temperature conditions were again unchanged over the greater part of the country. Temperature had fallen 2° in Rajputana and increased rapidly in Orissa and Chota Nagpur. The mean temperature of the previous 24 hours was 5° above the normal in Rajputana and Central India, 4° in Berar and the Central Provinces, 3° in Gujarat, and 2° in the North-West Provinces and Punjab, due chiefly to very high night temperature.

Wednesday, December 21st.—Pressure had increased in Baluchistan and Upper India and given way slightly to briskly over the remainder of the Indian area. The shallow diffused depression in East Rajputana on the 20th had been transferred eastwards to the area defined by the stations of Agra, Cawnpore, Allahabad and Nowgong, in which pressure was about a tenth of an inch below the normal. Gradients were steep over the southern half of the Bay and Southern India. Pressure was, on the other hand, uniform over the greater part of Northern and Central India and the Deccan. Winds were cyclonic in direction in the Gangetic Plain, but were very feeble. Winds continued strong at Cherat. Skies were densely clouded in Southern India and partially clouded in the North-Western Provinces and Bengal and at some stations in the Central Provinces. Light to moderate rain had occurred in the extreme south of Madras and light rain or snow in the East Punjab and Kumaon Hills. The temperature conditions did not differ to any important extent from the normal, except in the tract lying between East Rajputana and Bihar, in which temperature was from 2° to 10° above the normal, due chiefly to much higher night temperature than usual. Temperature of the previous 24 hours was 4½° below the normal at Quetta.

Thursday, December 22nd.—Pressure had again increased briskly to rapidly in North-Western and Central India and was now in slight to moderate excess in the former and normal in the latter area. The depression in the North-Western Provinces on the preceding day had apparently advanced into Chota Nagpur, where pressure had given way very slightly. It had, however, filled up very largely and was no longer of any importance. Winds tended to circulate cyclonically in South Bihar, Chota Nagpur and the adjacent districts of the North-Western Provinces, but were very light. Skies continued densely clouded in Southern India, and some light thundershowers had fallen in that area. Light snow had occurred in the Kumaon Himalayas and several rain or hail showers in the North-Western Provinces. The distribution of temperature with respect to the normal was practically unchanged.

Friday, December 23rd.—Pressure had given way briskly to rapidly in Baluchistan and slightly in Sind, Kathiawar and the North Konkan. It had, on the other hand, increased slightly to briskly in the Gangetic Plain, the Central Provinces and Bengal, and was practically stationary elsewhere. Pressure differed but little from the normal except in Ceylon, Southern India and the Konkan where it was in slight to moderate defect, and in North-Western and Central India where it was equally in excess. Gradients were considerably above their normal intensity over the Peninsula and the Bay of Bengal. Winds were of the anti-cyclonic type in North-Western and Central India. They were unusually strong at Cherat, where they had a velocity of 30 miles per hour at 8 A.M. Skies were moderately clouded in Baluchistan and the West Punjab and lightly clouded in Southern India. Temperature was steady except in Central India, the North-Western Provinces and Rajputana, where it had decreased briskly to very rapidly. The mean temperature of the previous 24 hours was 3° below the normal in Rajputana and from 2° to 6° in excess in Orissa, Bihar, Chota Nagpur, the Central Provinces, Berar, the West Coast the Bombay Deccan and Mysore. The night temperature was much more largely in excess in these areas than the day temperature.

Saturday, December 24th.—Pressure had given way almost everywhere. The fall was brisk to rapid in Baluchistan and North-Western India and slight elsewhere. Pressure was in general defect. The deficiency was greatest in Kathiawar where it was considerable. Feeble south-east winds obtained at Chaman and Quetta. A strong northerly gale was blowing at Cherat. Skies were overcast in Baluchistan and Kashmir, more or less heavily clouded in Upper India. There was also much cloud in Southern India. No rain had fallen anywhere beyond a moderate shower at Trincomalee. Temperature had risen fast in Baluchistan and was during the previous 24 hours 9° above the normal at Quetta. The excess was much more marked in the night than in the day temperature. Temperature was approximately normal in Assam, the North-Western Provinces, Sind, the Punjab, Central India and the southern half of the Peninsula, in moderate defect in Rajputana, and more or less considerably above the average in other districts. The excess was most marked in Berar where it averaged 6° in amount. The night temperature was much more largely in excess in the area of increased temperature than the day temperature.

Temperature.—The temperature conditions of the week varied to a much less extent from the normal than was the case during the preceding four or five weeks. The mean temperature exceeded the normal all over the country with the exception of Assam and Bengal where it was in very slight defect. The excess was, however, small and less than 2°, except in Chota Nagpur, Central India, the Central Provinces, Berar, the Bombay Deccan and Madras coast, in which it ranged between 2½° and 6°. The area of greatest excess lay over Berar throughout the week. The increased temperature was due chiefly to much higher night temperature than usual.

The following table gives temperature variation data for the week:—

The preceding table shows that the mean temperature of the whole of India and Burma was above the average on each day of the week, and that the amount of variation fluctuated between 1°·1 and 2°·2.

Rain.—A feeble cold weather depression appeared in Upper Sind at the beginning of the week and marching eastwards passed into Bengal on the 23rd. It gave numerous light showers in the North-Western Provinces and some showers in the North Punjab and the Simla and Kangra Hills on the 21st and 22nd. The largest fall in these areas was 1·34 inches at Dharamsala on the 21st. Moderate snow fell in Kashmir and the higher elevations of the Punjab Himalayas from the 18th to the 20th. Weather was fine and settled over the remainder of the country throughout the week except in South Madras and the the South Coromandal Coast districts where some showers were received on the 21st and 22nd.

The accompanying rainfall statement shows that more or less rain was received in seventeen of the rainfall divisions and that in ten of these divisions the total fall of the week was less than a tenth of an inch in amount. The divisions which obtained effective rain, i.e., average fall of over a tenth of an inch, were North Punjab, Punjab hills, North-Western Provinces hills, North-Western Provinces West Submontane, North Oudh, East Coast South and Madras South. The rainfall in these divisions ranged between 0·11″ and 0·78″ and was very slightly above the average in the first three divisions.

The seasonal rainfall up to date shows some improvement in the case of the North Punjab and the Punjab Hills.

The more noteworthy totals were :—

Punjab (hill districts) . . .	Kangra, Dharmsala, 1·61 inches.
East Coast (South) . . .	S. Arcot, Chidambaram, 1·26 inches.
Ditto	Tanjore, Vedaranyam, 2·53 inches.
Madras (South)	Tinnevelly, Keranur, 1·19 inches.

Madras.—For week ending 31st December.—Heavy rain has fallen in the Carnatic, the Southern and parts of the Central districts and some in the adjoining tracts. The water-supply is generally ample. Sowings still continue. The standing crops are thriving generally, but the heavy rain has caused damage in parts. The harvest outturn is almost normal. Pasturage is sufficient. Cattle are in normal condition. Prices are falling generally.

Bombay.—For week ending 4th January.—Slight rain fell in parts of Sind; more is wanted for the late crops in parts of Poona and Satara. The standing crops have been damaged by rats, blight or excessive cold in parts of Hyderabad, Thar and Parkar, Bijapur and Dharwar, and are withering in parts of Khandesh and Ahmednagar. Harvesting of the early crops continues in six districts. Cotton-picking is progressing in parts of Khandesh and Gujarat. Preparations for next season have commenced in four districts. Fodder is sufficient except in parts of Sind. Agricultural stock is generally healthy. Prices have slightly risen in three and fallen in seven districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 2nd January.—There were slight scattered showers of rain in several districts during the week. The harvesting of winter rice is approaching completion, and a good outturn is generally expected. The spring crops and poppy are in good condition. The earlier spring crops are maturing, and in some places pulses are being gathered. The pressing of sugarcane is in progress There is plenty of fodder in every district. There was a slight fall in the price of rice in some districts, but on the whole prices were stationary.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 4th January.—The rainfall has been almost general during the week and has benefited the standing spring crops, which are reported to be in a flourishing state. Paragraph 5 of a letter from the Government of Bengal, No. 2088, dated 29th July 1897, suggesting a rule for the regulation of promotions to the first two classes of the graded service of the Educational Department and admission to the special allowances in the Indian Educational Service.

Letter to the Government of Bengal, No. 341, dated the 11th December 1897 (paragraph 5) on the same subject.

Circular to Local Governments and Administrations, Nos. 343—347, dated the 11th December 1897, and the replies to that circular.

RESOLUTION.

In paragraph 15 of Home Department Resolution No. 4 (Education)/201—215, dated the 23rd July 1896, prescribing the re-organization of the Educational Services in India, it was stated that no officer in the Graded Educational Service should suffer by the re-organization of the Department, and that every European officer who had been permanently appointed to the graded list would be given the option of coming under the new scheme or of continuing on the graded list and obtaining promotion as vacancies occur in it, subject to the condition that only those considered fit for promotion would be promoted. In accordance with the option granted to them many officers have elected to come under the new scheme whilst others have preferred to remain in the Graded Service. There thus exist side by side the new Indian Educational Service and the old Graded Service, the latter being composed of such officers of that service as did not elect the new scheme. Some doubt has been expressed as to how the co-existence of the two services should affect the promotion and emoluments of the officers belonging to each of them.

2. Prior to the constitution of the Indian Educational Service the officers of the Graded Educational Service were classed as follows:—

1st class on	R1,250—50—1,500
2nd „	„ 1,000—50—1,250
3rd „	„ 750—50—1,000
4th „	„ 500—50— 750

The salaries and allowances of officers of the Indian Educational Service are prescribed in paragraphs 8—10 of the Resolution of the 23rd July 1896, viz.:—

(a) First or probationary period of five years, R500—50—750.

(b) Second period, R750—50—1,000, the maximum being attained at the end of ten years from first appointment.

(c) After fifteen years' service a special allowance of R100 to officers whose total salary does not exceed R1,000 and who are considered by the Local Government to merit this increase of pay.

(d) Two classes of special personal allowances of ₨200—10—250 and ₨250—50—500, respectively, to correspond with the higher rates of pay in the Graded Service. These allowances are—

(i) attached to specified offices, e.g., the allowance granted to the Principal of the Presidency College, Madras; and

(ii) granted to the senior officer of a class (whether given solely by seniority, or by seniority tempered by considerations of merit), e.g., the allowances given to senior Inspectors, senior Principals, etc.

3. In a letter of the 29th July 1897, the Government of Bengal suggested the following rule for regulating the promotion both of the officers remaining in the Graded Service and of the officers electing the Indian Service:—

No officer to whichever service he may belong will have any claim to permanent promotion, be it to class I or II of the Graded Service, or to one of the staff allowances in the Indian Educational Service, till such time as he would have had a legitimate expectation of preferment on the supposition that all the Educational Department officers, who were in the graded list on the 1st August 1896, had elected for the particular service to which he belongs.

The Government of India consulted the other Local Governments and Administrations on this proposal and also enquired how the rules had in practice been worked in other provinces.

4. After considering the replies the Governor General in Council has come to the conclusion that the principle of the rule proposed by the Government of Bengal is equitable. It would not be reasonable that an officer of the Graded Service should be granted promotion before it would in ordinary course have come to his turn because his seniors have elected to enter the Indian Service. Nor would it be reasonable that an officer of the Indian Service should be granted one of the special allowances which is given by seniority whilst there remain officers senior to him who would have been granted the allowances had they not elected to remain in the Graded Service. His Excellency in Council is therefore pleased to prescribe the general adoption of the rule proposed by the Government of Bengal, subject to the exception stated in the next paragraph.

5. In Bengal all the special allowances granted under paragraph 10 of the Resolution of the 23rd July 1896 to officers of the Indian Educational Service are ordinarily given by seniority, but as is stated in paragraph 2 above, this is not everywhere the case. In other Provinces special allowances are attached to particular appointments such as the Principalships of Colleges. Allowances which are thus attached to particular appointments should be drawn by the officers of the Indian Educational Service who hold those appointments, irrespective of whether there may be officers senior to them on the Graded List.

6. In giving effect to the orders contained in this Resolution no refunds should be ordered in cases in which excess payments may have already been made up to this date, and in order to prevent any sense of injustice from past misunderstanding, an officer on the Graded List whose position may be affected by the orders should again be given the option of electing for the Indian Educational Service.

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution be circulated to Local Governments and Administrations for information and guidance and to the Department of Finance and Commerce for information.

Ordered also, that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

The Council met at Government House, Calcutta, on Friday, the 13th January, 1899.

PRESENT:

His Excellency Baron Curzon of Kedleston, G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., Viceroy and Governor General of India, presiding.
His Honour Sir John Woodburn, K.C.S.I., Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.
His Excellency General Sir W. S. A. Lockhart, G.C.B., K.C.S.I., Commander-in-Chief in India.
The Hon'ble Sir J. Westland, K.C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Mr. M. D. Chalmers, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Major-General Sir E. H. H. Collen, K.C.I.E., C.B.

The Hon'ble Mr. J. J. D. LaTouche, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur Pandit Suraj Kaul, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. Gangadhar Rao Madhav Chitnavis, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. Allan Arthur.
The Hon'ble Mr. P. M. Mehta, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Nawab Mumtaz-ud-daula Muhammad Faiyaz Ali Khan.
The Hon'ble Mr. J. K. Spence, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Mr. G. Toynbee.
The Hon'ble Mr. D. M. Smeaton, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Mr. J. D. Rees, C.I.E.

NEW MEMBERS.

The Hon'ble MR. MEHTA, the Hon'ble NAWAB MUHAMMAD FAIYAZ ALI KHAN, the Hon'ble MR. SPENCE, the Hon'ble MR. TOYNBEE, the Hon'ble

MR. SMEATON and the Hon'ble MR. REES took their seats. as Additional Members of Council.

In opening the proceedings of the Council His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said:—

"Your Honour and Gentlemen,—In taking my seat for the first time at this table, I should like to say, before we advance to the proceedings of the morning, what an honour I conceive it to be to preside over this distinguished and representative body, which is entrusted with the legislative work of the Government of India. I think I may claim a peculiar interest in the work of this Council for the reason that I happened to be the Minister, as Under-Secretary of State for India, who, in 1892, under the Secretaryship of State of Lord Cross, had to conduct through the House of Commons the Indian Councils Bill of that year. To that Bill we owe the enlarged constitution, and, as I believe, the extended usefulness, of this Council and of the kindred, though smaller, bodies in the other parts of India; and it is therefore with exceptional pleasure that I find myself presiding here over a body which I assisted to launch into the later stage of its existence, and in which I feel myself entitled, therefore, to entertain a more than official concern. I hope, Gentlemen, that our deliberations may be characterised by the dignity which has always attended the proceedings of this Council, and that they may redound to the advantage of this country and of its peoples. For my own part I doubt not that I shall receive at your hands, as my predecessors have always done, the help which your greatly superior experience in Indian matters must put you in a position to afford."

ACCOUNTS FOR 1897-98.

The Hon'ble SIR JAMES WESTLAND said:—"I have, with Your Excellency's permission, to intimate to Hon'ble Members of Council that the accounts for the year 1897-98 have been finally closed, and that they will be distributed in a few days by the Secretary to Hon'ble Members. As regards the issue of the accounts, I may mention that it turns out that in making the Financial Statement last March we over-estimated the revenue of the year by twelve lakhs and the expenditure by four lakhs. The consequence is that the deficit of the year, instead of being, as we then estimated, 528 lakhs, turns out to be 536 lakhs. As the figures which we deal with include about nine or ten thousand lakhs on each side of the account, I think it will be admitted that that is extremely close estimating. Hon'ble Members may also recall to mind that with the last Financial Statement I gave a summary in short form of the accounts for twenty years. That summary, together with its subsidiary accounts, is also now in the hands of the printer, and will, during the week, I trust, be distributed also to Hon'ble Members."

GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ moved that the Bill to provide for the exemption from the operation of Municipal laws of certain buildings and lands which are the property, or in the occupation, of Government and situate within the limits of a municipality, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Chalmers, the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur Ananda Charlu, the Hon'ble Mr. LaTouche, the Hon'ble Nawab Faiyaz Ali Khan and the mover. He said:—"This Bill was introduced in the Council and circulated in the usual way for opinions. Those opinions have been received and the Bill is now ready for consideration by a Select Committee."

The motion was put and agreed to.

COURT-FEES ACT (1870) AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ moved that the Hon'ble Mr. Mehta, the Hon'ble Mr. Smeaton, the Hon'ble Mr. Rees and himself be added to the Select Committee on the Bill to further amend the Court-fees Act, 1870. He said:— "The Select Committee, which was appointed last year to consider the Bill to further amend the Court-fees Act of 1870, was unable to deal with it during the past Calcutta session owing to more urgent and important work. Meanwhile four Members of that Committee have ceased to be Members of Your Excellency's Council, and it is necessary, therefore, to fill up the vacancies. My own name is included as I have since succeeded to the charge of the Bill."

The motion was put and agreed to.

PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (1882) AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS moved that the Bill to further amend the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Rivaz, the Hon'ble Mr. Allan Arthur, the Hon'ble Mr. Mehta, the Hon'ble Mr. Rees and the mover. He said :—"This is a Bill which was introduced last year and which we had not time to refer to a Select Committee. It has been before the Council, and I need not say at present anything further on the subject of it."

The motion was put and agreed to.

INLAND STEAM-VESSELS ACT (1884) AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR JAMES WESTLAND moved that the Bill to further amend the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1884, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Chalmers, the Hon'ble Mr. Allan Arthur, the Hon'ble Mr. Smeaton and the mover. He said :—"This is a Bill which was introduced for the purpose of giving the Government powers to regulate the traffic of inland steam-vessels in some small particulars in which the present law does not give them sufficient power. It has for the most part been agreed to, and I think I may describe it as a non-contentious measure. I ought, however, to mention that it is the intention of the Government to move in Select Committee the addition of a new section to the Bill which will have the effect of declaring that certificates which are issued by one Local Government to engineers and officers of steamers shall have effect throughout India, that is to say, that a declaration of competency on the part of one Local Government shall be effective throughout India.

The motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN MARINE ACT (1887) AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MAJOR-GENERAL SIR EDWIN COLLEN moved that the Bill to amend the Indian Marine Act, 1887, be taken into consideration. He said :—" When I introduced this Bill on the 23rd of September last, I explained that the alterations proposed were merely to give effect to certain administrative and other changes which had occurred since the passing of the Marine Act of 1887. The Bill has been circulated to Local Governments and Administrations and other authorities, and no objection has been taken to its provisions."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MAJOR-GENERAL SIR EDWIN COLLEN moved that the Bill be passed.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 20th January, 1899.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 7th January.—Light showers of rain fell in the southern districts and along the Malabar Coast. The water-supply is ample except in parts of the Deccan. Sowings still continue in parts. The standing crops are generally in good condition. The harvest outturn is almost normal. Pasturage is generally sufficient. Cattle are in normal condition. Prices continue to fall.

Bombay.—For week ending 11th January.—No rain fell during the week: more is still wanted for the late crops in parts of Shikarpur and Satara. The standing crops have been damaged by rats, blight and frost in parts of Sind, Ahmedabad, Bijapur and Dharwar, and are withering in parts of Khandesh, Ahmednagar and Poona. Harvesting of the early crops continues in five and sowing of the late crops in two districts. Reaping of the late crops has commenced in two districts. Cotton-picking is progressing in parts of Khandesh and Gujarat. Preparations for next season continue in five districts. Fodder is sufficient except in parts of Sind. Agricultural stock is healthy. Prices have slightly risen in five and fallen in six districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 9th January.—Rain was general during the week, but was heavier in Bihar than in other parts of the province. It has benefited the standing spring crops, which are generally reported to be in a flourishing state. The poppy and other spring crops are also progressing satisfactorily. The rice crop is nearly all harvested and pulses are being gathered. The pressing of sugarcane continues in some districts. The fodder-supply is everywhere plentiful. Prices of common rice remain almost stationary.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 11th January.—Good rain has fallen in all but a few districts in the provinces during the week. The standing crops are doing well. Supplies and fodder are plentiful and prices are practically stationary.

Punjab.—For week ending 11th January.—Slight rain has fallen in parts of the Delhi and Rawalpindi districts. Pressing of sugarcane and sowing of certain spring crops still continue in some districts. Weeding has commenced in Jullundur. The standing crops are being irrigated. The condition and prospects of the standing irrigated crops are generally reported to be good to average; but the dry land crops are for the most part in need of more rain. The rape seed crop is being damaged by caterpillars in parts of Ferozepore. Cattle are generally in good condition. Fodder is scarce in Delhi, Shahpur and parts of Lahore and Dera Ismail Khan. Prices, especially of wheat, are rising in Jullundur, falling in Dera Ismail Khan, and are unchanged elsewhere. Wheat is selling from $15\frac{15}{16}$ to 21, gram $20\frac{1}{2}$ to 24, barley 32, bulrush millet 19 to $26\frac{1}{4}$, maize 28 to 32, great millet 26, and rice 13 to 14 seers per rupee.

The weather is generally clear and in most districts very cold. The prospects of the spring crops are fair to good in all districts except Bilaspur, Saugor and Damoh, where they are poor to gloomy. Crops are reported to have been somewhat damaged by frost in Saugor, Damoh, Narsingpur and the Harsud tahsil of Nimar, and through cloudy weather in Raipur, Bhandara and Balaghat. Reaping and threshing of the autumn crops and pressing of sugarcane continue. The cheapest prices are—wheat 19, gram 32, rice 26, and juar 30 seers per rupee. The dearest prices are, wheat 12, gram 14, rice 11, and juar $20\frac{1}{2}$ seers per rupee. Wheat continues to sell above the normal price in the south, east and west of the provinces, and the price of gram is still low in the northern districts.

Burma.—For week ending 7th January.—In Lower Burma reaping has been completed in several districts and is approaching completion elsewhere. In Upper Burma prospects are unchanged. The sesamum, juar and pea crops in Razi township, Meiktila district, have withered from want of rain. The price of paddy has risen slightly in Rangoon, Tharrawaddy, Thongwa, Tavoy, and Pakokku and considerably in Mandalay; while it has fallen considerably in Akyab and slightly in Minbu. Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, December 31st, 1898.

Weather was more or less disturbed throughout the week under review in Northern India due to the passage of two cold weather storms through that area.

The first of these appeared in South-West Rajputana at the commencement of the week and marching eastwards across Northern India and Upper Burma during the next four days passed out of the Indian area on the 29th. It was throughout its existence a very diffused and ill-defined disturbance but occasioned numerous light showers in the North-Western Provinces, some local showers in the South-East and Submontane Punjab, Chota Nagpur, East Bengal and Assam and some snow in the Kashmir and Punjab Himalayas. The second disturbance entered Sind from the west on the 29th and advancing eastwards during the succeeding 24 hours gave rise to a secondary depression of moderate intensity in the East Punjab. The secondary depression filled up as quickly as it formed during the day, whilst the primary depression continued to drift eastwards and lay over the eastern districts of the Gangetic Plain at 8 A M. of the 31st. The double disturbance gave light to moderate rain to the greater part of the Punjab and the neighbouring districts of the North-Western Provinces and moderate to heavy snow in the North-West Himalayas down to about 6,000 feet, chiefly on the 30th and 31st. Weather was throughout the week fine in Burma, Sind, Rajputana, Bombay, the Central Provinces, Berar, North Madras, the Deccan and Mysore. It was on the other hand unusually unsettled with moderate to heavy rain in Ceylon, South Madras and the South Coromandel Coast districts due to a disturbance of a somewhat unusual character. This disturbance originated in the extreme south-west of the Bay to the east of Ceylon during the first three days of the week and marching westwards on the 28th passed into the south-east of the Arabian Sea on the 29th. The disturbance was, it may be noted, similar in general character to that of December 1895.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, December 25th.—Pressure had given way briskly to rapidly in Rajputana and the adjoining districts and a shallow depression lay over South-West Rajputana. Over the remainder of the Indian area the barometric changes were small and unimportant. Pressure was everywhere below the normal. The deficiency was moderate to considerable over the Peninsula and Northern India and was greatest in the area of depression where it slightly exceeded a tenth of an inch in amount. Winds indicated a tendency to cyclonic circulation in Northern India and were light to moderate. Moderate north-easterly winds prevailed on the Coromandel Coast and light unsteady airs and calms in Burma. Skies were overcast in Kashmir and Baluchistan, thickly clouded in the southern half of the Peninsula and moderately clouded in Rajputana, Sind and the submontane and western districts of the Punjab. Moderate to heavy rain had occurred in the Coromandel Coast districts and East Ceylon. Feeble snow storms were in progress in Kashmir. The temperature conditions were practically normal over the greater part of Northern India. Temperature was on the other hand more or less considerably above the normal in the Peninsula and Burma. The excess was greatest in Berar (5°) and the Central Provinces (4°). The day temperature was in moderate excess and the night temperature in large excess in the area of increased temperature.

Monday, December 26th.—Pressure had increased to a moderate extent in North Bombay and South-West Rajputana and had given way briskly in the Gangetic Plain and the neighbouring districts of Central India and the Central Provinces. The depression which was passing through South-West Rajputana on the previous day had advanced into East Rajputana and the south-western districts of the North-Western Provinces. It was, however, even more diffused and ill-defined than on the previous day. Light rain had occurred in the central and western districts of the North-Western Provinces and the South-East Punjab and light rain or snow in the adjacent hill districts and in Kashmir. The barometric changes in Southern India, Ceylon, and the neighbouring sea area were such as tended to accentuate the deficiency in that area. Pressure was now a tenth of an inch in defect over that area and moderate to strong east to north-east winds obtained on the Coromandel Coast. Moderate to heavy rain had again fallen in East Ceylon and the coast districts of Southern India and light rain in South Madras. A brisk reduction of temperature had occurred in the hill districts of Upper India and temperature was now in considerable to large defect in that area due chiefly to very low night temperature. Temperature had on the other hand increased in Central India, Berar, the Central Provinces and the Deccan, and was during the previous 24 hours from 3° to 9° above the normal in that area.

Tuesday, December 27th.—Pressure had recovered briskly in Rajputana, Central India and Kathiawar and was practically stationary over the remainder of India and Burma. The diffused disturbance which was passing through East Rajputana and the adjacent districts of the North-Western Provinces on the previous day had advanced eastwards into Bihar and almost completely filled up. Pressure had given way very slightly in Baluchistan due to the influence of a cold weather depression advancing from the west. Pressure had again diminished slightly in Ceylon and the south-west of the Bay, thus still further emphasizing the deficiency in that area. Steep gradients obtained over the southern half of the Bay. Winds continued moderate to strong on the Madras Coast. Skies were more or less clouded in all districts except Lower and Central Burma, Bengal, Rajputana and the greater part of the Punjab. Very heavy rain had been received in East Ceylon, moderately heavy rain in the Coromandel Coast districts and light rain in Malabar, Mysore and South Madras. Numerous light showers had again occurred in the Gangetic Plain and the eastern districts of Central India. Temperature had fallen rapidly in Rajputana, Gujarat, Central India, the west coast and Southern India, and increased briskly in Bihar. Elsewhere the temperature changes were unimportant.

Wednesday, December 28th.—Pressure had fallen briskly in Sind, the South-West Punjab and East Baluchistan and was in considerable to large defect. The depression approaching from the west on the preceding day was now crossing the north-west frontier into Sind. Pressure had fallen slightly in Bengal and the feeble residual disturbance in Bihar at 8 A. M. of the 27th had passed into Lower and East Bengal. A slight fall of the barometer had occurred also in Southern India and Ceylon and pressure was from a tenth to a seventh of an inch in defect of the normal in that area. Winds were shifting round to cyclonic directions in Sind and the South-West Punjab but were light and below their normal strength. Winds were exceedingly light at Cherat and Murree. Winds had backed to north on the Coromandel Coast between Cocanada and Cuddalore and were somewhat weaker than for some days past. Winds were very strong at Negapatam where their velocity during the previous 24 hours averaged 20 miles per hour. Moderate rain continued to be received in East Ceylon and the South Coromandel Coast districts and some showers in South Madras. The feeble disturbance in North-Eastern India had occasioned some local thunder-showers in that area. The temperature conditions were very unsteady and abnormal. The mean temperature of the previous 24 hours was 6° above the normal in Baluchistan and Orissa, 5° in Sind and the Madras Deccan, 4° in Chota Nagpur, and 3° in Bengal, Bihar, the Central Provinces, Mysore and the Madras Coast due to very high night temperature. It was, on the other hand, in large defect in the hill districts of Upper India, in considerable defect in Gujarat and in moderate defect in Rajputana and Central India.

Thursday, December 29th.—Pressure had decreased briskly to rapidly in Sind, Rajputana and the Punjab, and a well marked depression in which pressure was upwards of a fifth of an inch below the normal lay over Sind. Pressure had increased slightly to briskly in Bengal and the feeble residual disturbance in that area on the 28th was transferred into Upper Burma. It was, however, very faintly indicated in the chart. Pressure had increased slightly in Ceylon and the south-west of the Bay and the area of deficient pressure and disturbance in the south-west of the Bay on the preceding days was drifting westwards and filling up. Winds were cyclonic in Sind, Rajputana and the Punjab and were blowing very strongly in the hill districts of the Punjab. Winds had fallen off in Southern India and were more northerly than usual at the interior stations. Skies were generally overcast in Baluchistan and north-western and Southern India. The depression in Sind had occasioned light rain in the North Punjab and some showers in the West and Central Punjab and light to moderate snow in the Punjab and Kashmir Himalayas. Light to moderate rain had again been received in South Madras and Ceylon and some local thunder showers had also occurred in Bengal and Assam. The temperature conditions continued very abnormal over a large part of the country. Temperature averaged 10° higher than usual in Sind, 5° in Orissa and the Madras Deccan and 4° in Mysore, and was from 4° to 7° in defect in the hill districts of Upper India and 2° in defect in Central India and the Central Provinces.

Friday, December 30th.—Pressure had fallen rapidly in East and Central Rajputana, Bundelkhand, the South-East Punjab and the neighbouring districts of the North-Western Provinces. It had, on the other hand, increased briskly in Baluchistan and Sind. The Sind depression had marched eastwards into the eastern and central districts of Rajputana and had given rise to a secondary depression over the South-East Punjab. Pressure was largely in defect over North-Western and Central India, the deficiency being largest in the area of the double disturbance where it averaged about two-tenths of an inch in amount. The pressure changes were unimportant over the remainder of the country with the exception of Ceylon where the barometer had continued to rise to a slight extent during the previous 24 hours. Pressure was more or less considerably in defect in the Peninsula. The deficiency was greatest in the Malabar Coast districts due to the continued existence of the disturbed conditions which have passed into the south-east of the Arabian Sea from the Bay. Winds in North-Western and Central India were under the influence of the depression and were of moderate intensity. Skies were overcast in the South-East Punjab, the western districts of the North-Western Provinces and the North-West Himalayas and cloud was extending rapidly eastwards to the North-Western Provinces. The double disturbance had given general light to moderate rain to the East and South-East Punjab and the neighbouring districts of the North-Western Provinces and some showers to West Rajputana. Moderate snow had fallen in the hill districts of Upper India. The snow line had descended to about 6,000 feet in the Simla hills. Weather continued feebly unsettled in South Madras and Ceylon and some showers had again been received in that area. A very large reduction of temperature had occurred in Baluchistan and Upper India, and the mean temperature of the previous 24 hours was from 7° to 16° below the normal in the hill districts of Upper India and 3° below in Baluchistan and the Punjab.

Saturday, December 31st.—Pressure had increased as rapidly as it had fallen on the previous day in North-Western India and the secondary depression in the South-East Punjab had completely filled up. The primary depression had advanced from East and Central Rajputana to the eastern districts of the Gangetic Plain and occasioned a brisk to rapid fall of the barometer in Bihar, Chota Nagpur and the neighbouring districts of the North-Western and Central Provinces. Pressure was about two-tenths of an inch in defect of the normal at the centre and the depression was hence of the same intensity as on the previous day. Pressure had again increased slightly in the southern half of the Peninsula and Ceylon, but was still a tenth of an inch below the normal on the Malabar Coast, thus indicating that the slight disturbance in the south-east of the Arabian Sea had not yet completely passed away. Winds were irregularly cyclonic in North-Eastern India. Light airs and calms obtained on the Ceylon and Malabar Coasts. Moderate to heavy snow had fallen in the Simla and Kumaon hills and light to moderate rain in the South-East Punjab and the adjacent districts of the North-Western Provinces. Weather continued showery in Ceylon and the extreme south of Madras. Temperature had decreased very rapidly in Baluchistan and North-Western India, the fall at several stations ranging between 7° and 11°. The mean temperature of the previous 24 hours was 14° below the normal at Simla, Chakrata, Mussoorie and Ranikhet, 1[illegible]° at Murree and 11° at Quetta. It averaged 5° in defect in the Punjab and 3° in Rajputana and Sind due to very low day temperature. Temperature had, on the other hand, increased rapidly in front and to the south of the advancing depression and was during the past day 5° above the normal in Berar and the Central Provinces, 4° in the Madras Deccan and Madras Coast and 3° above in Mysore, the Bombay Deccan, Central India, the Gangetic Plain and Orissa The increased temperature in these areas was due chiefly to higher night temperature than usual. The lowest night temperature recorded in the plains was 32° at Rawalpindi, Peshawar and Sirsa and in the hills zero at Minimarg.

Temperature was more or less in excess of the normal throughout the week in Orissa, the Madras Deccan, the Madras Coast, Mysore and the west coast. The excess was, on the whole, greatest in the first two areas where it averaged 4° for the whole week Temperature was very unsteady over the remainder of the country and varied very irregularly from the normal. This was specially the case in Baluchistan and North-Western and Central India where the temperature conditions were determined by the disturbances of the week. The second cold weather storm of the week was preceded by a warm wave of moderate intensity and followed by a cool wave of great severity. The crest of the warm wave was in Baluchistan on the 28th, Sind on the 29th, Rajputana on the 30th and the North-Western Provinces on the 31st. The cold wave in the rear of the storm appeared in Baluchistan and the West Punjab on the 30th and spread rapidly eastwards over the whole of North-Western India during the next 24 hours causing a reduction of temperature by amounts averaging 9° in Rajputana, 7° in Baluchistan and 4° in Sind and Gujarat. On the mean of the whole week temperature was normal over nearly the whole of Northern, Central and Southern India and slightly above the normal in Burma.

The following table gives temperature variation data for the week :—

Rain.—A disturbance of a somewhat unusual character affected Ceylon and Southern-India during the week and gave excessive rain to East-Coast South and Madras South, moderate rain to Madras-South-Central and light rain to East-Coast Central and Malabar. The rainfall of the week was more or less above the normal in these areas, the excess being as much as 5·21 inches in East-Coast South which usually obtains only 0·67 inch of rain during the period and 2·46 inches in Madras South, the normal rainfall in which area averages only 0·47 inch.

The character of this remarkable downpour is shown more fully by the following data for four districts:—

District.	Average actual rainfall of week.	Average normal rainfall of week.	Variation from normal.
	Inches.	Inches.	Inches.
Tanjore	9·45	1·04	+8·41
South Arcot (Cuddalore)	6·88	0·61	+6·27
Trichinopoly	5·54	0·64	+4·90
Chingleput (Madras)	5·39	0·49	+4·90

The weather in Northern India was determined solely by the passage of two cold weather storms across that area. The first of these which was a very feeble disturbance gave favourable showers to the North-West Provinces and the South-East and Submontane Punjab and some local showers to Chota Nagpur on the 26th and 27th, and to Assam and East Bengal on the 28th and 29th. The second storm which was of moderate intensity appeared in Sind on the 29th, and while travelling eastwards through Rajputana during the day gave rise to a subsidiary depression in the Punjab. The double disturbance occasioned light to moderate rain over the Punjab and the adjoining submontane districts of the North-Western Provinces and moderate to heavy snow in the North-West Himalayas between the 29th and 31st. Daily falls exceeding one inch in amount were registered at several stations in the plains, the largest being 1·34 inches at Gurdaspur on the 30th. The snowfall due to the disturbance was heaviest at Dharmsala where it was equivalent to 3·75 inches of rain.

The concluding rainfall statement shows that the rainfall of the week was abundant over the Punjab (excepting the western districts) and the west submontane and hill districts of the North-Western Provinces and light though more or less above the normal over nearly the whole of North-Eastern India.

The most noteworthy totals recorded during the week at individual rain-gauge stations were as follows:—

Nannilam (Tanjore)	15·12 inches.
Jayankondasolapuram (Trichinopoly)	13·42 ,,
South Arcot	11·25 ,,
Kulasegarapatnam (Tinnevelly)	7·03 ,,
Dera (Kangra)	3·81 ,,
Murree (Rawalpindi)	3·00 ,,
Lansdowne (Garhwal)	2·86 ,,
Una (Hoshiarpur)	2·63 ,,

The chief features of the distribution of the rainfall period from 16th October to 31st December relatively to the normal may be summarized as follows:—

(1) Practically no rain throughout the period in Deltaic and Central Bengal, Bihar, the eastern submontane districts of the North-Western Provinces, the West Punjab, the Eastern and Western districts of the Central Provinces, Kathiawar and Sind.

(2) The rainfall of the period was practically normal, i.e., varied by less than 20 per cent. from the normal in Assam Brahmaputra, North-Western Provinces (Central) Coorg, West Rajputana, Madras Central and East Coast Central.

(3) It was in slight to moderate excess in Malabar and South Madras and in considerable to large excess in the western hill and west submontane districts of the North-Western Provinces, the South-East South and Submontane Punjab, the Punjab Hills, Mysore, Madras South Central and East Coast South.

(4) It was in slight to moderate defect in North Oudh, Konkan and East Rajputana.

(5) It was in large and marked defect over the whole of Burma, Bengal, Assam (excepting Assam Brahmaputra), South Oudh, the North-Western Provinces East and East Submontane, the Central North and West Punjab, Bombay Deccan, Khandesh, the Central Provinces, Berar, North Bombay, Central India East, East Coast North and Hyderabad South.

It may be noted that the rainfall in the Punjab occurred chiefly during the week under review.

REVIEW OF THE ANNUAL REPORT ON THE POST OFFICE OF INDIA FOR 1897-98.

No. 212 S. R., dated Calcutta, the 13th January 1899.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department.

READ—

Report on the Post Office of India for the year 1897-98.

RESOLUTION.—The continuous and steady progress shown in previous years in the operations of the Post Office was more than maintained during the year under review, although the year was one of special strain and unusual demands upon the resources of the Department. The interruptions caused by earthquake and cyclone in Bengal, the need for exceptional and important arrangements in connection with the military operations on the north-western frontier, and the effects of famine and plague experienced by this as by other Departments of Government, all added special features to the history of the year. The requirements of modern Postal Administration were met by the enactment of a new Post Office Act which did not, however, come into force until 1st July 1898, and efforts were made in various directions to improve and perfect the existing organisation. In the working of the Inland Post the following were noticeable features :—

(1) The improvement of postal facilities in rural districts.

(2) The extension of the Postal Life Insurance scheme to all Government servants whose pay is audited in Civil or Public Works Account offices, and to all members of establishments of the Military Department subject to civil rules, whose pay is audited by Military Account offices.

(3) The further extension in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh of the arrangements for the sale of quinine through the agency of the Post Office.

(4) The experimental payment by money orders in the Punjab of petty sums as compensation for land taken up under the Land Acquisition Act.

(5) The use of money orders for the payment of Municipal refunds in Amritsar.

(6) The introduction by the Government of the Punjab of a scheme to encourage the use of the Post Office Savings Banks by the cultivating class.

(7) The disuse of receipt forms to be filled up by the senders of ordinary registered parcels, and the introduction of an arrangement under which, for half an anna, a certificate of posting may be obtained for any number of unregistered parcels or value-payable unregistered packets not exceeding six.

(8) Improvements in the mail service between Bombay and Calcutta viâ Nagpur and Jubbulpore.

(9) The introduction experimentally into Calcutta of a scheme of "continuous delivery" in selected parts of the city served by postmen attached to the General Post Office.

2. In the administration of the Foreign Post, the principal events were as follows:—

(1) The meeting of the International Postal Congress at Washington, and the participation of India in the Union Parcel Post Convention.

(2) The conclusion of a new contract with the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company with effect from the 1st February 1898, for a combined Eastern and Australian mail service under which the time in transit from London to Bombay has been materially reduced.

(3) Arrangements for the exchange of postal parcels between India and the United Kingdom viâ Italy and France in addition to the exchange by the sea route viâ Gibraltar.

(4) The direct exchange of postal parcels, on the basis of the Union system, between India and France and Germany.

(5) The extension of the foreign parcel post to Western Australia, New Zealand, German South-West Africa, Peru and the State of Honduras.

(6) Arrangements for the exchange of postal parcels weekly with the Colonies of New South Wales, South Australia, Victoria, and Tasmania by the route viâ Tuticorin and Colombo, in place of the former fortnightly exchanges.

(7) The introduction of a weekly parcel post service with Queensland in place of the four-weekly service previously in existence, viâ Bombay, Aden, and Torres Straits.

(8) The re-opening of the parcel post with Egypt and certain places served through Egypt, and with Gibraltar and Tangiers, which had been temporarily interrupted by quarantine restrictions.

(9) The extension of the foreign money order system to the Niger Coast Protectorate and Rhodesia.

3. The transactions of the Imperial Post Office during the year under review, in comparison with those of the previous year, are shown below:—

4. There was an increase of 26 millions in the number of postal articles (excluding money orders) issued for delivery during the year, contributed to by increases of over 12½ millions under post-cards, of about 8⅓ millions in the case of paid letters, and of over 2 millions each under the head of newspapers and book and pattern packets. The percentage of increase in all articles taken together, was largest in the Punjab circle and is accounted for by the large bodies of troops collected there during the year. The popularity of the post-card continues to increase, and, as in last year, in the Bengal, Bombay, the Punjab, and Eastern Bengal circles, the number of post-cards exceeded the number of paid letters. The total number of unpaid letters was more than 29¾ millions, the proportion being highest in Burma and Behar. The total number of letters registered during the year was more than 9⅓ millions, of which nearly a quarter were posted in Madras. Notwithstanding the increase of nearly 30 per cent in the number of unregistered parcels sent under the system newly introduced in 1895-96, the total number of parcels registered during the year was 8·31 per cent in excess of the number during the preceding year. The number of postal articles issued (excluding money orders) was 1·63 per head of the general and 38·58 per head of the literate population in comparison with 1·54 and 36·39 per head, respectively, during 1896-97. The figures of foreign correspondence with the United Kingdom show an increase of 21·73 per cent in the newspaper and packet mails received from home, which is in continuation of a similar increase in the previous year. There was also an increase of 13·36 per cent in the number of letters and post-cards received. These latter statistics are based on the weights recorded twice during the year, and in the absence of any special reason for the increase, the Director General doubts if the periods taken for the purposes of calculation were representative of the rest of the year.

5. The total number of postal articles (including money orders) received for delivery, was 466,643,617, the number actually delivered being 462,122,844 or 99·03 per cent as compared with 99·06 in the previous year. The number of articles ultimately found to be undisposable was 1,092,724 or 0·2 per cent of the aggregate number given out for delivery. From a special enumeration made for three months in the Bengal Dead Letter Office, it appeared that in the Bengal, Eastern Bengal and Assam Circles, 3,188 letters, 4,656 newspapers, and 284 packets were posted without any address at all, while in articles opened in the Dead Letter Offices of Bengal, Bombay,

Madras, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and the Punjab, cheques, notes, bills and hundis, etc., were found to the total value of R2,55,435 and £610, the greater part of which was successfully returned.

6. Under the head of "Money orders" the entire transactions of the year (comprising inland, Native State and foreign money orders) continue to show a considerable increase, as noted below :—

		1896-97.	1897-98.	Percentage of increase + or decrease —.
Number of orders issued		11,068,726	11,795,041	+6·56
Value of orders issued	R	22,50,41,069	24,79,45,455	+10·18

Number of orders paid		11,144,141	11,875,905	+6·57
Value of orders paid	R	22,83,75,091	25,26,88,159	+10·65

The inland money order business shows a continuous and steady progress, and the transactions (excluding transactions in Native States) in the first complete year after its transfer from the Treasuries to the Post Office and during the last two years, compare as follows :—

		1880-81.	1896-97.	1897-98.
Number of orders		1,604,174	10,947,571	11,664,350
Value of orders	R	4,57,08,580	21,97,28,206	24,23,37,096
Commission realised on orders	R	5,35,976	27,92,116	30,57,199

The average value of an inland money order has for some years remained practically stationary at rather less than R21. The transactions in the Lower Provinces of Bengal continue to be on a larger scale than in any other circle and in the year under report comprised more than one-third of the total for the whole of India. The issue of revenue money orders in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh recovered, both in number and value, from the check caused during the previous year by the prevalence of famine, but in the Central Provinces famine continued to interfere with the number of such orders, although there was an increase in their value. The system of remitting miscellaneous Government dues through the post continued to make progress in Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and the Punjab. There was a considerable improvement in the number of rent money orders issued in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, but there was a slight falling off in the Central Provinces both in number and value, while in Bengal there was a slight increase in number accompanied by a decline in the aggregate value.

Particulars of the money order transactions in Native States during the last two years are given below :—

		1896-97.	1897-98.	Increase + or decrease —.
Number of orders issued in Native States		80,935	76,043	—4,892
Value of orders issued in Native States	R	19,28,527	22,67,524	+3,38,997
Number of orders paid in Native States		44,630	47,709	+3,079
Value of orders paid in Native States	R	12,66,057	13,60,175	+94,118

Compared with the figures for 1896-97 the transactions of the year under review show an increase under each head, except in the number of orders issued in Native States which decreased by 4,892.

The transactions in telegraphic money orders are shown below :—

		1896-97.	1897-98.	Increase + Decrease —.
Number of orders issued		145,849	156,075	+10,226
Value of orders issued	R	1,73,27,359	1,88,52,969	+15,25,610
Commission realised on orders issued	R	1,78,301	1,95,274	+16,973
Number of orders paid		136,583	155,000	+18,417
Value of orders paid	R	1,60,28,357	1,97,10,943	+36,82,586

There was a large increase both in the number and value of telegraphic money orders issued. It occurred principally in Bombay and is said to have been due to some extent to telegraphic remittances despatched by dealers for the purchase of grain for the famine-stricken districts in the Deccan; this method of remittance was also more frequently resorted to by emigrant labourers and others for the relief of urgent distress in their homes.

The number of sterling money orders issued rose from 59,654 in 1896-97 to 63,350 in 1897-98, and their value from £206,507 to £224,346, while in the case of sterling money orders received for payment in India, there was an increase in number from 35,036 in 1896-97 to 39,743 during the year under report, and in value from £186,896 to £221,024. The average value of a money order issued from India during 1897-98 was £3-10-10 as compared with £3-9-3 during the previous year, and that of a money order paid in India £5-11-3 against £5-6-8 in 1896-97.

As regards the money order transactions with foreign countries with which the Indian Post Office has exchanges based on Indian currency, the most remarkable increase occurred in the orders issued in British East Africa payable in India, which rose from about 4½ lakhs in 1896-97 to over 7½ lakhs in 1897-98. The total payments made by India on account of money orders advised by foreign countries were more than six times the amount of the issues by India on the same countries. The telegraphic money order transactions between India and Ceylon showed a considerable further development in both directions, there being an increase of 253 in the number and of R8,348 in the value of telegraphic money orders issued by India on Ceylon, and of 4,362 in the number and R3,03,608 in the value of orders issued by Ceylon on India.

7. The operations of the Post Office Savings Banks during the last two years are compared below:—

		1896-97.	1897-98.	Percentage of increase + or decrease —.
Number of banks . .		6,420	6,290	—2·02
Number of accounts opened during the year . .		208,140	175,946	—15·46
Number of accounts closed during the year . .		148,712	158,879	+6·83
Number of accounts at the close of the year .		713,320	730,387	+2·39
Amount of deposits during the year . .	R	5,66,10,981	4,36,52,416*	—22·89
Amount of withdrawals during the year . .	R	5,36,54,634	4,99,75,568*	—6·85
Amount of interest which accrued during the year	R	30,12,992	28,03,689	—6·94
Amount of balance at the close of the year .	R	9,63,92,411	9,28,72,978	—3·65
Average balance of each account . . .	R	135·13	127·15	—5·90

There were several noticeable features in the transactions of the year of which however no special explanation is furnished; fewer accounts were opened and a less amount deposited, while for the first time since 1889-90, the closing balance was reduced below the figure of the previous year owing to the amount withdrawn being in excess of the amount deposited by more than the interest for the year. The late famine has no doubt been the chief factor in these results. Out of 730,387 active accounts at the close of the year, 36,386 were security deposit accounts, 5,735 public accounts, and 173 regimental and other conjoint accounts. Of the remaining 688,093 private accounts, with an aggregate credit of over 840 lakhs, 89,596 with a balance of over 160 lakhs were held on behalf of minors by their parents, relatives and guardians. Of the total number of accounts, 91·14 per cent were held by natives of the country, while considering the depositors according to their occupations, the largest numbers were under the heads of the professional and domestic classes and those of no occupation or with incomes derived from others or from their own property. The number of agricultural depositors increased by 14·07 per cent, but their total number is still small.

* Inclusive of R1,14,67,866 balance of accounts transferred from one Post Office to another.

8. The total number of letters and parcels insured during the year amounted to 326,645 in comparison with 298,228 in the previous year, and the total insured value to R10,00,62,590 against R8,81,85,426; the insurance fees increased from R2,34,915, during the previous year, to R2,65,550 during the period under report. The largest increase in the number of parcels insured occurred in Bombay and is attributed in a great measure to the panic caused by the plague, during which many of the Marwari and other foreign traders made use of the postal insurance as the cheapest and safest method of despatching their valuables to their homes. Claims for compensation on account of the loss of insured articles or the abstraction of their contents numbered 34 as against 54 in the preceding year. Of these 24 were admitted, of which in 12, the loss was caused by fraud or negligence on the part of the servants of the Post Office; 6 claims arose out of losses by highway robbery of mails in British territory, and 6 claims were on account of insured articles lost in the Rivers Steam Navigation Company's steamer Loohit which sank with all the mails on board. The claims admitted involved the payment of R7,015 or 2·65 per cent of the total amount realised from insurance fees, as compared with a percentage of 4·57 in the previous year. In the case of one claim which was rejected, the sender was prosecuted and convicted for making a false declaration that the enclosures, consisting of a few old letters, were currency notes.

9. The value-payable business which has practically doubled since 1890-91 continued to develop during the year under report, the total number of articles so sent having risen from 2,009,092, during 1896-97, to 2,180,465, the total amount specified for recovery from the addressees from R2,30,39,800 to R2,56,62,825, and the commission realised from R4,11,839 to R4,56,613. The increase was thus 8·53 per cent in the number of articles, 11·38 per cent in the value specified for recovery, and 10·87 per cent in the commission realised. As formerly, the bulk of the business (about two-fifths) was transacted in the Bengal Circle, or practically in Calcutta, in which 779,808 out of a total of 818,602 articles were posted, and 88 lakhs out of the sum of over 92½ lakhs of rupees recovered from the addressees were payable. The value-payable business with Ceylon continued to show steady progress. The number of value-payable articles despatched from India to Ceylon rose from 21,713 to 23,697 in 1897-98, and their value from R1,98,071 to R2,07,000.

10. The number of complaints by the public against the Post Office showed an increase of 1·21 per cent. The proportion of cases in which the complaints were found to be well-founded was only 35·02 per cent of the whole number, while the percentage of complaints held to be groundless was 38·58. In the remaining cases investigations were either pending or had proved inconclusive.

11. As in previous years, the transactions connected with the receipt of salt revenue through the agency of the Post Office during the year were of small importance, the amount of revenue realised on this account having been R1,56,050 only on 57,786 maunds of salt, against R1,39,372 on 51,305 maunds of salt in the preceding year.

12. The total number of pensioners of the Native Army paid during the year in the Punjab was 24,713 against 24,112 in 1896-97, and the amount paid to them R17,82,147 in comparison with R17,46,333 in the preceding year.

13. The financial results of the working of the Post Office during the year under review are compared below with those of the previous two years:—

	1895-96.	1896-97.	1897-98.
	R	R	R
Revenue . . .	1,71,29,619	1,78,34,737	1,87,84,663
Expenditure . . .	1,64,33,167	1,69,81,561	1,72,95,858
+ Surplus or — Deficit .	+ 6,96,452	+ 8,53,176	+ 14,88,805

Excluding, however, from the figures of expenditure the District Post charges (other than in Baluchistan) which are provided for by local cesses (R12,04,904, R12,75,420 and R13,38,110 in the respective years), and including the indirect charges detailed in section XI of the Report (R8,11,615, R8,00,918, and R8,74,242 in the respective years), the resulting surpluses are R10,89,741, R13,27,678 and R19,52,673. As remarked by the Director General, considering the prevalence of plague and famine during the year, the continued progress in the Department is the more noticeable.

14. As already mentioned, a new Post Office Act was introduced and passed by the Legislature during the year, although it did not actually come into force until the 1st July 1898. Experience had shown the necessity of giving further legal protection to the Post Office, and more extensive powers to enable its officers to deal with different abuses. The course of English postal legislation has suggested the need for new penalties, and it was desirable to bring within the provisions of the law, the different new schemes, such as postal insurance and the value-payable and money order systems, which, having been introduced since the previous Postal Act of 1866, had hitherto remained outside its scope. Enabling powers were conferred by the new Act for dealing by rule with numerous questions of postal practice and procedure affecting the public, and the opportunity was taken to recast and re-arrange much of the original matter of the law.

15. The Department, of the work of which the far-reaching nature and the continuous development are amply illustrated in the Report, was ably administered throughout the year by Mr. Fanshawe, to whom the acknowledgments of the Government are due, as they are due also to Mr. H. M. Kisch for his services as delegate for India at the Washington Postal Congress. The Governor-General in Council notices with satisfaction the names of the following officers as having rendered especially good service during the year:—

Messrs. P. Sheridan, J. Owens, E. A. Doran; Rai Daulat Ram Bahadur, C.I.E.; Mr. W. T. Van Someren, C.I.E.; Babu Praphulla Chandra Banerji; Messrs. H. C. Sheridan, A. Bean, L. Byrne, C. J. Stowell, A. B. Thompson, A. D. Appleby, N. M. Cama, G. O. Hart; Lala Bhagwandas and Babu Rash Bihari Dass.

The valuable services rendered by the Department in connection with the late disturbances on the north-western frontier have already been separately acknowledged.

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Director General of the Post Office of India, and that the Report and the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of India.

ANNUAL REPORT

ON

THE POST OFFICE OF INDIA

FOR THE YEAR

1897-98.

No. 216 C., dated the 31st October 1898.

From—A. U. FANSHAWE, Esq., C. S. I., Director General of the Post Office of India,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce.

I have the honour to submit the Annual Report on the Post Office of India for the official year 1897-98.

Charge of the Post Office

2. The administration of the Department was in my hands throughout the year.

Principal events, Inland Post.

3. The year has been one of special work and of special demands upon the resources of the Department in various directions. It was remarkable for the convulsions of nature in the east of the Peninsula, which seriously affected postal arrangements. The earthquake in Assam and Bengal of the 12th June 1897 was followed by the great cyclone at Chittagong on the 24th October 1897. The first-named disaster destroyed large portions of the railway line, causing prolonged interruptions in traffic and necessitating the rapid organization of other means of communication under the greatest difficulties. On both occasions extensive damage was done to the buildings of the Department.

The postal arrangements for the important military operations on the North-West Frontier involved exceptional labour and responsibility, and constituted a severe tax on the powers of organization of the postal authorities in the Punjab. They have been separately reported on, and the success in carrying them out has already been recognized by Government.

During the course of the year, a new Post Office Act was introduced and passed by the Legislature though it did not actually come into force until the 1st July 1898. The old Act was defective in many ways and modern postal administration had quite outgrown its provisions. A large amount of personal work devolved upon me in the preparation of this Act, and in dealing with it at its various stages until it became law.

The effects of the famine were chiefly confined, as far as the Post Office was concerned, to an increase in money order transactions, owing to emigrant labourers, servants, and others making a larger use of the system than usual for the purpose of sending remittances to their homes in the famine-stricken tracts. The plague affected Post Office work less than in the previous year, owing, no doubt, to the population having grown more accustomed to it. It led to an increase in postal insurance business, chiefly between the Bombay Presidency and Rajputana, caused by money lenders and traders leaving their places of business for their homes and sending their valuables in advance by the post. The Post Office lost several of its servants from plague, and postal work in Bombay, Karachi and other plague-infected centres required specially careful supervision.

During the year special attention has been paid to the improvement of postal facilities in rural districts. The progress made in this respect is marked by the addition of 284 branch offices and 110 village postmen paid from Imperial and District Post Funds to the previously existing number. The increases have been greatest in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Bengal and the Punjab circles. At the same time steady progress has been made in the way of improving the position of the humbler servants of the Department. More would have been done in this direction had it not been that other important measures, which could not be carried out in 1896-97 owing to the necessity for strict economy, had to be made a charge against the grant for the year under review.

The last two months of the year saw the extension of the Postal Life Insurance scheme to all Government servants whose pay is audited in Civil or Public Works Account Offices, and to all members of establishments of the Military Department subject to Civil Rules whose pay is audited by Military Account Offices. It is too soon to form any confident opinion as to the success of this extension, but the results, so far, seem to show that it will be appreciated by the servants of the other Departments to which the scheme has now been made applicable. The sale of quinine through the agency of the Post Office was still further extended in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh. In the Punjab the money order system was adapted experimentally to the payment of petty sums for compensation under the Land Acquisition Act to the owners of the land taken up. A successful experiment in using the same system for the payment of Municipal refunds was made in Amritsar, while the Punjab Government set on foot a scheme under which it is hoped that the cultivating class may be induced to make more use of the Post Office Savings Bank than has been the case in the past. It may be added that further measures were taken to prepare for a decentralisation of money order audit, but definite proposals to complete the scheme were not made till 1898-99.

During the year senders of ordinary registered parcels were exempted from the trouble of filling up a form of receipt, and various minor changes in the parcel post rules were made. Among other changes the public was given the privilege of obtaining, for half an anna, a certificate of posting for any number of unregistered parcels or value-payable unregistered packets not exceeding six.

The improvements in the mail service between Bombay and Calcutta, viâ Nagpur and Jubbulpore, referred to in last year's report, came into effect during the year under review. The acceleration has been carried out most successfully by the railways concerned. The weekly special train from Bombay to Calcutta now brings the foreign mails into Calcutta about 45 hours after the steamer is signalled at Bombay, and all the most important places in Northern India share in this improvement. Under the new mail contract with the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, the outward foreign mail steamer leaves Bombay at 2 P.M. on Saturdays throughout the year, and it was found necessary to employ a weekly special train from Allahabad to Bombay to carry the mails from the Calcutta side, while a similar service was introduced from Jhansi to Itarsi for the benefit of the Punjab and other parts of Northern India. The outward foreign mails now leave Calcutta less than 44 hours before the mail steamer starts from Bombay, instead of leaving, as formerly, 68 hours in the fair weather, and 65 in the monsoon, in advance of that time.

In Calcutta a novel scheme of "continuous delivery" was experimentally introduced in selected parts of the city served by postmen belonging to the General Post Office. The experiment proved so successful that, towards the close of the year, it was extended to the beats of all the postmen attached to the General Post Office. The object of this system is to give a continuous delivery of correspondence throughout the day at a minimum cost to the Department, and the result has been a very large increase of local correspondence which did not formerly pass through the post at all.

Besides the interruptions in the postal service caused by the earthquake of June, there were serious breaks during the year on the Great Indian Peninsula, Southern Mahratta, Nizam's Guaranteed State, North-Western, and Bengal and North-Western Railways, causing a temporary dislocation of mail arrangements, while a landslip which occurred on the Kathgodam-Naini Tal road in the end of September 1897 blocked the road for a week. A serious disaster also took place on the 2nd April 1897, when the S. S. "Loohit" sank with all the mails on board in the river Megna outside Chandpur.

Principal events, Foreign post.

4. The following were the principal events of the foreign post. The fifth International Postal Congress was held during the year at Washington in May and June 1897, at which a number of material changes, some of them going to the root of the Union system, were decided upon, and an important step was taken by the Indian Post Office in declaring its intention to become a party to the Union Parcel Post Convention. The Acts of this Congress do not, however, come into force until the 1st January 1899. The British protectorate of Sarawak and the Orange Free State entered the Universal Postal Union, the former in July 1897 and the latter in January 1898. A new contract was negotiated with the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company for a combined Eastern and Australian mail service, which came into operation on the 1st February 1898. The time in transit from London to Bombay under the new contract has been reduced from 395 hours and 35 minutes (16 days, 11 hours and 35 minutes) to 351 hours and 35 minutes (14 days, 15 hours and 35 minutes), so that the mails, which still leave London every Friday night, are now due at Bombay every Saturday at noon, in place of every Monday at 8 A.M. An exchange of postal parcels between India and the United Kingdom was established viâ Italy and France, in addition to the exchange by the sea route viâ Gibraltar, and a week is thus saved in the transit; while arrangements were made for the direct exchange of postal parcels, on the basis of the Union system, between India on the one hand and France and Germany on the other. The foreign parcel post was extended to Western Australia, New Zealand, German South West Africa, Peru and the State of Honduras. Arrangements were made for the exchange of postal parcels weekly with the colonies of New South Wales, South Australia, Victoria and Tasmania by the route viâ Tuticorin and Colombo, in place of the fortnightly exchanges which formerly existed; and similar arrangements were made for the establishment of a weekly parcel post service with Queensland, in place of the four-weekly service which had previously been carried on viâ Bombay, Aden, and Torres Straits. The parcel post with Egypt and certain places served through Egypt, and with Gibraltar and Tangiers, which had been temporarily suspended on account of quarantine restrictions, was re-opened during the year; and the foreign money order system was extended to the Niger Coast Protectorate and Rhodesia.

Working of the P. and O. contract.

5. According to the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's time tables, as approved by Her Majesty's Postmaster-General, the steamers with the European mails were due in Bombay at 8 A.M. on Monday of each week during the first ten months of the year under report, and at noon on Saturday of each week during the remaining two months. The contract time was exceeded only once during the year, and then only by a few minutes. On 11 occasions the mail steamers arrived on Friday, on 25 occasions on Saturday, on 15 occasions on Sunday, and on one occasion on Monday. The shortest time occupied in transit by the mail from London to Bombay was 13 days 8 hours and 35 minutes, while the average time for the year was 14 days 14 hours and 47 minutes. In the opposite direction, that is, from Bombay to London, the quickest transit was 12 days 20 hours and 55 minutes, while the average time for the year was 14 days 23 hours and 17 minutes.

Section I.—Post offices, Letter-boxes and Village Postmen.

Post offices, letter-boxes and rural delivery.

6 Appendix I shows the numbers of post offices, letter-boxes and village postmen of the Imperial Post in each circle on the 31st March 1898, as compared with the numbers at the close of the previous year; and the marginal abstract shows the figures for the past two years for the whole of India, for both the Imperial and District Post shown separately and together. The total number of post offices has increased by 311, and that of letter-boxes by 910. The increase in post offices was greatest in Bengal and in the Punjab, and in letter-boxes in the Punjab and in Madras. The total number of post offices entrusted to the charge of schoolmasters and other persons not belonging to the Department, was 6,520 at the end of the year under review, as compared with 5,812 at the end of the year 1896-97.

It will be observed that there is one post office in India for every 129 square miles, as against 132 square miles in 1896-97, and one letter-box for every 45 square miles as against 47 square miles in the previous year. In this respect Bengal, including Bihar and Eastern Bengal, continues to be the most favoured province as regards post offices and letter-boxes, while Burma and Rajputana are still the most backward.

Section II.—Postal lines.

8. Appendix II contains statistics, according to postal circles, shewing the distances over which mails were carried by the various agencies of the Imperial Post Office. An abstract of that Appendix is given on the margin for facility of reference, with additional columns for District Post, Political and Military lines managed by the Post Office. There was a slight decrease under the head of mail cart lines, and an increase under all other heads, the increase being most marked in the case of "Runners and boats" and "Steamer." The extension of runner and boat lines occurred chiefly in the Madras circle and was due to the opening of new lines in the Cuddalore Division and the conversion of certain mail cart services into runners lines in other parts of that circle. The increase in Madras alone was about 500 miles. The increases in other circles were due to the opening of short lines, and to the transfer to Imperial of District Dâk lines. The increase under steamer lines was mainly in the Burma circle, where the opening of a steamer service between Katha and Bhamo and also between Sandoway and Taung-gup added about 1,000 miles to the previous length. The use of light hand carts or "Rickshaws" for carrying mails was further extended and continues to be well reported on in the matter both of economy and speed. This mode of carrying mails is gradually being introduced where the roads are good and the weight of the mails is sufficient to justify its adoption.

The use of bicycles on runners lines has been tried in parts of the Madras Presidency, and their use by letter-box clearers has also been tried in the town of Lahore. So far there seems to be every reason to anticipate the success of this form of conveyance in suitable localities, and it is the intention to extend the area of the experiment.

Section III.—Correspondence and Parcels.

9. The estimated number of postal articles of all kinds, exclusive of money orders, issued for delivery during the year, amounted to 465 millions or 26 millions in excess of the number during the preceding year. The increase has been 37·03 per cent. since 1891-92, and 46·25 per cent. since 1890-91. Statistics showing the different classes of articles delivered in the various postal circles during 1897-98 will be found in Appendix III, and a summary of the general results is given in the following statement. Postal Traffic.

Year.	Post-cards.	Letters (paid).	Letters (unpaid).	Letters (registered)	Total of Letters and postcards.	News-papers.	Book and pattern packets.	Parcels (registered).	Parcels (unregistered).	Grand Total (all postal articles except money orders).

Percentage of increase	7·53	4·64	1·09	5·82	5·65	7·10	10·46	8·31	29·17	5·98

There was thus an increase in the total number of articles under each head throughout India. The percentage of increase in all articles taken together was highest in the Punjab circle, where it was 13·22 per cent. Part of this increase is accounted for by the very large military force collected on the North-West Frontier during the year under report. The Bengal circle ranks next with an increase of 7·23 per cent., and the Burma circle follows with an increase of 6·82 per cent., and then come Assam, Bihar, Bombay, Rajputana and Sind and Baluchistan. In the year under report, as in previous years, the increase in the number of postcards (more than 12½ millions) far exceeded the increase in any other class of postal articles.

As in the previous year, the total number of postcards exceeded the total number of paid letters in the case of Bengal, Bombay, the Punjab and Eastern Bengal circles. The total number of unpaid letters was more than 29¾ millions, the proportion of these letters being highest in Burma and Bihar, while the total number of unpaid letters delivered in Bengal was larger than in any other circle. The total number of letters registered during the year was more than 9½ millions. Registration, as usual, has been more popular in Madras than in other parts of India, the total number of letters registered in that Presidency being over 2 millions. The total number of parcels registered during the year was more than 2¾ millions or an increase of 8·31 per cent. over the number of the preceding year, notwithstanding the very marked increase, of nearly 30 per cent., in the number of unregistered parcels under the system newly introduced in 1895-96.

Average number of postal articles per head of population.

10. The following table, prepared from the last census returns, shows for each circle the number of letters and other postal articles per head of the total population and per head of the literate portion of the population. Bombay, Sind and Baluchistan, the Punjab and Burma rank highest as regards the number of articles per head of the population, and Sind and Baluchistan, the Punjab and Bombay rank highest as regards the number of articles per head of the literate population.

* Excluding Indian Post Offices at Bagdad, Busra, and places in the Persian Gulf.
† Enumeration not taken under this head.

11. The figures in Appendix III include the foreign correspondence received in India for delivery, but a special table is given at the end of this paragraph showing separately the quantity of correspondence passing in each direction between India and the United Kingdom and between India and all other parts of the world. As regards the mails exchanged with the United Kingdom, the results of the year show a growth of traffic in all respects. The advance was of a normal character in the case of the homeward mails, but the increase in the case of those sent out from the United Kingdom calls for special remark. There was again this year an increase over the figures of the previous year, of more than a million in the number of newspapers and packets received from the United Kingdom. This steady addition of more than two millions during two successive years to the newspaper and packet mails sent out from home is sufficiently remarkable; but in the year under review there was also an unusual increase, at the rate of 13·36 per cent., of over 400,000 in the number of letters and postcards received from the United Kingdom, which it is not easy to account for. The figures showing the quantity of correspondence received from the United Kingdom are based on statistics of weight which are taken twice a year in the months of June and January. In both these months the weights of the mails for the year under review were greater than in the corresponding months of the previous year, the increase being specially marked in the month of January 1898, and it is possible that these figures may not be fairly representative of the whole year's traffic. As regards mails exchanged with countries other than the United Kingdom, statistics of the traffic are taken only once every three years, and as the figures given in the table are merely a repetition of those of last year, they do not call for any remark.

* Net revenue is calculated after deduction of customs duty and sums due to the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, the British Post Office, and other Administrations.

Parcel exchange with the United Kingdom.

13. More than 71·0 per cent. of the whole foreign parcel traffic was with the United Kingdom. As regards the exchange with the British Post Office, a new service by the overland route across the Continent of Europe was established from the 1st February 1898, in addition to the service by the sea route viâ Gibraltar. During the two months of the year for which this new service was in operation, 1,244 parcels were sent to the United Kingdom, and 583 were received by the new route. Moreover, in view of the fact that there was a substantial increase in the number of parcels exchanged by the Gibraltar route, an increase in excess of the average increase for several previous years, the whole of the traffic carried by the new service may fairly be regarded as having been freshly created. As regards the exchange through the agency of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, there was a small falling off in the number of parcels, both sent and received, and this exchange has practically now ceased to be of any importance. If the figures relating to all the parcel post services to and from the United Kingdom be taken together, they show a total increase of 8,135 in the number and of R8,731 in the net revenue of the Indian Post Office, over the figures of the preceding year.

Parcel exchanges with countries other than the United Kingdom.

14. In the exchanges with Continental Europe the number of parcels despatched from India shows a slight decrease, while the number received in India was about the same as last year. The new direct services established with France and Germany towards the end of the year under review do not appear, therefore, to have had any effect, so far, on the parcel post traffic with the Continent of Europe. In the exchanges with other countries, there was a satisfactory development of the traffic in both directions, an addition of 7,433, at the rate of 13·4 per cent., having been made to the number of parcels and of R13,412 to the net Indian revenue. The increase in the number of parcels sent to non-European countries is again to be attributed mainly to the steady growth of the parcel post with Ceylon.

15. The progress of the foreign parcel traffic as a whole since 1877-78 will be seen from the table in the margin.

Delivery work of the year.

16. The figures given in paragraph 9 of this report show that 465,019,125 letters, post-cards, newspapers, packets and parcels were issued for delivery during the year. These figures are calculated from actual enumerations made for a week at a time twice during the year, and approximately represent the delivery of mail articles properly so called. In order, however, to ascertain the entire delivery work of the year, it is necessary to add the number of money orders which are delivered and paid by postmen and village postmen. The entire delivery work of the year is shown by the following figures:—

Sent out for delivery (including 11,888,782 money orders)	476,907,907
Received back undelivered (deducted as representing articles either again sent out and delivered, or sent to the Dead Letter Office)	14,785,063
Balance actually delivered	462,122,844
Sent to Dead Letter Office	4,520,773
Total number received for delivery (counting each article only once)	466,643,617

These figures show that the percentage of articles delivered on the whole number received for delivery was 99·03, as compared with 99·06 in the previous year.

Dead Letter Offices.

17. The total number of letters, postcards and other articles excluding money orders, that reached one or other of the ten Dead Letter Offices, was 6,106,203 as compared with 5,613,291 received in the previous year. The distribution of these articles among the different Dead Letter Offices, and the way in which the articles were disposed of are shown in detail in Appendix IV of which a summary is given below :—

Of the total number of articles 818,859 were successfully disposed of by being redirected and then delivered to the persons to whom they were addressed, while 2,299,081 were returned to the senders, and 1,092,724 were found to be unreturnable. This last figure is only 0·2 per cent. of the total number of articles given out for delivery in the year, and a large proportion of the 1,092,724 articles were from their nature not capable of delivery. From special statistics kept by the Bengal Dead Letter Office for three months, it appears that 3,188 letters, 4,656 newspapers and 284 packets were posted in the Bengal, Eastern Bengal and Assam circles without any address at all. As usual, a large number of valuable property was found in letters and other articles posted without address or with addresses so incorrect and incomplete that the covers had to be opened in order that the senders might be traced. In articles opened in the Dead Letter Offices of Bengal, Bombay, Madras, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and the Punjab were found cheques, hundis, bills of exchange, currency notes, coins and other property amounting in value to R2,55,435-0-8, £610-18-1, 5 Dollars and 28 Francs, and the greater part of this property was successfully delivered to the owners.

18. Particulars regarding the issues from treasuries of postcards, postage stamps, embossed envelopes and stamped wrappers will be found in Appendix V, and similar information regarding service postcards, service postage stamps, and service embossed envelopes will be found in Appendix VI, to which is added an abstract of the two appendices, showing the issues of each kind of postcard, postage stamp, embossed envelope and stamped wrapper. The total value of the issues of ordinary stamps was R1,32,72,755, and of service stamps R26,64,281, there being an increase over the figures of the preceding year of R8,77,833 in the value of ordinary stamps, and of R71,315 in the value of service stamps. Sale of postage stamps, etc.

The issues of ordinary stamps were largest in the Bombay circle, where they amounted to nearly 27 lakhs of rupees. Madras comes next with issues of over 23 lakhs of rupees, and Bengal follows with issues of nearly 23 lakhs of rupees. The inland single postcards continued to command the highest sales, the total issues being over 120 millions in number. The small ½ anna envelope had the next largest sales, over 75 millions being issued during the year. Of the ½ anna adhesive stamps, over 58 millions were issued, of the ½ anna reply postcards, over 16 millions, of the one anna adhesive stamps, nearly 11 millions, of the 2 anna adhesive stamps, over 6 millions, of the 2½ anna adhesive stamps, over 3 millions, and of the 4 anna adhesive stamps, over 2 millions. In the case of the ½ anna square envelopes, both ordinary and service, as well as in the case of the one anna service envelopes, the sales declined; but there was an improvement in the number of one anna ordinary square envelopes issued, while there was also an increase in the sales of registration envelopes of all kinds, over the figures of the previous year.

The issue of ½ anna wrappers fell from some 358 thousand in the preceding year to some 329 thousand during the year under review, but there seems to have been a slightly increased demand for one anna wrappers, of which the issues rose from about fifty thousand in the previous year to about fifty-six thousand in the year under review.

Apart from the sales of postage stamps, one anna revenue or receipt stamps to the value of R3,94,650 were sold during the year, through the agency of the Post Office. Non-judicial stamps and Court-fee stamps are also sold at many post offices, but, except in Burma, the postmaster acts, as regards these stamps, as a private vendor, and the stamps do not form part of the post office balance. In Burma, where general stamps are kept by the postmaster in the same way as other stamps, the sales on this account amounted to R65,093.

Section IV.—District Post.

19. There has been no change in the management of the District Post during the year under report. It was administered, as usual, by the heads of postal circles subject to the control of the several Local Governments and Administrations. Management of the District Post.

20. The comparative statement given on the next page shows the establishments, income, and expenditure of the District Post, and also the work done under this head for the years 1896-97 and 1897-98. The total income of the year under report was R12,28,851, and the total expenditure R12,46,082 There was a decrease of 4 in the number of post offices, and of 125 in the number of postmen and village postmen, while the number of letter-boxes kept up out of District Post Funds increased by 139, and the length of District Post mail lines by 380 miles. There was also an increase of 779,766 or 4·53 per cent. in the number of articles, including money orders, delivered by the District Post agency, and of 548,033 or 4·70 per cent. in the number of articles posted in post offices and letter-boxes kept up by the District Post. Appendix VII gives details according to circles of letters and other postal articles sent to, and received from, the District Post. General results of the year.

Section V.—Money Orders.

Inland money orders.—General results.

21. The total number of money order offices at the end of the year under review was 11,491 as compared with 11,295 at the close of the previous year. The number of inland money orders issued, including telegraphic money orders, but excluding all transactions with Native States, was well over 11½ millions, of the aggregate value of nearly 24¼ crores of rupees, while the commission realized amounted to over 30½ lakhs of rupees. The table in the margin shows the yearly progress made in this branch of business since it was undertaken by the Post Office in 1880. It will be seen that it has more than doubled in the last ten years. During the year under report there was an increase of 6·55 per cent. in the number of inland money orders issued, of 10·29 per cent. in their value and of 9·49 per cent. in the amount of the commission realized. The average value of an inland money order has stood at something less than R21 for the last six years, as the figures in the margin show, with a tendency to decline, up to the year under report.

As in previous years the money order business of the Bengal circle was on a larger scale than that of any other postal circle. The number of orders issued and paid in the Lower Provinces during the year under report was more than one-third of the total transactions for all India. As in former years also the payments were largely in excess of the issues in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Bombay, and Bihar; whereas in Bengal, Assam, Burma, Central Provinces, Rajputana, and Sind and Baluchistan, the issues were in excess of the payments.

Revenue money orders.

23. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the total number of revenue money orders issued, which during the previous year fell off in consequence of the prevalence of famine, showed during the year under report considerable improvement. The number of orders rose from 133,498 in 1896-97 to 168,118, and the amount from R30,44,174 to R37,46,711. In the Central Provinces, however, famine continued to interfere with the progress of the scheme during the year under report. The total number of revenue money orders issued there fell from 10,728 in 1896-97 to 9,976, but the amount rose from R4,18,965 in the previous year to R4,48,834 during the year under report. In the Lower Provinces of Bengal, including Eastern Bengal and Bihar, there was an increase both in the number and value of revenue money orders, as compared with the figures of the preceding year. The number of orders rose from 192,425 in 1896-97 to 193,278, and the amount from R17,79,477 to R18,91,028. The total number of revenue money orders issued in the Punjab rose from 9,859 in 1896-97 to 11,030 during the year under report, and the amount from R5,81,235 to R7,05,213.

Remittances of miscellaneous Government dues by money orders.

24. In the Lower Provinces of Bengal 93,933 official money orders of the aggregate value of R20,32,378 were issued during the year under report as compared with 92,195 money orders of the aggregate value of R21,25,813 issued in the previous year. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the system of remitting miscellaneous Government dues by money orders is making progress every year. The number of orders rose from 22,847 in 1896-97 to 28,916 during the year under report, and the value from R4,74,493 to R5,83,856. In the Punjab there was an increase of 248 in the number and of R16,305 in the value of official money orders—the total number of orders and their amount being 4,023 and R1,02,571 as compared with 3,775 and R86,266, respectively, in the previous year. In Madras 4,416 official money orders of the aggregate value of R74,633 were issued during the year under report as compared with 4,464 money orders of the aggregate value of R75,018 in the previous year. In Burma, where the system was introduced in August 1896, official money orders were issued only from three offices and numbered 119 of a total value of R6,665.

Rent money orders.

25. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the rent money order business, which for the last three years has been falling off, considerably improved during the year under report. The total number of orders rose from 51,691 in 1896-97 to 59,055, and the amount from R7,03,349 to R8,39,608. In the Central Provinces the number of rent money orders fell during the year under report from 1,509 in 1896-97 to 1,450, and the amount from R24,693 to R24,102. The decrease is said to be due to causes connected with the late famine. In the Lower Provinces of Bengal the progress reported last year was not sustained during the year under report. Though the number of orders slightly rose from 49,675 in 1896-97 to 49,819, the amount fell from R7,40,310 to R7,34,892.

There was an increase of more than 3½ lakhs of rupees in the value of the issues and of more than ninetyfour thousand rupees in the value of the payments, in the Native States. It will be noticed that the payments made by the Imperial Post Office on account of money orders issued by Native States have been much larger than the issues by the Imperial Post Office on those States, and that this excess is an increasing quantity. The excess occurs mainly in the transactions with Gwalior State.

There was again a marked increase in the number and value of telegraphic money orders. The number of orders issued rose from 145,849 in 1896-97 to 156,075 and their value from R1,73,27,359 to R1,88,52,969. The chief increase occurred in Bombay, and is said to be due to some extent to grain dealers sending telegraphic remittances for the purchase of stocks of grain for the famine-stricken districts in the Deccan. There is no doubt that similar causes affected other parts of India in the same way, while emigrant labourers and others, in distant places, such as Burma, used this means of remittance more than usual in order to alleviate urgent distress in their homes. The postal commission on the orders amounted to R1,95,274 in addition to R1,56,075, the cost of telegrams, which is paid by the remitters along with the postal commission but credited to the Telegraph Department.

The average value of a telegraphic money order for the last six years is shown in the marginal statement. Telegraphic money orders continued to be issued far more freely from Burma than elsewhere, the orders issued from that province in the year under report being 43·59 per cent. of the total number for the whole of India. Payments in Burma also continued, as in previous year, to be larger in amount than in any other provinces, excepting only Madras.

Foreign money orders in sterling.

28. Foreign money orders for and from the United Kingdom, most of the British Colonies and possessions, foreign European countries and most of their colonies and possessions and Egypt are issued in sterling, payments being made by the remitters and to the payees in India at the rates of exchange fixed by the Post Office from time to time for this purpose. Details of the sterling money order exchanges of the year are given in the table below:—

During the year under review the number of sterling money orders issued rose from 59,654 in 1896-97 to 63,350, while the value increased from £206,507 to £224,346. This increase was, as usual, principally due to the growth of the drawings upon the United Kingdom. In the case of sterling money orders received for payment in India, there was also an increase, the number being greater by 4,707 and the value by £34,128 than the figures for the previous year. The average value of a money order issued from India in 1897-98 was £3-10-10 as compared with £3-9-3 in 1896-97, and that of a money order paid in India was £5-11-3 as compared with £5-6-8 in the preceding year. The average of the rates of exchange in force during 1897-98 was 15¼*d.* per rupee as compared with 14½*d.* in the previous year.

The drawings by the foreign countries and colonies upon India during the year have, as in the previous years, largely exceeded the drawings by India on those countries and colonies except in the case of the Portuguese Settlements. The heaviest drawings were by Ceylon, British East Africa, the German Protectorate (East Africa), Mauritius and the Straits Settlements. The total payments made by India on account of money orders advised by foreign countries were more than six times the amount of the issues by India on those countries. The average value of a foreign rupee money order issued by India in 1897-98 was R37-12-2 as compared with R37-9-2 in 1896-97, and that of an order paid in India was R42-14-3 as compared with R42-1-1 in the preceding year.

Telegraphic money orders between India and Ceylon.

30. The telegraphic money order transactions between India and Ceylon are shown in the statement on the margin. There was a considerable further development of the traffic in both directions, but the transactions for the most part consist of remittances made from Ceylon to India. There was an increase of 253 in the number and of R8,348 in

During the year under review the number of telegraphic money orders drawn by Ceylon on India rose to 15,951 or to more than 14 times the number of orders drawn by India on Ceylon. At the same time the value of orders drawn by Ceylon on India rose to R10,61,368 or to more than 15 times the value of orders drawn by India on Ceylon.

British postal orders.

33. The statement on the margin shows the sales of British postal orders during the year. The total number of orders sold in 1897-98 was 59,058, as compared with 56,961 in the preceding year, and the total value (including poundage) £38,370, as compared with £37,297 in 1896-97. The orders most in demand were, as in former years, those of the 5 shillings, 10 shillings, and 20 shillings denominations. During the year 44,762 of these orders were sold, while the total sales of orders of all other denominations only amounted to 14,296. The net commission realized by the Indian Post Office on the entire sales of the year was R1,796.

Section VI.—Savings Banks.

34. The usual statement is appended showing in detail, according to postal circles, the savings bank transactions of the year, as compared with those of the previous year. At the close of the year there were 730,387 active accounts as compared with 713,320 at the end of the year 1896-97, there being thus a net increase of 17,067 or 2·39 per cent. in the number of depositors. Excluding transfers from one post office to another, the amount deposited in the year was about 322 lakhs of rupees as compared with nearly 451½ lakhs of rupees in 1896-97; the amount withdrawn was a little over 385 lakhs as compared with nearly 422 lakhs in 1896-97; and the interest paid was about 28 lakhs as compared with over 30 lakhs in 1896-97. The total amount standing at the credit of depositors at the close of the year was nearly 928¾ lakhs, showing a decrease of about 35¼ lakhs as compared with the balance at the close of the preceding year. General results of the year.

Thus it will be seen that the transactions of the year were on the whole of an abnormal character. There was a decrease both in the number of the accounts opened and in the amount of the deposits; and for the first time since 1889-90 the closing balance was reduced below the figure of the previous year, owing to the amount withdrawn being in excess of the amount deposited by more than the interest for the year. The total amount withdrawn, however, fell short of the amount withdrawn in the previous year, notwithstanding the unusually large withdrawals made during the year under review at certain places in the Bombay Presidency, but then the withdrawals in the previous year were themselves exceptionally heavy. The average balance of each account was 127·15 as compared with 135·13 in the previous year. Of the 730,387 active accounts at the end of the year, 36,386 were security deposit accounts with a balance in favour of depositors of nearly 45½ lakhs, giving an average of R125 for each account, the maximum limit for a security deposit account being R500. The number of public accounts was 5,735 with a balance of nearly 31½ lakhs, giving an average of R549 for each account, as compared with 5,632 accounts with a balance of nearly 35 lakhs at the end of the previous year, giving an average of R621 for each account. There were 173 regimental and other conjoint accounts with a balance of nearly 11¾ lakhs, giving an average of R6,787 for each account. There is no limit of deposit in the case of regimental and other conjoint accounts. Of the remaining 688,093 active accounts with a balance of over 840 lakhs, 89,596 with a balance of over 160 lakhs were held on behalf of minors, by their parents, relatives and guardians, and the rest were accounts opened and held by depositors on their own behalf. It will be seen, therefore, that 94·2 per cent. of all the accounts in the Post Office Savings Banks and 90·45 per cent. of the total balance of 928¾ lakhs, represent the savings of private persons, deposited either for their own benefit or for the benefit of their children, minor relatives, and wards.

Depositors—Europeans and Natives of India.

35. The statement below shows the number and value of accounts held by Europeans and Eurasians, as compared with the number and value of accounts held by natives of India. The proportion of accounts held by Europeans and Eurasians, as in the three preceding years, was highest in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Madras and Bombay circles; but 91·14 per cent. of the total number of accounts at the close of the year were held by natives of the country, showing again a slight increase over the percentage for the preceding year :—

Depositors according to occupation.

36. In the following statement the depositors are classified according to their occupation. As in the three preceding years the largest number of accounts were held by the undermentioned classes of depositors in the following order :—

(1) persons of no occupation or whose incomes are derived from others or from their own property—classed as "Indefinite" in the statement;

(2) the professional class, and

(3) the domestic class.

The highest percentage of increase was, however, in the agricultural class, the number of whose accounts increased at the rate of 14·07 per cent. during the year under report :—

Investment in Government securities.

37. There were 657 investments in Government securities through the Post Office during the year, the nominal value of the investments being R7,42,600 in the aggregate, as compared with 453 purchases of the nominal value of R8,34,300 in the preceding year. This increase in the number of investments is to be attributed mainly to the favourable rate at which Government securities were selling during the last eight months of the year. The sales of securities through the Post Office were 35 as compared with 34 in 1896-97. The nominal value of the securities held in the custody of the Comptroller General at the close of the year, on account of depositors in the Post Office Savings Bank, was R7,31,200 as compared with R6,05,600 on the 31st March 1897; and it may be interesting to note that of this balance in the hands of the Comptroller General, R6,65,700 represented the nominal value of securities of the 3½ per cent. loan, while the balance R65,500 was held in 3 per cent. loans.

Percentage of Increase	·59	·17	14·00	18·97	9·53	13·47	3·03

It will be seen that there was an increase in the total business of the year under report as regards both the number and value of the articles insured. It will be seen also that the parcel insurance business of the year has not only made up for the temporary decrease during 1896-97, but shows figures higher than those of any previous year. The total number of parcels insured exceeded the number in the preceding year by 27,834, and the number in 1895-96 by 25,438, their total value being nearly 7½ crores of rupees as compared with about 6¼ crores in 1895-96 and 1896-97. The total value of all articles postally insured, for the first time exceeded 10 crores. The largest increase in insurance business occurred in Bombay, where the number of parcels insured in the year under report exceeded that in the previous year by 17,554. This was due in a great measure to the panic caused by the plague, which drove many of the Marwari and other foreign traders to their homes. They made large use of postal insurance, considering it the cheapest and safest method of having their valuables despatched from Bombay to their native places.

The average value for which each letter was insured during the year 1897-98 was R258 as compared with R259 in the preceding year, and the average value for which each parcel was insured, R327 against R314 in the preceding year.

Claims for compensation.

39. The number of claims for compensation on account of the loss of insured articles or the abstraction of their contents during the year under review was 34 as compared with 54 in the previous year. Six claims arose out of losses by highway robbery of mails all in British territory, and 6 claims had to be met in respect of insured articles lost in an accident which occurred on the 2nd April 1897 to the Rivers Steam Navigation Company's steamer Loohit on the river Megna, when she was caught in a sudden squall and sank with all the mails on board, about an hour's run from Chandpur. Out of the 34 claims made, 24 were admitted and in 12 of these 24 cases the loss was caused by fraud or negligence on the part of servants of the Post Office. The usual statement showing the cases in which compensation was actually paid or in which the claims were admitted during the last two years, is given on the margin. It will be seen that the claims admitted by the Post Office in the year under report amounted to R7,045-0-0 or 2·65 per cent. of the total amount realized from insurance fees, as compared with a percentage of 4·57 in the previous year. Of the 10 cases in which claims were not admitted 4 were actually rejected, the remaining 6 being pending at the close of the year. In all 4 cases in which compensation was refused, the Post Office declined to accept responsibility, as the insured articles had been delivered in good condition, on a clear receipt, and there was good reason to believe that the articles said to be missing were either not inside the insured covers when the latter were posted or that they were abstracted after delivery. In one of these cases, in which four sovereigns were said to have been stolen from a parcel, it was evident from the weight of the cover and its contents that the sovereigns could not have been removed from the parcel before delivery. In a second case, also of alleged abstraction of sovereigns, the enquiry showed that in all probability the theft took place before the parcel was posted, and that the pieces of lead, which were found inside the parcel on its being opened by the addressee, had been substituted for the original contents before the parcel was actually presented at the post office for insurance. In one of the two remaining cases, in which the contents of an insured letter, declared to be currency notes, were found on delivery to be a few old letters, it was clear that a false declaration had been made by the sender, for which he was prosecuted, and, on conviction, sentenced to 18 months' rigorous imprisonment, and a fine. The last of these four cases was one in which it was alleged that a gold bar had been abstracted from an insured parcel. No satisfactory conclusion could be arrived at in this case, but as the parcel was delivered in good outward condition on a clear receipt, the claim was rejected.

Section VIII.—Value-payable System.

Value-payable post

40. The development of the value-payable business since its introduction in 1877 is shown in the marginal table, and it will be seen that the steady and rapid progress of this branch of the Post Office work was more than maintained during the year under report, and that the business has practically doubled since 1890-91. The total number of articles of all kinds sent through the post under the value-payable system was 2,180,465 as compared with 2,009,092 in the previous year; the total amount specified for recovery from the addressees was over $2\frac{1}{2}$ crores of rupees against less than $2\frac{1}{3}$ crores, while the commission realized was nearly half a lakh more than in the previous year. There was thus an increase of 8·53 per cent. in the number of articles, of 11·38 per cent. in the value specified for recovery and of 10·87 per cent. in the commission realized. As in previous years, nearly two-fifths of the entire business of the year was transacted in the Bengal circle, or practically in Calcutta. Out of a total of 818,602 articles sent by the value-payable post in the whole of the Bengal circle, 779,808 were posted at the Calcutta General Post Office and its town sub-offices, and of the sum of over $92\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of rupees recovered from the addressees of value-payable articles posted in that circle, 88 lakhs of rupees were payable to the tradesmen of Calcutta. This amount was $4\frac{1}{3}$ lakhs of rupees in excess of the corresponding figure of the preceding year.

The value-payable business with Ceylon shows steady progress since its introduction in 1891. During the year under report 23,697 value-payable articles of the aggregate value of R2 07,000 were despatched from India to Ceylon as compared with 21,713 articles of the aggregate value of R1,98,071 in the preceding year. The value-payable system has not yet been introduced between India and any other foreign country.

Classification of value-payable articles.

41. In the statement on the margin details are given of the different classes of articles sent through the post under the value-payable system. As compared with the figures of the previous year, the result is an increase of 8·78 per cent. in the number of value-payable registered parcels, of 11·70 per cent. in the number of value-payable railway receipts, of 24·45 per cent. in the

42. The following statement shows the transactions of the Post Office Guarantee Fund during the year under report. The balance at the credit of the Fund, including the nominal value of Government Securities purchased on its behalf, rose from R6,41,920 on the 31st March 1897 to R6,69,225 on the 31st March 1898. The subscriptions realised from postal servants amounted to R14,923, while the amount decreed against the Fund in connection with frauds committed by officials of the Department was R14,195 as compared with R16,469 in the previous year and with an average of R17,625 for the last ten years. A sum of R23,700 was added to the Fund on account of interest during the year under report. Post Office Guarantee Fund.

43. The number of complaints made by the public during the year under review was 19,055 against 18,827 in the previous year. There was thus an increase of 1·21 per cent. in the number of complaints received in 1897-98 as compared with the previous year's figures and as compared with a corresponding increase of 5·98 per cent. in the number of articles dealt with by the Post Office. The proportion of cases in which the complaints were found to be Complaints by the public.

well founded was only 35·02 per cent. of the whole number, and the entirely groundless complaints were 38·58 per cent. of the total. In the remaining cases the investigation of the complaints had either not been completed at the end of the year, or although the enquiry had been completed no definite conclusion had been arrived at.

Under the head of groundless complaints are included all those which turn out to have no justification, though there may have been reason for asking for an enquiry. There are always, however, a number of complaints made without any real cause, of which the following may be cited as an instance. Numerous complaints having been received against a village postman in Eastern Bengal, a superior officer of the Department was specially deputed to enquire into the matter on the spot. It was then ascertained that the complaints had been lodged by or on behalf of a prominent resident of the village who thought that he had been insulted, because the village postman had once inadvertently handed him a letter with his left, instead of with his right, hand, and that the whole of them were either made up, or grave exaggerations.

It should be added that the difficulty of making effectual enquiries regarding the loss or miscarriage of unregistered articles, and the danger of complaints being treated as mere matters of routine have been fully recognized by the Post Office of India as it is recognized by all postal administrations. The clearest instructions on this subject are contained in the rules of the Department, and it may be fairly claimed that it is a constant endeavour on the part of those in authority to ensure that investigations shall be thorough, and that every reasonable complaint shall receive real attention. That there should be some failures is inevitable when the enormous mass of business of the Department is looked to, but it can only be repeated that complaints, when facts can be given, are really welcomed by the administration, and that year by year much care and patient trouble is expended on putting these complaints to their real purpose.

Complaints regarding special classes of articles.

44. The usual statement is given below showing the number of complaints received during the year regarding registered letters, ordinary parcels, insured letters and value-payable articles. These figures are included in the number of complaints shown in paragraph 43 of this report.

	1897-98.				TOTAL.
	Registered letters.	Ordinary parcels.	Insured letters and Insured parcels.	Value-payable parcels and Value-payable registered articles.	1897-98.	1896-97.

II.—Cases in which the postal establishment was proved to be in fault, or in which there was strong ground for believing it to be so .	130	73	19	62	284	277

TOTAL .	440	341	51	163	995	1,028

It will be seen that out of a total of 995 complaints relating to these special classes of postal articles, 503 or 50·55 per cent. were groundless, and that the proportion of cases in which postal officials were proved to be in fault was 28·54 per cent. The percentage of cases in which no definite conclusion was arrived at, or which were pending at the close of the year, was 20·9. The complaints were rather less in number than those received in the previous year, although there was an increase of over half a million registered letters, over a quarter of a million parcels, over 170,000 value-payable articles, and over 28,000 insured articles. Complaints which proved to be well-founded were made by the public in respect of only 130 out of 9,375,651 registered letters, 73 out of 2,965,999 parcels, 19 out of 326,645 insured articles and 62 out of 2,180,465 value-payable articles.

Offences by servants of the Post Office.

45. The number of cases in each postal circle in which servants of the Post Office were found guilty of offences punishable by law is shown in Appendix VIII, and a summary of the figures is given on the margin. The total includes 59 cases of misappropriation of office cash, 112 money order frauds, 10 savings bank frauds, and 95 cases of theft from mails and post offices. Most of the remaining offences relate, as usual, to letters, parcels, and other mail matter properly so-called. Among the offenders convicted or departmentally punished were 64 departmental postmasters and 37 clerks (including 1 Railway Mail Service sorter), 71 extraneous agents in charge of post offices, 65 postmen and village postmen, 2 telegraph messengers, 2 overseers, 24 runners and 13 others employed on various other duties in post offices. The amount of defalcations and losses was R34,285-15-11 as compared with R37,020-3-7 in the previous year and R34,646-12-5 in 1895-96. Rupees 20,100-1-9 was recovered from the offenders or their sureties; R1,514-5-8 was decreed against the Guarantee Fund, and R12,671-8-6 remained unadjusted at the close of the year.

Number of legal convictions	153	145

Offences by persons not belonging to the Post Office.

46. There were 4 cases of fraud in respect of money orders to the value of R159-14-0 and one case of fraudulent withdrawal amounting to R130-0-0 from the savings bank in which persons not belonging to the Post Office were concerned. Besides these, there were 49 cases of house-breaking and theft of Government money from post office safes and from the mails, apart from the cases of highway robbery which are separately dealt with. The total amount stolen was R3,274-9-0, of which R1,741-13-8 was recovered, R624-1-1 was written off as finally lost, and R908-10-3 was unadjusted at the close of the year.

Highway robberies and attacks upon the mail.

47. The usual abstract is given in the margin showing the number of cases in which the mails were plundered by highway robbers during the year under review and in the previous year, whether in British territory or in Native States. There were 37 cases of the kind during 1897-98 as compared with 36 in 1896-97. Of these 37 cases, 27 occurred in British territory as compared with 28 in the previous year, and 10 in Native States as compared with 8 in the previous year, so that the increase in the total number was wholly due to the offences committed in Native States. The increase was greatest in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh where the number of these cases rose from 6 to 11. In Bombay, Madras, and the Punjab the number also increased; while in the Central Provinces and Berar, where there were no cases of the kind last year, two occurred during the year under report. On the other hand, in Bengal as well as in Bihar and Rajputana, the number decreased, while there were no mail robberies at all in the Assam, Burma, Eastern Bengal, and Sind and Baluchistan circles.

Character of mail robberies.

48. In 13 out of the 37 cases of highway robbery the mail carriers were wounded by the robbers, and in four cases so severely as to necessitate their detention for some time in hospital. In a case that occurred in the Hissar district of the Punjab, the runner was killed and his body buried in the sand. Three men who were supposed to be implicated in the murder were arrested. One of these was tried for the crime and sentenced to death. In another case which occurred in the Thana district in Bombay, the runner was murdered by a spear-thrust through his neck. Two men concerned in the murder were arrested. One of them was sentenced to death and the other to rigorous imprisonment for a term of ten years. Two other cases accompanied by loss of life occurred beyond the border in Waziristan. In one of these cases the driver of the mail ekka in which the mails were being conveyed from Miranshah to Bannu was shot dead by a party of some 30 or 40 Waziris. Three men were arrested on suspicion in connection with this crime, but were discharged for want of evidence. In the other case two mail ekkas while on their way to Miranshah, were fired on by a party of Waziris who were concealed behind some rocks. Two sepoys who were escorting the mails were shot dead; the two ekka horses were also killed on the spot; and one of the ekka drivers and a passenger succumbed shortly afterwards to the wounds they received. The object of this attack appears to have been to obtain possession of the arms and ammunition which the two sepoys were carrying. No one was brought to account for this outrage. The only other case involving a loss of life occurred in the Ellichpur district in Berar, where a runner was beaten to death by his assailants with clubs. For this crime one man was convicted of murder and sentenced to death, but on appeal the sentence was reversed by the Judicial Commissioner of the Hyderabad Assigned Districts who sentenced him to three years' rigorous imprisonment on a charge of receiving stolen property. In a case that occurred in the Meerut district of the North-Western Provinces, the mail bag carried away was found hanging on a tree. It had, however, been opened and a parcel which it contained was missing. In another case that occurred also in the North-Western Provinces, in the Bijnor district, the enquiry took an extraordinary turn and resulted in the conviction of three police officials who were investigating the case, one of the rank of Inspector and two Sub-Inspectors, under Section 195 of the Indian Penal Code, for fabricating false evidence, and they were each sentenced to three years' rigorous imprisonment. In one of the cases that occurred in the Madras Presidency the object of the robbers appears to have been to obtain some official papers. The bulk of the mail was found intact, but most of the articles addressed to Government officers had been opened.

There were only 11 cases in which Government suffered any loss, and the total loss amounted to R4,865-11-8. Of this sum R1,340-11-8 was taken from the mails in actual cash, while R3,525 represents the compensation that had to be paid for insured articles. In 11 cases the entire mail was recovered, in 19 cases a portion was recovered, and in the remaining seven cases the entire mail was lost. Prosecutions were instituted in 17 cases, in 10 of which convictions were obtained. In addition to the cases of actual highway robbery mentioned above, there were three unsuccessful attempts to rob the mail, two of which took place in British territory and one in a Native State.

Casualties.

49. There were various other cases during the year in which the lives of postal servants were lost and destruction of property was caused by storms, floods, fires, and other causes. On the 12th June 1897 a severe shock of earthquake was felt throughout Bengal and Assam, which caused the entire destruction of 25 post office buildings, though happily there was no loss of life among servants of the Department. In addition to the buildings altogether destroyed, 52 others suffered damage, which was of so serious a nature in 18 cases that the buildings had to be almost entirely rebuilt. The Chittagong district in Eastern Bengal was visited, on the 24th October 1897, by a cyclone of unusual violence, which levelled almost all the buildings in the district to the ground, causing the total destruction of 33 post office buildings, of which 20 were the property of Government, while 8 others were more or less seriously damaged. In one instance the destruction of a post office was unfortunately attended by loss of life, a postman and a daughter of the sub-postmaster being killed by the falling house. In March 1898 a mail runner was killed by a tiger in the Singbhum district of Bengal while returning to his stage. and several lives were lost by river accidents. In August 1897 two mail carriers were drowned in Travancore owing to the capsizing of a boat in which they were crossing a stream, and later in the year a village postman of the Gorakhpur district in the North-Western Provinces lost his life owing to a similar accident. In the following month a small mail boat was upset in a whirlpool on the Sittang river in Burma and one of the mail carriers in it was drowned, while another mail carrier perished in Cutch while attempting to ford a stream that was in flood. It should be added that a village postman in the Jummoo province of Kashmir was precipitated into the river Chenab, owing to the collapse of a swinging bridge over which he was crossing, and was never seen again. A mail peon attached to the Chandernagore post office was run over and killed by a train on the East Indian Railway. It was his duty to attend to the mail exchanging apparatus by the side of the railway line, and it is supposed that he had incautiously walked down the line and failed to hear the train coming up behind him.

In four instances during the rains of the year under report, mails were lost in the attempts of the mail carriers to cross streams that were in flood. In another instance a sowar who was conveying the mails to Miranshah in the Tochi Valley was carried away by a flood which came down the road, and narrowly escaped being drowned. Most of the mails were, however, recovered when the flood subsided. On the 23rd February 1898 the Royal Indian Marine Steamer Pagan with five mail bags on board was wrecked on her way from Kindat to Mandalay in Burma. The mail bags were saved, though the contents were much damaged. On the 6th August 1897 the boat conveying mails from the S.S. Plover to the Sualkuchi post office in Assam capsized, resulting in the loss of an account bag containing a remittance of R100. A more serious accident of the same kind that occurred during the year was the loss of the River Steam Navigation Company's Steamer Loohit on the 2nd April 1897, about an hour's journey from Chandpur. The steamer was caught in a sudden squall on the river Megna and sank with all the mails on board, comprising a large number of insured, value-payable, and other registered letters and parcels.

During the year 21 post offices were destroyed by fire, of which 7 were the property of the Department and two post office buildings were blown down by storms. A postal van attached to the Delhi-Umballa-Kalka Railway mail train was completely burnt on the 14th June 1897 between the Lalru and Ghaggar stations. The fire originated in a horse-box, in front of the mail van, and this vehicle as well as the brake van next to it were also burnt. Owing to the promptitude of the sorters who were in the mail van, the whole of the mails were saved. There was no loss of life during the year under report on the mail lines to Chitral, Leh and Gilgit which cross over Himalayan passes at high elevations, but on two occasions during the winter the runners carrying the mails from Chitral were more or less seriously injured while crossing the Lowari Pass, 10,450 feet in height, and a runner was hurt in a land-slip which occurred on the Srinagar side of Kargil, on the Leh line.

Post Office staff.

50. The establishment of the Imperial Post Office in the various grades is shown according to postal circles in Appendix IX, and an abstract of this Appendix is given in the margin. The total numerical strength of the Post Office staff was 51,966 on the 31st March 1898, as compared with 50,755 on the same date of the previous year. The increase under the several heads was due to the general development of Post Office work, the largest purely postal increase being under the head of extraneous agents and village postmen. This is owing to the special attention which continues to be paid to providing postal facilities in rural tracts. The staff of the Post Office included 164 pensioned soldiers of the native army, of whom 34 were non-commissioned officers and 130 sepoys. These men were employed in various capacities, such as branch postmasters, clerks, postmen or packers. Out of the total number of 164 pensioned soldiers, 92 were serving in the Punjab, and 39 in the Madras circle. During the year 1897-98, 40 women were employed in the Post Office, of whom 37 were European or Eurasian. Of these 40 women, one was postmistress of a head office, 6 were postmistresses of sub-offices, 4 of branch offices, while 28 were clerks and one a postwoman.

Cost of printing by private presses.

Section X.—Non-Postal Branches of the Post Office.

Postal Telegraph (combined) offices.

52. During the year under review, 81 new combined post and telegraph offices were opened, and 18 previously existing combined offices were closed. Of the latter number, seven offices situated on the North-West Frontier, were transferred from the Post Office to the Telegraph Department to be worked as Departmental Telegraph offices in consequence of the field operations. There was thus a net increase of 63 in the total number of combined offices, as compared with a net increase of 106 during the previous year. Of the new combined offices, 74 were opened at places which had previously been without a Government telegraph office, and 56 at places where there had previously been no Government or Railway telegraph office.

In the Madras circle, seventeen new combined offices were opened. Bombay comes next with ten new offices and then Bengal with nine new offices. The total number of combined offices in each postal circle is shown in the statement given in the next paragraph. At the close of the year there were 1,634 Government telegraph offices, of which 257 were under the control of the Telegraph Department, and 1,377 were combined post and telegraph offices controlled by the Postal Department.

Traffic statistics of combined offices.

53. The usual statement is given below showing the traffic statistics of combined offices arranged according to postal circles. There was an increase of 208,416 or 11·17 per cent. in the number of messages sent, and of 309,474 or 15·82 per cent. in the number of messages received, while the revenue showed an increase of R2,29,929 or 12·40 per cent. over the figures of the previous year. The number of transit messages rose from 854,103 to 1,017,747, so there was an increase of 163,644 or of 19·15 per cent. in these messages. The total revenue from messages sent from combined offices amounted to R20,84,000, and exceeded the expenditure on the establishment of these offices by R16,21,129.

During the year, 294 servants of the Post Office qualified as signallers, while 106 were under training when the year closed. The number of boys employed as telegraph messengers in combined offices on the 31st March 1898 was 456, as compared with 328 on the 31st March 1897.

Telegraph receiving offices.

54. In addition to messages despatched and received by wire at the 1,377 combined offices, telegrams were received from the public at 1,859 post offices for despatch by post to the nearest telegraph offices, as compared with 1,923 such offices during 1896-97. The number of telegrams booked at these receiving offices was 38,016 and the revenue realized was R35,371, as compared with 39,780 messages booked, and R38,190 realized, during the previous year. The decrease in the transactions during the year under review is probably due to the reduction in the number of receiving offices consequent on an increase in the number of combined offices.

The number of messages booked by post offices in the Persian Gulf on account of the Indo-European Telegraph Department was 289, as compared with 246 in 1896-97, and fees to the amount of R3,081-1-0 were realized, as compared with R3,391-2-0 in the previous year.

Post Office Passenger and Bullock Train Service between Kalka and Simla.

55. The gross expenditure on the combined Passenger and Bullock Train Service was R3,76,326 against R4,38,242 during the previous year, showing a decrease of R61,916 during the year under report. The receipts amounted to R3,55,401 as compared with R3,45,874 during 1896-97, and there was, therefore, an excess of charges over receipts of only R20,925, although over R25,000 were paid to the establishment as compensation for the famine prices of grain.

Receipt of salt revenue at post offices.

56. The system of employing this Department as an agency for receiving salt revenue continued in force during the year at a few selected post offices in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Punjab, the Central Provinces and Rajputana; but, as in the previous four years, the transactions were very small during the year under report. The Post Office was made use of to forward to the salt depôts a total of 353 indents for 57,786 maunds of salt of the gross value of R1,56,050, on which R798 was realised as postal commission.

Sale of quinine at post offices.

57. The following table shows the supplies of quinine obtained on indent for sale at post offices in the several postal circles during the year 1897-98 as compared with the figures of the previous year. The result is an increase of nearly 393 lbs. over the latter year.

Net increase 392 lbs. 6,563 grains.

The most noticeable features of the table are the rather marked decrease in the supply of the drug to Bengal, and the still more marked increase in its supply to Madras. As stated in last year's report, the system was abandoned in the Punjab in compliance with the wishes of the Local Government. With the exception, therefore, of Bengal, every postal circle in which quinine was on sale at post offices exhibits a satisfactory increase—a result which may be regarded as showing that the masses are acquainted with its value as a febrifuge, and that they are ready to avail themselves of it when it is procurable at their doors in small quantities at a cheap price.

The falling off in Bengal is confined to Bengal proper, as distinguished from Bihar and Eastern Bengal, and is attributed partly to the diminished prevalence of malarial fevers and partly to the high price of food-grains which made less money available for the luxury of medicines. The large increase of over 326 lbs. in Madras might have been even larger were it not that the price of the drug was raised, under the orders of the Local Government, from two to three pies for the 5-grain packet, with the result that the sales, which till then averaged 71,731 packets monthly, fell to about 39,000 packets a month—a decline of about 45·0 per cent.

In the same circle a trial was made during the year of the system obtaining in some other circles, of entrusting packets of quinine for sale to village postmen and postmen serving villages. The experiment was first tried in three districts and met with such success that it was introduced generally throughout the presidency. It is anticipated that the sale of the febrifuge in this way will be extremely popular in the more fever-stricken tracts. Special efforts were also made in two other circles to promote the popularity of the scheme: in Bombay, directions for the use of the drug were printed on the packets in the several local vernaculars; and in Burma, leaflets were issued in English and Burmese describing the merits of quinine.

The sphere of operation of this branch of postal business was extended in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, where it now embraces the whole of that postal circle; in the Central Provinces circle, where it now includes all post offices in the Central India Agency, and in Burma, where every village postman and all but a few post offices now sell the drug.

Postal Life Insurance, Endowment Assurance and Monthly Allowances.

58. A separate report has been submitted, as usual, on the administration of the Postal Insurance Fund. From the 1st February 1898 the benefits of the Fund were extended generally to all Government servants who are subject to Civil Rules, and from the same date a system of Endowment Assurances was added to the scheme. During the year 291 new policies for an aggregate amount of R4,38,250 were issued. Of these 82 were Endowment Assurance policies issued during February and March 1898, and it would seem that the system of Endowment policies is likely to prove in the future the most popular form of insurance. As regards the scheme for monthly allowances, which has hitherto been practically inoperative, there was a decided increase this year in the number of contracts taken out. Eleven new contracts were issued as compared with two in the previous year, and there were 19 contracts in existence at the close of the year as compared with nine at the end of 1896-97. Since the Postal Insurance Fund was started on the 1st February 1884, 2,966 lives have been insured, and at the close of the year under report there were 2,455 active policies in existence, 1,861 of which were held by Post Office servants and 594 by servants of other Departments. Forty-two claims, amounting in all to R55,900, were paid during the year on the deaths of insured persons, and the aggregate sum insured at the end of the year was R34,69,650. In the year under report, as in the preceding one, no advantage was taken by women of the extension of the benefits of the scheme to them. Nine life annuities were purchased under Article 867 of the Civil Service Regulations during the year under report, of which one was subsequently cancelled.

Payment of Military pensioners through the Post Office.

59. The system of paying the pensions of pensioners of the Native Army through the agency of the Post Office in the Punjab continued to work satisfactorily. The total number of pensioners paid during the year under report was 24,713, and the amount paid to them was R17,82,147. The following table shews the yearly transactions in this branch of business from its introduction.

Section XI.—Financial Results.

Receipts and expenditure according to Departmental accounts.

60. The receipts and charges of the year, as shown in the Post Office accounts, are given in detail in Appendix X, under two main heads, Postal Service proper and Non-Postal branches, a summary of which is given in the statement below:—

	Receipts.		Charges.
	1896-97.	1897-98.	1896-97.	1897-98.
	R	R	R	R
1. Postal Service Proper	1,73,84,646	1,83,23,500	1,28,08,761	1,32,71,540

Total	1,77,37,122	1,86,85,208	1,38,33,201	1,42,60,137

Under Postal Service proper, the net receipts, after deducting the amounts due to the British, Colonial and other Post Offices, were R9,38,854 in excess of those of the previous year, while the charges increased by R4,62,779. The improvement in the receipts was due to an increase of R6,05,606 from the sale of ordinary postage stamps, to an increase of R71,395 in the revenue derived from service postage stamps, and to an increase of R2,70,749 in the income realized from money order commission. There was also an increase of R2,996 in the collections on account of postage paid in cash, and an increase of R11,796 in the miscellaneous receipts of the Department. On the other hand, there was an increase of R23,688 in the payments made to British and other Post Offices. Under the head of Non-Postal branches the receipts were R9,232 more than in the previous year. None of the items of postal expenditure calls for any special notice. Altogether the receipts exceeded the charges by R44,25,071.

Financial position of the Post Office.

61. In Appendix XI will be found a comparative abstract of the receipts and charges of the Post Office for the year, including, under a distinct head (III), certain receipts and charges which appear in the Finance and Revenue Accounts, but not in the Post Office accounts. The entries under this head are shown on the margin, and if these totals be added to the totals given in the preceding paragraph, the entire receipts of the year amount to R1,87,84,663, and the entire charges to R1,72,95,858. There was thus a surplus of R14,88,805 on the year's transactions, as shown in the Finance and Revenue Accounts. The charge on account of District Post Establishments has, however, to be excluded, as it is entirely met by grants from District Post funds, which, with the exception of R99,455 shown in the marginal table, are not credited to the Post Office in the

Receipts, 1897-98.	R	Charges, 1897-98.	R

Finance and Revenue Accounts. The actual accounts of the year therefore show a surplus of R27,49,951. In order, however, to bring out the complete financial results of the year in the usual way, the net balance of the items marginally shown must be deducted from the surplus just noted, and the net financial result is a surplus of R18,75,709 as compared with R12,51,973 in 1896-97 and with R10,29,230 in 1895-96.

In this estimate of the financial position of the Post Office no allowance has been claimed, as stated each year, on account of the services rendered by the Department to Government in the management of the Post Office Savings Bank and in carrying official correspondence at exceptionally low postage rates. It will be seen from the figures noted above that the Post Office is now showing steady progress every year in its financial position. The progress this year is all the more noticeable, regard being had to the prevalence of both famine and plague, almost throughout the year.

Section XII.—Notice of Post Office Officials.

Mention of Officers of the Post Office.

62. I have much pleasure in bringing to the notice of Government the valuable services rendered by Mr. H. M. Kisch, as the delegate of the Indian Post Office at the Washington Congress. Mr. Kisch has already received the special thanks of Government for the excellent work done by him on this occasion, but it is right that his name should also be mentioned here. Mr. Kisch was accompanied to Washington by Mr. Doran, Assistant Director-General, in the capacity of Secretary, and has reported in the highest terms of the assistance received by him from that officer. I have also much pleasure in bringing to the notice of Government the name of Mr. P. Sheridan, Postmaster-General, Punjab, for his successful organization and management of the postal arrangements for the various expeditions on the frontier, and with his name the names of Mr. W. T. vanSomeren, C.I.E., Chief Superintendent with the Tirah Expedition, of Mr. H. C. Sheridan, Superintendent in charge of the arrangements with the Malakand Field Force, and of Mr. C. J. Stowell, Superintendent with the Mohmand Field Force. All these officers also have already received the thanks of Government, but, in accordance with the usual practice, are mentioned again in the Annual Report. I also wish to place before Government the name of Mr. Owens, Presidency Postmaster of Calcutta, for his success in carrying out the novel scheme of a continuous delivery in that city, and the name of Babu Profulla Chandra Banerji, officiating Deputy Postmaster-General, Eastern Bengal, for his energy and good work in dealing with the difficulties caused by the great cyclone of October 1897, in the Chittagong District. The name of Rai Bahadur Daulat Ram, C.I E., also deserves prominent mention. During the last two years he has had special anxieties and difficulties to contend with in the management of the Kalka-Simla service, chiefly owing to the prevalence of famine prices, and his management has never been more successful. He received the distinction of a Companionship of the Indian Empire on the occasion of Her Majesty's Jubilee, in recognition of his long and meritorious work while in charge of this line. The services of the following officers also, who have been mentioned by heads of circles, deserve special recognition:—Mr. L. Byrne, Superintendent of the Lahore Division of the Railway Mail Service, upon whom very onerous duties devolved in connection with the postal arrangements for the various frontier expeditions; Mr. A. Bean and Mr. A. B. Thompson, Postal Superintendents with the Tirah Expedition; Mr. Appleby, at first Base Postmaster for the Malakand Field Force and afterwards an officiating Superintendent with that Force; Mr. Cama, at first Inspector and afterwards Superintendent with the Malakand Field Force; Lala Bhagwandas, Base Postmaster for the Tirah Expedition; Mr. G. O. Hart, Assistant Superintendent, Railway Mail Service, for his courage and determination in getting through the mails on the Eastern Bengal Railway after the earthquake of June 1897, and Babu Rash Bihari Das, postmaster of Shillong, for his promptitude in making arrangements for carrying on the work of the office in a temporary building, the post office having been entirely destroyed by the earthquake.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient Servant,

A. U. FANSHAWE,

Director-General of the Post Office of India.

Besides the 306 cases shown above, there were 53 cases in which offences were apparently established against postal servants, but in which no punishment was imposed owing to the cases not being concluded or to the death or escape of the offenders.

Column 2.—These figures represent the net proceeds of the sale of ordinary postage stamps after deducting discount to vendors,

Column 3.—The great differences observable in this column are due mainly to changes of system in the treatment of official correspondence, which was charged at full letter rates up to 1865-66, at the same rates as ordinary correspondence (letters, packets, etc.) from that year to 1872-73, and afterwards at a low privileged letter rate of one anna for 10 tolahs (about 4 oz.).

Column 8. The figures in this column show the revenue undisturbed by the changes of system in respect of official correspondence mentioned in the note regarding column 3.

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to further amend the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 20th January, 1899:—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to further amend the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed hereto.

From High Court, Calcutta, No. 724, dated 19th March, 1898 [Paper No. 1].
Telegram from Government, Madras, dated 20th March, 1898 [Paper No. 2].
Telegram from Government, Bombay, No. 2162, dated 19th March, 1898 [Paper No. 3].
From Government, Bombay, No. 4979, dated 20th July, 1898, and enclosures [Papers No. 4].
From Government, Bengal, No. 1695-J., dated 18th March, 1898, and enclosure [Papers No. 5].

2. In connection with clause 3 of the Bill, we have considered a suggestion that a person should not be appointed from outside to act as Chief Judge of a Presidency Small Cause Court where a Judge already in the Court is legally qualified to do so. As a general rule, no doubt, a Judge already in the Court, if legally qualified, would be the proper person to officiate for the Chief Judge during the latter's absence; but we feel that occasions might arise where the only Judge legally qualified to fill the place of Chief Judge might be a person whom it would be undesirable to appoint over the heads of his seniors on the Bench; and we have, therefore, made no change in clause 3.

3. We have added to the Bill a fifth clause making an amendment in section 13 of the Act which follows upon that of section 4 proposed by clause 2 of the Bill.

4. The publication ordered by the Council has been made as follows :—

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 20th January, 1899:—

NO. I OF 1899.

THE INDIAN PETROLEUM BILL.

CONTENTS.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the importation, possession and transport of petroleum and other substances.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the importation, possession and transport of petroleum and other substances; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preliminary.

Short title, commencement and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Petroleum Act, 1899; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

(3) Sections 1 to 3, section 25, and all the provisions of this Act in so far as they relate to dangerous petroleum and the importation of petroleum, extend to the whole of British India. The rest of this Act extends only to such local areas as the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, direct.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "petroleum" includes also—

(i) the liquids commonly known by the names of rock oil, Rangoon oil, Burma oil, paraffin oil, mineral oil, kerosine, petroline, gasoline, benzoline, benzine and benzol;

(ii) any inflammable liquid which is made from petroleum, coal, schist, shale, peat or any other bituminous substance, or from any product of petroleum; and

(iii) any liquid, or viscous mixture having in its composition any of the liquids aforesaid;

but it does not include any oil ordinarily used for lubricating purposes and having its flashing point at or above two hundred degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer:

(b) "dangerous petroleum" means petroleum having its flashing point below seventy-six degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer:

Provided that, when all or any of the petroleum on board a ship, or in the possession of a dealer, is declared by the master of the ship or the consignee of the cargo, or by the dealer, as the case may be, to be of one uniform quality, the petroleum shall not be deemed to be dangerous, if the samples selected from the petroleum have their flashing points, on an average, at or above seventy-three degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer, and if no one of these samples has its flashing point below seventy degrees of that thermometer:

(c) to "import" means to bring into British India by sea or land:

(d) to "transport" means to remove within British India from one place to another:

(e) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act: and (f) "ship" includes anything made for the conveyance by water of human beings or property.

Matters supplemental to definitions.

3. (1) The "flashing point" of petroleum means the lowest temperature at which the petroleum yields a vapour which will furnish a momentary flash or flame when tested in accordance with the directions in the first schedule with an apparatus which has been stamped and certified as provided by this Act within a period of five years immediately preceding the date on which the apparatus is used for the testing, and after the corrections (if any) which the certificate declares are to be applied to the results of the testing, have been made. [4 (1), (2).]

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the definitions of "import" and "transport," the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare—

(a) that petroleum imported into the Province from any part of British India, by sea or across intervening territory not being part of British India, shall, for all or any of the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be transported; and

(b) that petroleum transported into the Province from any place in British India shall, for all or any of those purposes, be deemed to be imported; and thereupon the provisions of this Act and of the rules made under this Act, with respect to transport and import, respectively, shall apply to petroleum so imported or transported.

Power to vary tests and prescribe new tests.

4. (1) The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, alter or add to the first schedule by laying down new or varied tests and directions for preparing and using them; and, after the issue of any such notification as aforesaid, the reference in section 3, sub-section (1), to the first schedule shall be construed as referring to the said schedule as so altered or added to for the time being. [4 (3).]

(2) The Governor General in Council may, in like manner, lay down special tests and issue special instructions in respect of the testing of any substance other than petroleum to which the whole or any portion of this Act may be applied in exercise of the power conferred by section 22, and for which the tests in the first schedule are unsuitable. [New.]

[4 (4).] X of 1897. (3) The provisions of section 23 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, shall apply to notifications under this section as if they were rules or orders required to be made after previous publication.

Dangerous Petroleum.

[5.] 5. (1) No quantity of dangerous petroleum exceeding forty gallons shall be imported or transported or kept by any one person or on the same premises, except under, and in accordance with the conditions (if any) of, a license from the Local Government granted as next hereinafter provided.

Dangerous petroleum in quantities exceeding forty gallons.

(2) Every application for such a license shall be in writing in the prescribed form, and shall contain the prescribed particulars.

[6.] 6. No quantity of dangerous petroleum equal to, or less than, forty gallons shall be kept or transported without a license:

Dangerous petroleum in quantities not exceeding forty gallons.

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply in any case when the quantity of the petroleum kept by any one person or on the same premises, or transported, does not exceed three gallons, and the petroleum is placed in separate glass, stoneware or metal vessels, each of which contains not more than a pint and is securely stopped.

[7.] 7. Dangerous petroleum—

Vessels containing dangerous petroleum to be labelled.

(a) which is imported and is kept at any place after seven days from the date of its importation, or

(b) which is transported, or

(c) which is sold or exposed for sale, shall be contained in vessels having attached thereto labels in conspicuous characters stating the description of the petroleum, with the addition of the words "highly inflammable" and with the addition,—

(d) in the case of a vessel kept, of the name and address of the consignee or owner;

(e) in the case of a vessel transported, of the name and address of the sender; and;

(f) in the case of a vessel sold or exposed for sale, of the name and address of the vendor.

Petroleum generally.

[New.] 8. (1) The Governor General in Council may make rules to carry out the purposes and objects of this Act.

Power for Governor General in Council to make rules.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for the granting of licenses to transport petroleum from any part of British India to any other part of British India in cases in which such licenses are by law required. [11 (3).]

9. (1) The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may make rules to regulate the importation of petroleum and the granting of licenses to possess or to transport petroleum within the Province in cases in which such licenses are by law required. [8 and 11 (1), (2).]

Power for Local Government to make rules.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

(a) determine the ports at which alone petroleum may be imported; [8 (1) (a).]

(b) provide for ascertaining the quantity and description of any petroleum on board any ship; [8 (1) (b).]

(c) determine the places at which, and the conditions on and subject to which, petroleum may be discharged into boats, landed, transhipped or stored; [8 (1) (c).]

(d) provide for the selection by an officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf, and for the delivery to him, either after or before petroleum has been landed, of samples of all petroleum landed or intended to be landed; [8 (1) (d).]

(e) provide, in the case of each consignment which is stated to be of one uniform quality, for the number of samples to be selected, and for the averaging of the results of the testing of those samples; [8 (1) (e).]

(f) provide, where the results of the testing of the samples raise a doubt as to the uniformity of the quality of the petroleum in any such consignment, for the division of the consignment into lots, and for the selection and testing of samples of each lot, and for the treatment of the lot in accordance with the results of the testing of those samples; [8 (1) (f).]

(g) fix fees for the sampling and testing of petroleum; [8 (1) (g).]

(h) fix fees for the storage of petroleum unless a body of port commissioners or other like body is empowered in that behalf; [8 (1) (h).]

(i) define, with respect to any petroleum produced within the Province, the limits of the places in which such petroleum is to be refined; [8 (2) (a).]

(j) provide for the testing at or near those places of petroleum so produced; [8 (2) (b).]

(k) prevent the removal from those limits, otherwise than under the provisions of this Act applicable to dangerous petroleum, of petroleum so produced which has not satisfied the prescribed tests;

(l) prescribe the authority by which licenses to possess or to transport petroleum may be granted;

(m) fix the fee to be charged for any such license;

(n) limit the quantity of petroleum to be covered by any such license;

(o) prescribe the conditions which may be inserted in any such license;

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

TESTING.

(See section 3.)

I.—Nature of the Test-apparatus.

The apparatus consists of the following parts :—

(1) the oil-cup ;

(2) the cover, with slide, test-lamp, and clockwork arrangement for opening and closing the holes in the cover and for dipping the test-flame;

(3) the water-bath or heating vessel ;

(4) the tripod stand with jacket and spirit-lamp for heating the water-bath ;

(5) the thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil in the oil-cup ;

(6) the temperature for indicating the temperature of the water in the water-bath ;

(7) the thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil before it is poured into the oil-cup ;

(8) the dropping bottle or pipette for replenishing the test-lamp ; and

(9) a barometer standardised at the Meteorological Office of the Province or at any other place appointed by the Local Government.

The oil-cup is a cylindrical flat-bottomed vessel made of gun-metal or brass, and tinned or silvered inside. A gauge is fixed to the inside of the cup to regulate the height to which it is to be filled with the sample under examination.

The cup is provided with a close-fitting overlapping cover, which carries the thermometer, the test-lamp and the adjuncts thereto. The test-lamp is suspended upon two supports by means of trunnions, which allow it to be easily inclined to a particular angle and restored to its original position. The socket in the cover, which is to hold a round bulb thermometer for indicating the temperature of the oil during the testing operation, is so adjusted that the bulb of the latter is always inserted in a definite position below the surface of the liquid.

The cover is provided with three holes, one in the centre and two smaller ones close to the sides. These are closed and opened by means of a pivoted slide. When the slide is moved so as to uncover the holes, the suspended lamp is caught by a projection fixed on the slide, and tilted in such a way as to bring the end of the spout just below the surface of the lid. As the slide moves back so as to cover the holes, the lamp returns to its original position. Upon the cover, in front of and in a line with the nozzle of the lamp, is fixed a white bead, the diameter of which presents the size of the test-flame to be used.

The water-bath or heating vessel is so constructed that, when the oil-cup is placed in position in it, an air-space or air chamber intervenes between the two; consequently, in applying the test under ordinary circumstances, the heat is transmitted gradually to the oil from the hot water through the air-space. The water-bath is fitted with a socket for receiving a long bulb thermometer, to indicate the temperature of the water. It is also provided with a funnel, an overflow-pipe and two handles.

The water-bath rests upon a tripod stand, which is fitted with a copper cylinder or jacket, so that the bath is surrounded by an enclosed air-space, which retains and regulates the heat. One of the legs of the stand serves as a support for a spirit-lamp, which is attached to it by a small swing bracket.

The clockwork arrangement, by which during the operation of testing the slide is withdrawn, and the test-flame dipped into the cup and raised again as the slide is replaced, is provided with a ratchet key for setting it in action for each test, and with a trigger for starting it each time that the test-flame is applied.

II.—Directions for drawing the Sample and preparing it for testing.

1. Drawing the sample.—In all cases the testing officer or some person duly authorised by him shall personally superintend the drawing of the sample from an original unopened tin or other vessel.

An opening sufficiently large to admit of the oil being rapidly poured or cyphoned from the tin or other vessel shall be made.

Two bottles, each of the capacity of about forty fluid ounces, are to be filled with the oil. One of these, the contents of which is intended to be preserved for reference in case of need, is to be carefully corked, the cork being well driven home, cut off level with the neck, and melted sealing-wax worked into it. The other bottle may be either stoppered or corked.

2. Preparing the sample for testing.—About ten fluid ounces of the oil, sufficient for three tests, are transferred from the bottle into which the sample has been drawn to a pint flask or bottle, which is to be immersed in water artificially cooled until a thermometer, introduced into the oil, indicates a temperature not exceeding 50° Fahrenheit.

III.—Directions for preparing and using the Test-apparatus.

1. Preparing the water-bath.—The water-bath is filled by pouring water into the funnel until it begins to flow out at the overflow-pipe. The temperature of the water at the commencement of each test, as indicated by the long bulb thermometer, is to be 130° Fahrenheit, and this is attained in the first instance by mixing hot and cold water, either in the bath or in a vessel from which the bath is filled, until the thermometer which is provided for testing the temperature of the water gives the proper indication; or the water is heated by means of the spirit-lamp (which is attached to the stand of the apparatus) until the required temperature is indicated.

2. Preparing the test-lamp.—The test-lamp is fitted with a piece of cylindrical wick of such thickness that it fills the wick-holder, but may readily be moved to and fro for the purpose of adjusting the size of the flame. In the body of the lamp, upon the wick, which is coiled within it, is placed a small tuft of cotton wool, moistened with petroleum, any oil not absorbed by the wool being removed. When the lamp has been lighted, the wick is adjusted by means of a pair of forceps until the flame is of the size of the bead fixed on the cover of the oil-cup; should a particular test occupy so long a time that the flame begins to get smaller, through the supply of oil in the lamp becoming exhausted, three or four drops of petroleum are allowed to fall upon the tuft of wool in the lamp from the dropping bottle or pipette provided for that purpose. This can be safely done without interrupting the test.

3. Filling the oil-cup.—The oil-cup having been previously cooled, by placing it bottom downwards in water at a temperature not exceeding 50° Fahrenheit, is to be rapidly wiped dry, placed on a level surface in a good light, and the oil to be tested is poured in very slowly, without splashing, until its surface is level with the point of the gauge which is fixed in the cup. The round bulb thermometer is inserted into the lid of the cup, care being taken that the projecting rim of the collar touches the edge of the socket; the test-lamp, prepared as already described, is placed in position, and the cover is then put on to the cup and pressed down so that its edge rests on the rim of the cup.

4. Application of the test.—The water-bath, with its thermometer in position, is placed in some locality where it is not exposed to currents of air, and where the light is sufficiently subdued to admit of the size of the entire test-flame being compared with that of the bead on the cover. The cup is carefully lifted without shaking it, and placed in the bath, the test-lamp is lighted, and the clockwork wound up by turning the key. The thermometer in the oil-cup is now watched, and, when the temperature has reached 56° Fahrenheit, the clockwork is set in motion by pressing the trigger.

If no flash takes place, the clockwork is at once rewound and the trigger pressed at 57° Fahrenheit, and so on, at every degree rise of temperature, until the flash occurs, or until a temperature of 95° Fahrenheit has been reached.

If the flash takes place at any temperature below 77° Fahrenheit, the temperature at which it occurs is to be recorded. Two fresh portions of the sample are then to be successively tested in a similar manner and the results recorded. If no greater difference than 2° Fahrenheit exists between any two of the three recorded results, and if in no instance the flash has taken place within eight degrees of the temperature at which the testing is commenced, each result is to be corrected for atmospheric pressure as hereafter described, and the average of the three corrected results is the flashing point of the sample. In the event of there being a greater difference than 2° Fahrenheit between any two of the results, while in no instance has the flash taken place within eight degrees of the temperature at which the testing was commenced, the series of tests is to be rejected, and a fresh series of three similarly obtained, and so on, until a sufficiently concordant series is furnished, when the results are to be corrected and the average taken in the manner already described.

If, however, a flash has occurred at or below 64° when the test is applied in the manner above described, the next testing shall be commenced ten degrees lower than the temperature at which the flash had been previously obtained (that is to say, at 54° or thereunder), and this procedure shall be continued until the results of three consecutive tests do not show a greater difference than 2° and until a flash has not occurred in any of the three tests within eight degrees of the temperature at which the testing is commenced: Provided always that, if at the commencement of the series of tests a flash has occurred on the first application of the test-flame at 56°, and if a flash has also occurred on the first application of the flame in each of three successive tests in which, thereupon, the test-flame is first applied at 46° as above directed, the testing officer shall certify that the petroleum has a flashing point below 47°, and the sample shall be reported dangerous.

If a temperature of 76° Fahrenheit has been reached without a flash occurring, the application of the test-flame is to be continued at every degree rise of temperature until a temperature of 95° Fahrenheit has been reached. If no flash has occurred up to this point, and if the petroleum is declared to be imported subject to the provisions of the Act, the tests shall not be continued, and the testing officer shall certify that the petroleum has a flashing point over 95° and is not dangerous. But, if the petroleum is oil ordinarily used for lubricating purposes and is declared to have its flashing point at or above 200° or is oil to which a notification of the Local Government exempting it from the operation of the Act will be applicable in the event of the flashing point being found to be at or above 120°, the test shall be continued as follows:—The oil-cup is to be removed from the water-bath, and the temperature of the water in the water-bath is to be reduced to 95° Fahrenheit by pouring cold water into the funnel (the hot water escaping by the overflow-pipe). The air-chamber is then to be filled to a depth of 1½ inches with water at a temperature of about 95° Fahrenheit, the oil-cup is to be replaced in the water-bath and the spirit-lamp attached to the water-bath is to be lighted and placed underneath. The test-flame is then to be again applied, from 96° Fahrenheit, at every degree rise of temperature as indicated by the thermometer in the oil-cup until a flash takes place or until a temperature of 200° Fahrenheit or 120° Fahrenheit, as the case may be, has been reached. If during this operation the test-flame appears to diminish in size, the lamp is to be replenished in the manner prescribed at (2) without interrupting the test.

If a flash occurs at any temperature between 76° and 200° Fahrenheit, the temperature at which it occurs, subject to correction for atmospheric pressure, is the flashing point of the sample.

In repeating a test a fresh sample of oil must always be used, the tested sample being thrown away, and the cup must be wiped dry from any adhering oil and cooled, as already described, before receiving the fresh sample.

5. Correction for atmospheric pressure.—As the flashing point of an oil is influenced by changes in atmospheric pressure to an average extent of 1·6° Fahrenheit for every inch of the barometer, a correction of the observed flashing point may become necessary. The height of the barometer must therefore be determined at the time of making the test for the flashing point. The true height of the barometer for the purpose of the test shall be considered to be the height of the column of mercury measured at 32° Fahrenheit, which is supported by the air pressure at the time of the experiment; that is, the actual height of the barometer at the time of observation duly corrected for any error of the instrument and for its temperature, if necessary. For the purpose of applying the correction to the flashing point of the oil obtained by the test, a table is appended to this schedule giving the flashing points of oils ranging from 65° to 80° Fahrenheit, under pressure ranging from 27 to 31 inches of mercury.

The table is used in the following manner:—

Example.—An oil has given a flashing point of 71°, the barometer being at 28·6 inches; take the nearest number to 71° in the vertical column headed 28·6. This number is 70·8. Substitute for this the number in the same horizontal line in the column headed 30 (the normal height of the barometer). The substituted number, that is, the true flashing point of the oil, is 73°.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

ENACTMENTS REPEALED.

(See section 25.)

Year.	Number.	Short title.	Extent of repeal.
1886	XII	The Petroleum Act, 1886 . . .	The whole.
1890	XIV	The Petroleum Act (1886) Amendment Act, 1890.	Ditto.
1891	XII	The Repealing and Amending Act, 1891 .	So much as relates to Act XII of 1886.
1897	XIV	The Indian Short Titles Act, 1897 .	So much as relates to Act XIV of 1890.
1898	VII	The Petroleum Act, 1898 . . .	The whole.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS is in the main a Consolidation Bill, which is intended to repeal and reproduce three Acts entirely and parts of two others. In so far as it is an amending measure, the changes proposed are based upon the following considerations.

2. There are other illuminant or inflammable substances which require regulation on the same lines as petroleum and its compounds, but are beyond the reach of the law as it now stands. Carbide of calcium, for instance, is becoming a common illuminant; but it is not in itself inflammable, although the gases generated by it are dangerously so, and, being a solid, it cannot be brought within the purview of the present Act—the Petroleum Act, 1886—by means of a notification under section 23 thereof. The language of that Act has, therefore, been widened so as to make it capable of application to carbide of calcium and other substances which may hereafter be brought into use in this country and which it may be desirable, in the public interest, to control by including them in the same category as petroleum.

3. New and improved tests for different substances are from time to time devised. By the Petroleum Act, 1898, an amending measure, power was accordingly taken to prescribe, by means of alterations of, or additions to, the schedule to the Act of 1886, new and varied tests and directions for preparing and using them; and it is now proposed to extend this power so as to provide for the laying down independently of special tests and the issue of special instructions in the case of other substances for which the scheduled tests are altogether unsuitable.

4. The opportunity has been taken to make an addition to section 10 of the Act—see clause 11 of the Bill—with the object of enabling the Government to exempt from the restrictions as to possession and transport petroleum when transported in such particular manner and under such particular conditions as may be set forth in the exempting notification. Experience has shown that some provision of this kind is desirable.

5. The remaining alterations incorporated in the Bill are of a formal character and intended merely to improve and simplify the language and contents generally of the existing Act. They appear to require no detailed explanation.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, January 7th, 1899.

The cold weather storm which was the chief feature of the weather of the last three days of the previous week lay over South and Central Bengal at the beginning of the week under review. It advanced eastwards during the next 24 hours and completely filled up. It was a comparatively important disturbance in its last stage of existence and occasioned only very light local showers in East Bengal, Assam and Upper Burma. Whilst the previous storm was breaking up in North-Eastern India a disturbance was quickly formed in Berar and the Central Provinces. This drifted rapidly eastwards through Chota Nagpur and the neighbouring districts, on the 3rd into Bengal, where it filled up before the morning of the 4th. Fairly general rain due to the disturbance fell in the Gangetic Plain on the 3rd, and Bengal on the 4th and light to moderate snow in the eastern half of the North-West Himalayas. Weather was fine and dry over the whole of the Indian area on the 5th, except for a few local thunder showers in Upper Burma and Bengal. An important change however occurred during the day in Berar and the Central Provinces. A depression similar in character to the previous was generated rapidly in that area before the morning of the 6th, and transmitted eastwards to Chota Nagpur and South-West Bengal during the succeeding 24 hours. It was a much more influential disturbance than its immediate predecessor and gave light to moderate rain over the greater part of North-Eastern India, Bundelkhand and Baghelkhand and some snow in the North-Western Himalayas. Weather was throughout the week fine with clear or lightly clouded skies over the area outside the influence of the disturbances of the week.

The chief feature of the weather of the week was the prevalence of very low temperature both by day and night over the large area including Baluchistan, the Punjab, Sind, Rajputana, Gujarat, Central India and the North-Western Provinces. The deficiency was throughout the week most marked in Baluchistan and the North-Western Himalayas where it ranged between 7° and 18°.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, January 1st.—Pressure was practically unchanged in the Peninsula and was in moderate to considerable defect in that area. It had increased to a slight extent in North-Western India and Burma, and was below the normal by amounts ranging between ·02" and ·09". Pressure had recovered briskly to rapidly in Bihar and the eastern districts of the North-Western Provinces and of Central India, and the depression which lay over Bihar on the previous day had advanced into Bengal where the barometer had fallen slightly to briskly. Pressure was a sixth of an inch in defect of the normal in the area of depression in South and Central Bengal. Winds were anti-cyclonic in North-Western and Central India, feebly cyclonic in Bengal, south-easterly in the Deccan and generally north-easterly in Southern India, and the west coast districts. They were very light and irregular in Burma. Skies were more or less heavily clouded in Bengal and Assam, moderately clouded in Southern India and clear over the remainder of the country. Light snow had fallen at Simla and Chakrata and some light local rain showers in South Bengal and Assam. Temperature had increased rapidly in North-Eastern India in front of the depression and was during the preceding 24 hours 8° in excess of the normal in Orissa, 6° in Chota Nagpur, 3° in Bengal, due chiefly to much higher night temperature than usual. Temperature was practically unchanged in Berar, the Central Provinces and the Deccan and continued in moderate to large excess over that area. The cool wave in the rear of the depression had caused a very rapid reduction of temperature in Rajputana, Central India and the North-Western Provinces, and the mean temperature during the past day averaged 7° below the normal in the Punjab, Sind and Gujarat, 6° in Rajputana, 2° in Central India and 1° in the North-Western Provinces. Temperature had increased in Baluchistan and the Upper India hills, but was still very largely below the normal.

Monday, January 2nd.—The pressure changes of the previous 24 hours were large and unimportant over by far the greater part of the country. Pressure had increased briskly to rapidly in North-Eastern India and Upper Burma, and the depression in South and Central Bengal on the 1st had filled up and disappeared. Pressure had given way briskly to rapidly in North-Western and Central India, Berar and the western half of the Central Provinces, and was in considerable to large defect over the whole of that area and in Baluchistan. A depression in which pressure was nearly two-tenths of an inch below the normal had formed quickly over Berar and the western and central districts of the Central Provinces during the past day. Pressure had increased slightly in the southern half of the Peninsula thus reducing the deficiency in that area. Northerly winds had set in over South Bengal. Winds had increased in Berar, the Central Provinces and the North Deccan where they were irregularly cyclonic in direction. They were light and irregular on the Madras Coast. Skies were moderately clouded in the Central Provinces and were clouding over in the North-Western Provinces and Bihar. Heavy rain had fallen at Colombo and some very light local showers in Bengal, Assam and Upper Burma. A brisk to rapid reduction of temperature had occurred over the North-Western Provinces, Central India, Chota Nagpur, Bengal, Orissa and Assam and was practically unchanged elsewhere.

Tuesday, January 3rd.—The barometric changes were again large over the greater part of the country. Pressure had increased briskly in Baluchistan and briskly to rapidly in North-Western India, Berar and the Central Provinces, and was in moderate to considerable defect over nearly the whole of that area. Pressure had, on the other hand, fallen briskly to rapidly in Chota Nagpur, South Bihar, West Bengal and the eastern districts of the North-Western Provinces, and was considerably to largely below the normal. The depression in Berar and the Central Provinces on the previous day was now passing through Chota Nagpur and the neighbouring districts. Pressure was stationary in Burma and the southern half of the Peninsula, and was below the normal to a moderate extent. Winds exhibited an irregular cyclonic circulation in the area of depression, but were generally light. Skies were overcast in the Gangetic Plain and Chota Nagpur and light to moderate showers had fallen in these areas. Pressure was largely in defect in the hill districts in North-Western India and weather was feebly disturbed with light to moderate snow in the Kumaon, Garhwal and Simla hills. Temperature was largely below the normal in North-Western and Central India by average amounts ranging between 5½° and 11° and very largely below in Baluchistan and the Upper India hills, the deficiency being exhibited as largely in the day as in the night temperature. The low temperature conditions had extended southwards to the Bombay Deccan where temperature of the past day was 3½° in defect. Temperature was on the other hand, 6° above the normal in Orissa, 4° in the Madras Deccan and 3° in the Madras Coast, due to high night temperature.

Wednesday, January 4th.—Pressure had increased briskly to rapidly in the Punjab, Rajputana, Central India, the Central Provinces, Chota Nagpur and the neighbouring districts of Bengal and Bihar, and was practically steady over the remainder of the Indian area. The depression in Chota Nagpur on the previous day had drifted eastwards and filled up. Pressure was in slight to moderate defect in Burma, Bengal, the Deccan, Southern India and the eastern half of the Central Provinces and normal in North Western and Central India. It was in moderate to considerable defect in Baluchistan and the Upper India hill districts. Pressure was highest at Ajmere and lowest at Colombo, and there was a difference of 0·286" between these two stations. Winds were fairly normal in direction and were strongest on the Kathiawar and Konkan coasts and in the Bombay Deccan. The air was unusually dry in Sind and Kathiawar, the lowest humidity at 8 A.M., being 15 per cent. at Rajkot. Skies were heavily clouded in the Gangetic Plain and Bengal and light to moderate showers had been received in the eastern districts of the North-Western Provinces, Bihar, Bengal and Assam. Light snow had again fallen at Mussoorie and Ranikhet. A large reduction of temperature had occurred in Berar and the Central Provinces and temperature now averaged from 4° to 11° below the normal in North-Western and Central India, Berar, the Central Provinces and the Bombay Deccan. It was 7° above the normal in Orissa, 4° in Chota Nagpur and Mysore, and 3° in the Madras Deccan. The temperature conditions were approximately normal in other districts.

Thursday, January 5th.—Pressure had given way to a slight extent in Baluchistan and North-Western India and was steady or had increased slightly over the remainder of the country. Pressure was now in considerable defect in Baluchistan and at the hill stations in North-Western India and practically normal elsewhere. The air circulation was similar in character to that of the previous day, except in the Deccan where winds were easterly. Skies were thickly clouded in Baluchistan, Kashmir and Bengal and were clear or lightly clouded over the remainder of the country. No rain had fallen beyond some local showers in Upper Burma and Bengal. Temperature had increased more or less rapidly in Baluchistan, North-Western and Western India, thus diminishing the deficiency in these areas. It had on the other hand decreased largely in Chota Nagpur and briskly in Orissa and North-Western Provinces. Temperature during the previous 24 hours was most deficient in the plains in Rajputana and Central India (each 9°) and most largely above the normal in Orissa (5°).

Friday, January 6th.—Pressure had increased briskly in Baluchistan and was now only in slight defect in that area. It had decreased briskly in the Punjab, Upper Sind and Rajputana and rapidly in Berar, Central India and the Western half of the Central Provinces. A closed depression of slight intensity had formed rapidly during the past day in the Central Provinces, and the distribution of pressure was similar in general character to that which obtained on the 2nd. Light irregular airs and calms prevailed in Upper India, the southern half of the Peninsula and Burma, and feeble cyclonic winds over the area of depression and the neighbouring districts. Skies had cleared in Baluchistan and clouded over in the Gangetic Plain and the greater part of Central India. Light showers of rain had fallen in Bundelkhand and Baghelkhand and light snow in the North-West Himalayas. Temperature was in slight to moderate excess of the normal in a belt running eastwards from the Bombay Deccan across the Bay to Burma and more or less below the average elsewhere. The deficiency was 10° in Baluchistan, 8° in Gujarat, 7½° in Sind, 6½° in Rajputana and 5° in the Punjab and was almost as large in the day as in the night temperature.

Saturday, January 7th.—The pressure changes were generally small except in the areas affected by the depressions. Pressure had increased rapidly in the area covered by the depression on the preceding day and fallen rapidly in Chota Nagpur, Bihar and South-West Bengal to which area it had been transferred during the previous 24 hours. Pressure was in considerable to large defect in the area of depression. The disturbance was hence, as on the previous day, of slight intensity. Winds tended to circulate cyclonically in North-Eastern India and were strong in South-West Bengal. Skies were overcast in North-Eastern India and fairly general rain had occurred in the eastern and central districts of the North-Western Provinces, Bihar, Chota Nagpur and the northern and central districts of Bengal. Snow storms had occurred in the eastern half of the North-West Himalayas. The temperature conditions were even more abnormal than on the previous day. Temperature was more or less largely below the normal over the whole of the Indian area, except in the Madras Deccan, Madras Coast, Chota Nagpur, Orissa and Burma in which it was in slight to considerable excess. The deficiency of temperature was more than 5° in Baluchistan, North-Western India, Central India and the Bombay Deccan and was absolutely greatest at Simla and Chakrata (18°) and Ranikhet and Murree (14°).

Temperature.—The temperature conditions of the week were very marked and unusual over by far the greater part of the country, due chiefly to the spread eastwards and southwards of the cool wave which followed in the rear of the cold weather storm of the last three days of the previous week. Temperature was throughout the week more or less largely below the normal in Baluchistan, Sind, Rajputana, the Punjab, Gujarat, Central India and the North-Western Provinces. The deficiency was on the whole largest in amount in Baluchistan and the hill districts of North-Western India where it varied between 7° and 18°, and was exhibited almost equally in both the day and night temperatures. Temperature was steadily in moderate to considerable excess of the normal in the Madras Deccan and the Madras Coast, and in large excess in Orissa. It was on the mean of the whole week practically normal in Burma, Assam, Bengal, the Central Provinces, Berar and South India and slightly below the normal in Bihar, the West Coast and the Bombay Deccan.

Remarkably low night temperatures were recorded in Baluchistan, the North-Western Himalayas and the West Punjab during the week.

The most noteworthy were as follows:—

Quetta	13°·3	" 3rd.
Chakrata	21°·8	" 7th.
Simla	23°·2	" 7th.

Rain.—The normal rainfall of the week does not exceed a few thousandths of an inch over by far the greater part of the country. Bihar, East and Deltaic Bengal, and the Assam Valley obtained light showers on the 1st from a cold-weather storm drifting eastwards through South and Central Bengal. A depression which originated in Berar and the Central Provinces on the 2nd and marched eastwards to Bengal gave light to moderate rain to the North-Western Provinces (excepting the western districts) on the 3rd and 4th, and to Bihar, Chota Nagpur, Deltaic and Central Bengal and Sikkim between the 3rd and 6th, and light to moderate snow in the North-Western Provinces Himalayas. The largest daily falls during this period were 1·75 inches at Korantadih, 1·68 inches at Partabgarh and 1·40 inches at Ghazipur. The disappearance of this disturbance was followed by the formation of another feeble disturbance in Berar and the Central Provinces on the 6th. It advanced along the same track and gave rain in practically the same districts as the previous depression on the 6th and 7th. The rainfall of the week hence occurred solely in Assam, Bengal, Bihar, Chota Nagpur, the whole of the North-Western Provinces (excepting the western districts), Central India East and the hill and central districts of the Punjab, and was more or less in excess in all these areas excepting Assam Surma, and the Central Punjab where it was even less than the small normal of the period. It was unusually abundant in Central Bengal, South Bihar and North-Western Provinces East, and East Submontane which obtained more than double their normal fall in January. The following gives data for the districts in which there was an excess of over an inch :—

SIMLA, the 12th January 1899.

T. W. HOLDERNESS,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 14th January.—Light scattered showers of rain fell in parts of the Carnatic and the adjoining districts, but none elsewhere. The water-supply is generally ample except in parts of the Deccan. Sowings still continue. The standing crops are generally in good condition, except in parts of the Deccan. The harvest outturn is almost normal. Pasturage is scarce in parts, but the fodder supply is generally sufficient. Cattle are in normal condition. Prices continue to fall, except in parts of the Deccan and the West Coast.

Bombay.—For week ending 18th January.—Rain is wanted for the late crops in parts of Poona, Ahmednagar, Satara and Shikarpur. The standing crops are withering in parts of Poona and Ahmednagar, and have been damaged by frost in all districts of Sind, and by rats, blight or frost, in parts of Ahmedabad, Ahmednagar, Bijapur and Dharwar. Harvesting of the early crops continues in three and of the late crops in five districts. Cotton-picking is progressing in parts of Khandesh and Kathiawar. Preparations for next season continue in five districts. Fodder is sufficient, except in parts of Sind. Agricultural stock is healthy. Prices have risen slightly in three and fallen in eleven districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 16th January.—Rain, though not general, fell in several districts during the week. The prospects of all the spring crops are favourable. Poppy is also promising. The winter rice crop is nearly all harvested, and threshing is now going on. Pulses and the earlier spring crops are being gathered. Sugarcane-pressing is in progress. There is no want of fodder anywhere. Prices of common rice continue practically stationary.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 18th January.—Light showers of rain fell in two districts, otherwise the weather has been clear and cold. The standing crops are flourishing. Sugarcane-pressing continues. Irrigation is being resorted to where necessary. Slight damage to crops, by frost, is reported from a few districts. Prospects are favourable. The market is full and the fodder supply sufficient. Prices are almost stationary.

Punjab.—For week ending 18th January.—Slight rain is reported to have fallen in Murree: but more is urgently needed throughout the Province. Pressing of sugarcane still continues. The spring sowings have been completed. Watering and weeding of crops are in progress. The outturn of sugarcane is said to be above the average in Sialkot. The condition and prospects of standing crops are generally reported to be good, but are below the average in Dera Ismail Khan and bad on unirrigated areas in Lahore. The rape and gram crops are being damaged by caterpillars in parts of Ferozepore. The condition of cattle is good to fair in all districts, except in parts of Dera Ismail Khan. Fodder is said to be sufficient in all districts, except in Delhi, Shahpur and in parts of Dera Ismail Khan. Prices, especially of wheat, are rising in Delhi, Sialkot and Shahpur, falling in Hissar and Dera Ismail Khan, and are unchanged elsewhere. Wheat is selling from 15 1/16 to 21, gram 21 to 24, barley 32, bulrush millet 20 to 26, maize 28 to 33, great millet 25 and rice 13 to 14 seers per rupee.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 17th January.—The weather is generally clear and very cold. Rain is wanted in Raipur and Bilaspur. The prospects of the spring crops are fair to good in all districts, except Saugor, Damoh, Chanda and Bilaspur, where they are poor to gloomy. The trade under this head shows a decrease of R1,980.

The total amount of the miscellaneous imports is R35,088 against R37,068.

General Remarks.

In 1896 when reporting on the trade of 1895, I was able to write most favourably on its rapid increase. Improved roads, increased interest, had materially raised the figures each successive year.

2. In the trade there was profit to our home manufacturers, profit to our Indian manufacturers and the means of a cash revenue to the Kashmir State.

3. This year in reporting on last year's trade, I regret to have to state that on the total value of the trade, and in almost every article of import and export there has been a heavy decrease.

4. From all appearance the Indian Yarkand trade is suffering from a rapid decline.

5. In view then of the future uncertainty of our trade with Chinese Turkistan, and the chance that the "open door" in that quarter may not always be as open as now, it is our duty to look for fresh fields.

6. In my opinion this is to be found in the direction of Tibet. A commercial invasion of that mystic country, with the rich provinces of Szo Chau Kansi and Shensi in China as objective, would I believe be profitable.

7. There are already some hopeful signs. The peasantry of Tibet are gradually losing their suspicious dislike of the trader from India. Between Ladakh and Tibet trade is busy to the few who are allowed to cross the border, and I am being constantly asked whether the wool trade used in carpet manufacture, etc., could not be increased.

8. Surely there is much to advocate a policy which should carry trade to South China, and I hope this trade report will at any rate be the means of drawing attention to Tibet and its possible use as a trade market.

G. C. TRENCH, Captain,
Assistant to the Resident in Kashmir for Leh.

Report on the trade between India and Chinese Turkistan, for the year ending the 31st March 1898.

Trade Statistics.

(1) There is no means of obtaining locally any reliable statistical information regarding our Central Asian trade. Once goods arrive in Yarkand from Ladakh, the greater portion is expedited to the different commercial centres of Khotan, Kashgar, Maralbashi, Aksu, etc., and no official record is kept by the Chinese Authorities of the quantity, and nature, of the wares thus distributed. With the assistance, however, of our traders, the two annexed tables have been prepared. The one contains information regarding the proportional demand for Indian goods in the principal cities of Chinese Turkistan, and the other gives information regarding the proportional supply goods from these same centres for export to Ladakh, whilst the notes in the "Remark column" deal with the present and prospective state of the market for the goods.

Falling off in the exports and imports.

(2) It is not here intended to make an accurate comparison of the trade of the year under report, with that of the previous. But, generally, it may be said that there has been a falling off in the imports as well as in the exports. The diminution in the former was not unexpected by the merchants, in view of the market having, in the spring of 1896, been over-stocked with Indian goods and of the consequent low prices. Another cause of the decrease may apparently be traced to the uncertainty of the Indian charas market: it is a well established fact that there is nothing that so depresses import trade as when charas sells badly in the Punjab. Charas being the chief export from Turkistan, to the same uncertainty may be ascribed the cause of the fall in the exports.

General remarks regarding present condition of Indian trade.

(3) Although there appears to have been a diminution of trade during 1897-98, yet there is no reason to anticipate that its injurious effects will be of a permanent nature. The capital invested, has, in no way, diminished; and the number of our traders has remained practically the same as during the previous year. The profits realized are estimated at 12½ per cent. per annum by the Hindus; and this, taking into account the fact that most of them trade with borrowed money on which interest varying from 6 to 9 per cent. is charged. The profits made by Mohamadans is said to be higher. This dividend of 12½ per cent. would appear to have been fairly well maintained during the last five years. Previous to this period, the profits were more considerable, amounting at times to 25 per cent. But despite this diminution, the market for Indian goods has grown in firmness. During the eighteen years of peace which the natives of Kashgaria have uninterruptedly enjoyed under the Chinese rules there can be no doubt that the wealth of the country has increased, and with it, the improved purchasing power of the people. With time, too, Indian goods have become known, and, unlike the epoch when our Central Asian-trade was in its infancy, they now find their way not only to the whole of the Alta Shahr (literally, six cities, viz., Khotan, Kargalik, Yarkand, Yangi Hissar, Kashgar and Maralbashi), but also to the Aksu District. The present attitude of the Chinese local authorities with respect to the Indo-Turkistan trade ought perhaps to be described as one of friendliness, a proof of which they have recently given in the re-opening of the Kugiar and Sanju roads.

The present demand for goods from India in the Chinese Turkistan Markets.

(4) The demand for goods from India for the year under report (especially during the latter portion of it) has been very fair; other skins, brocades, velvet, broad-cloth and coral selling at present exceptionally well. It is regrettable to notice that the things for which the market is good are generally not of English manufacture. The brocades are from Benares or from Lyons. The velvet and broad-cloth are "made in Germany."

Russian competition.

(5) A few facts regarding the position which Indian trade now occupies in relation to its Russian rival cannot fail to be of interest.

The demand for Russian goods is without doubt ever increasing. Cotton prints of Moscow manufacture, as cheap as they are varied and pretty, are very largely imported. The bazaars of every town are over-stocked with them, as well as with a multitude of other articles, amongst the most important of which may be mentioned lamps, candles, soap, petroleum, honey, sugar, sweetmeats, porcelain cups, tumblers, enamelled iron plates, matches, knives and silks. These articles, with few exceptions, could, but for the competition, be supplied from India. But we have gradually had to relinquish our position in favour of Russia, until at last our trade has had to confine itself chiefly to articles of which we are the sole producers, and in which there is no competition. This general rule has a few exceptions, the most important, as well as the most unexpected, of which is the English cotton goods.

The inequality of circumstances under which Russian and Indian trades are carried on in Kashgaria.

(6) The inequality of circumstances under which Russian and Indian trades in this commodity are carried on is most marked; and, needless to add, largely preponderates in favour of Russia. Owing to the quickness with which goods from Moscow can be exported to Kashgarh viâ trade routes which are practically open at all seasons, a Russian merchant can turn over his capital at least twice in the course of a year. Transport is moreover astonishingly cheap. Moscow goods are expedited to Kashgar by two different roads, the one viâ Kazan, Semipolatinsk and Vernoi, and the other viâ Transcaspia and Osh. The charges of the carrying company (Comptoir) at Vernoi are roubles 3 per pood (36 lbs.) from Moscow to that town. The carriage for the remaining distance to Kashgar is effected by means of camels, and cost 50 copeks for the same weight. The transport viâ the southern route is largely in the hands of another carrying company established at Samarkand, whose charges are roubles 2-60 copeks per pood from Moscow to Samarkand. The freightage thence by cart to Osh costs about 40 copeks per pood, whilst for the remaining distance to Kashgar, which is effected by means of ponies carrying at least 288 lbs., the expenses of transport amount to 80 copeks. The average cost per pood, or 0·44 maund, from Moscow to Kashgar is therefore roubles 3-65 copeks or R5 (supposing the rouble = 25*d*., and the rupees 16*d*.). A reduction in this freightage is anticipated, consequent on the opening to merchandise transport of the Samarkand-Andijan Railway, which will certainly take place during the current year. The average bounty given by the Russian Government on the export of different sort of cotton goods amounts to roubles 3-70 copeks which sum is more than sufficient to cover the costs of transport. In the near future, a further stimulus will probably be given to the Russian chintz trade by the encouragement which has systematically been afforded to the growth of cotton in the Caucasus and in Turkistan. The cotton yearly produced in the latter province is said to amount to over four million poods. The yield in the Ferghana District, which is appraised at 18 million roubles per year, is such as to have considerably increased the value of land, the cost of which in the surroundings of Margillan is estimated at roubles 300 per desiatine (113,067 square yards).

British cotton goods. Their value as a medium of exchange for charas.

(7) Now, under these most favourable circumstances for Russian trade, it is a curious fact that English cotton goods still sustain a competition. Can we claim superiority for these goods? There is not the slightest reason for thinking so. One would rather believe that amongst our exports, some of the most worthless cottons from the bazaars of India find their way to Yarkand. The same cottons sell, by reason of their exceeding cheapness, and are disposed of with little or no profit. Why are they then imported? Because of their value as a medium of exchange for charas, the chief article of export to India. Suppose a trader had purchased in Yarkand some charas, and had paid for it R100 in cash, and another trader had brought chintz, etc., with him from India which, plus carriage, had cost him the same amount. Even if the latter could not dispose of his prints, by taking payment in money, so as to cover his outlay, he would still make a better bargain for charas in using his goods as a medium of exchange, than could the first trader who had only money to offer. Hence the tenacity of the English cotton goods. If the above proposition needs a proof, it will be found in the fact that, with very few exceptions, the exporters of cotton-prints are our Hindus, and only such of our Muhammadan merchants as are engaged in the charas trade; whilst the other traders, Afghans and Badakhshis who abstain from traffic in that drug, seldom export cotton goods from India.

Trade between India and Russian Turkistan, via Ladakh and Kashgar.

(8) The trade between India and Russian Turkistan, carried on through Kashgar, merits at the best of times but little attention. This may especially be said to be the case with reference to the year 1897-98, when quarantine regulations on the Ferghana border have almost stopped the little communication there is. The Russian exports which go to Ladakh and Kashmir are very scarce, consisting merely of a few pieces of cloth known as shaitan-tari. The only goods from India which have, during the year under report, been sent to Ferghana in any quantity are coral, for which the market is invariably good. It is estimated that one-third of the amount of this commodity received from India are for consumption in Ferghana. As the duty is extremely high (roubles 180 per pood) doubtless the Russian customs find it extremely remunerative whenever they can levy it; there is no article in which contraband trade is so developed as in coral. It is estimated that fully one-half of the quantity imported into Russian territory is smuggled. The importation of English muslin is absolutely prohibited, but as this commodity is much liked, it also forms an item in contraband trade. Indigo, on which there is no duty, and tea used to be sent viâ Kashgar to Ferghana; but for the last two years their import has ceased, owing, it is said, to their having now followed, from India, the road viâ Persia, to Russian Turkistan. The cause of this deviation in favour of a circuitous route ought to be an interesting subject for investigation.

(9) A few samples of piece-goods of Russian, French, German, etc., manufacture, collected in the Yarkand Bazaar, are forwarded with this report, together with a list containing some particulars regarding prices, etc. (see Tables C and D).

1. Cotton (manufactured)—
(a) European—
Long cloth (lutta or khasa)	15	60	20	5	20	...	This material is selling well and is also largely used as a medium of exchange for charas. Present quantity in the Yarkand bazaar rather small. A sort of long cloth known as Mitkan khasa (see sample No. 56 of Table marked C) is largely imported from Russia and competes against the English long cloth.
Muslin	12	40	24	24	...	5	Market dull, and material can only sell at a profit when disposed of in exchange for charas. Since the restoration of the Chinese rule in Kashgaria, white muslin pugeris (an essentially Mohammadan headgear) have been gradually going out of fashion, especially amongst the lower classes, who have taken to wearing caps. The entry into Russian Turkistan of English muslins has, for the last three years, been prohibited. No Russian competition.
Nainu and Sainu gauze .	20	25	15	40	...	10	The supply for the year 1896-97 is not yet exhausted. Certain descriptions of Russian chintz (see Table C, samples Nos. 25, 20 and 30) compete against these goods.
Cotton prints (chintz) and "alwan."	35	50	10	5	Part		About 35 per cent. of the 1896-97 stock is still left. Russian competition extremely severe.
Dhoti	10	20	50	20	10	...	No competition. Out of the last two years' stock about 40 per cent. still unsold.
Handkerchiefs . . .	20	10	20	50	12	...	Handkerchiefs are also slightly imported from Russia. About 25 per cent of the present year's stock still remaining.

(b) Indian— Lungis	10	30	30	30	10	...	No competition. The present year's stock all exhausted. But about 40 per cent. of the 1896-97 stock still remaining. These were of a somewhat superior quality and did not suit the market.
2. Drugs and Medicines— Kashmir opium	...	...	...	...	...	...	A portion of the opium imported in 1896-97 is still in the market and cannot sell above par value. Little or none was imported during 1897-98.
Medicines	20	40	20	20	25	...	A sort of medicine known as "Sana" is now selling at 60 per cent. profit. No competition.
3. Dyeing Materials— Indigo	9	26	53	12	6	...	The demand has somewhat fallen since April 1897. There is no competition in this article. Previously Majenta crystals used to be imported from India, but they have been supplanted by Russian dyes.
4. Hides and skins— Other skins	18	2	40	40	16	...	Market at present specially good.
Goat and fox skins (manufactured).	16¾	25	16¾	41½	25	...	Since the last six years' goat skins have been cured locally, but the native goods are not much appreciated.
5. Silk (manufactured)— (a) Brocade of Benares	10	10	20	60	12	...	Present market good, and decidedly more active than in April 1897. The "real" and the "imitation" brocades are in equal demand.
(b) Brocade of Surat (real)	20	10	20	50	15	...	The 1897-98 stock almost sold out.
(c) Do. do. (imitation)	20	10	20	50	30	...	The 1897-98 stock almost sold out.
(d, Brocades, European	10	10	30	50	5	...	These are French goods and are imported in small quantities. See sample No. 9 of Table D.
(e) Velvet	25	5	20	40	30	...	Present market decidedly better than in April 1897. Velvets are largely of French and German manufacture (see samples 5, 6 and 7 of Table D). It is estimated that out of the 1897-98 stock, no less than 80 per cent. are foreign goods (an increase of 10 per cent. since last year). In their order of importance, the favourite colours are dark blue, green and dark red. Slight Russian competition.
(f) Atlas (satin)	40	30	10	20	6	...	Over 50 per cent. of this article is of French and German manufacture. Slight Russian and Chinese competition.

6. Spices	12	60	16	12	30	...	No competition.
7. Coral	5½	3½	49	42	15	...	Profits on the large corals are more than on the little ones.
8. Sugar (including sweetmeats)	20	80	...	...	20	...	The profits have somewhat fallen since April 1897 owing to severe Russian competition which has driven the Indian article out of the northern markets (Kashgar, Aksu, etc.).
9. Tea (Palampur)	8	32	32	28	15	...	The profits have diminished by about 10 per cent. since 1896-97. The Chinese brick tea is gaining in favour.
10. Wool (manufactured)—
(a) Broad cloth	40	20	10	30	15	...	About 70 per cent of these goods are of foreign, principally German, manufacture. The most favourite colours are black, indigo and green. See samples Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4 of Table D.
(b) Flannel	50	15	15	20	15	...	Generally of very inferior quality and in small demand. Favourite colour: white. See sample No. 8 of Table D which is of Dutch manufacture.

Drugs and medicines—
Charas	50	...	...	50	...	...	The profits on charas exported to India during 1897-98 cannot yet well be estimated. It is said, however, that 10 per cent. has been realized on the quantity that has, up to date (March 1898), been disposed of in the Punjab (circa ½ of total export). There are now about 4,000 maunds ready in Yarkand for export during the 1898-99 trading season. Probably an additional amount of 2,000 maunds will be bought up before the departure of the caravans in September. The present Yarkand prices are 40 per cent. less than in March 1897.
Carpets and Numdas	10	90	...	...	Par		These are exported to Ladakh and Kashmir as a partial medium for the transfer of capital to India. The Khotan prices have been fairly stationary.
Precious metals—
Gold	26[illegible]/3	73⅓	...	...	Par		The present ratio in Khotan between gold and silver is 1 : 27.
Silver	...	...	...	...	...	10	It is not expected that silver will be exported this year. This metal is now imported into Kashgar from Russia. The export for the year under report is estimated at Rs. 15,000.
Russian Rouble	...	...	...	...	Par (generally)		Russian roubles have, during 1897-98, been largely remitted (about Rs. 85,000 worth) to Bombay as a forced medium for the transfer of capital. This is a sign of depression in the export trade. The present value of the rouble and the rupee in Yarkand is respectively Tael 0·63 and Tael 0·38.
Raw silk	32	68	...	...	Par		The raw silk exported during 1897-98 realized little or no profit in India. This article will, as a forced medium for the transfer of capital, again be exported during the ensuing trading season.

INDIAN STAMP BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR JAMES WESTLAND moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Stamps be taken into consideration. He said:—" My Lord, Hon'ble Members will perhaps remember that on the 21st of March last I presented the Report of the Select Committee upon the Indian Stamp Bill, a consolidation of the law as it at present stands. I explained at that time the alterations which had been made by the Select Committee in the Bill as it was originally introduced, and it would perhaps be convenient to Hon'ble Members if I read the last paragraph of the statement I then made, as that paragraph will show the history of the Bill to the point at which we now take it up. This is what I then said:—

'There have been considerable modifications in these points of detail, which have been made in it as reported by the Select Committee. The Select Committee considered that in a matter so far-reaching, one in which people are so very largely concerned, it is not desirable that the law should be passed without giving some opportunity for further consideration. They have, therefore, in their report recommended that the measure has been so altered as to require republication, and they recommend that it should be republished in the Gazette of India. The date from which the Act will come into force, as shown in the Bill reported by the Select Committee, is the 1st of July next. I am afraid that it will not be possible to bring it into force by that date, because, even if the measure be passed at Simla, we shall have to put off the date of its coming into force for a sufficient time to enable the Local Governments to publish it and translate it into the various vernacular languages; but I think the Bill as it has been reported by the Select Committee may be considered to a very large extent a non-contentious measure, and it may possibly be open to the Council, even during the Simla session, to consider it and to pass it. That, however, is a matter we shall hereafter consider when we see what remarks are made with reference to it as now reported; but, inasmuch as we have met all the objections which were raised to it as first introduced, I think it may be possible, even though it is a commercial measure, to proceed with its consideration during the Simla session.'

" The measure was not taken up in the Simla session, and it now comes before the Council again at the point at which the Council left it on the 21st of March last. I therefore beg to move the motion that stands in my name. I have some amendments to propose, and I shall deal with these after the motion that the Report be taken into consideration is passed."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR JAMES WESTLAND said:—" I have some amendments to propose in the Bill as it at present stands. We have received only two communications regarding it, both of them coming from Madras. These communications refer to certain points of doubt which have arisen in the interpretation of the Bill. I think some of them are rather strained, but, as we desire to make the Bill perfectly clear on the points noted, the several amendments I propose are set before the Council with that object. They are all of one tendency, namely, to make it clear that in certain cases, where a doubt has been expressed as to whether an instrument of a certain character comes within a higher or a lower duty, it really comes within the lower duty. It will probably be convenient to the Council if I go through these amendments all together instead of explaining them one by one before they are taken up.

" The first is an amendment for altering the date at which the Bill comes into operation—from the 1st of July, 1898, to the 1st of July, 1899. The Bill itself provides that the Local Governments shall make translations of it for the convenience of the various Provinces and of their inhabitants. It therefore requires a certain time to elapse between the time the Bill passes and the time it comes into operation. We think it will be convenient and easy to have all these measures carried out before the 1st of July next, and we therefore take the 1st of July, 1899, as the date upon which the Bill will come into operation.

" The second amendment relates to the use of the word 'engrossed' as applied to stamps. In the Bill as reported on it was stated that an impressed stamp 'includes stamps engrossed on stamped paper.' The word 'engrossed' has a technical meaning among lawyers and represents a peculiar method of writing that does not apply to stamps. Stamps are generally engraved and occasionally embossed. It is proposed, therefore, to substitute for the words 'stamps engrossed on stamped paper' the words 'stamps embossed or engrossed on stamped paper.'

"The third amendment has reference to the definition of the word 'settlement.' There are two scales of duty which are provided for by the Act. One is a scale which refers to transfers, such as gifts or conveyances, and may be described as a one per cent. scale; the other is a scale which represents such documents as bonds and security bonds, and that is a half per cent. scale. The article in the schedule of stamps provides that to settlements shall be applied this lower scale of half per cent. A settlement is a kind of transfer, and any document which does not come within the definition of 'settlement,' being a conveyance or a gift of some kind, will necessarily have applied to it the one per cent. and not the half per cent. scale. So that, if our definition of the word 'settlement' is so set out that any particular document is excluded thereby from it, it will necessarily have to be stamped with the one per cent. duty instead of the half per cent. Now in the Madras Presidency it has been ruled that the use of the word 'distribution' in the definition of 'settlement' indicates that a settlement must necessarily be in favour of more than one person. It has consequently been ruled in that Presidency that if a settlement is made in favour of one person it is not a settlement within the meaning of the Act and must bear a one per cent. duty instead of the half per cent. which is levied for a settlement in the schedule. We propose to alter the definition of the word 'settlement' so as to prevent the exclusion from it of what is not an infrequent document—a settlement in favour of a single person. We have added, therefore, to the original definition of the word 'settlement' as it is taken from the old Act the following words—' or for the purpose of providing for some person dependent on him.' A 'person' of course includes also persons, and the consequence is that a settlement is made to include not only a document which has for its object the distribution of the property of the settlor, but of providing, whether by distribution or otherwise, for some person dependent on him.

"The fourth amendment refers to the stamp which is required on a certificate of sale given by a Civil or Revenue Court or Collector or other Revenue-officer. A single proprety is at such a sale sometimes put up in separate lots. The consequence is that the words inserted by the Select Committee for the purpose of defining the stamp-duty required, namely, the words 'in respect of each property sold,' are not quite clear. What the Select Committee intended was that they should regard each property separately put up as a subject for duty, and that the duty required should be levied in respect of each property put up as a separate lot and sold. The insertion of these words will make the definition intended by the Select Committee clearer.

"The fifth amendment refers to the duty required upon a gift. At present 'gift' comes under the one per cent. scale of duty, the same duty as is required in respect of a conveyance, but in order to prevent so high a duty being levied on a certain class of transactions which is liable to very frequent transfer, such, for example, as shares in a public company, or debentures issued by a public company, the words were inserted, a gift 'not being a settlement (which comes under the half per cent. duty) or a will (upon which no duty at all is required) or a transfer of shares' (upon which a smaller duty is required), but, if reference be made to the article referring to the duty which is levied upon transfers, it will be seen that there are other things besides transfers of shares which are entitled to this smaller rate of duty. We therefore, in order to prevent the application of the duty required upon a gift to the case of those other transactions, cut out the words 'of shares', and merely say the higher duty is required upon an instrument of gift not being a settlement or gift or transfer, without limiting this last expression to transfer of shares.

"The sixth amendment practically refers to the definition which we have given of an instrument of partition. It is stated that an instrument of partition includes an award or an order of a Court directing a partition. The object of this inclusion in the term 'instrument of partition on an award' was that it was found that as a matter of fact co-sharers proceeding to a partition of their property, instead of drawing up a partition deed and having it duly stamped, agreed to an award of partition being made, and the award of partition was stamped with the small stamp required for an award and not with that required for an instrument of partition. But it is very clear that if persons have an award of partition made and afterwards have an instrument of partition drawn up to carry out this award, they ought not to be made to pay duty twice over. There are similar provisions in the case of leases. A lease is defined to include an agreement to lease, but it is carefully provided that if the persons who execute an agreement to lease and put upon it the stamp-duty which is required for a lease, afterwards carry out the formal documents which complete that lease, they shall not pay the duty twice over, but shall pay upon the second instrument a mere duty of eight annas. We have applied this same kind of proviso to the case in which an award or decree of partition having been first properly stamped, afterwards an instrument of partition is drawn up in order to carry out the partition.

"The seventh amendment refers to the definition of powers-of-attorney. A specially small duty is levied upon powers-of-attorney which are executed for the sole purpose of effecting registration. The Registration Act provides that persons who proceed to the registering officer for the purpose of registration may under the cognizance of the registering officer effect certain other operations at the same time. They may, for example, pass the consideration money and have the fact attested by the registering officer. There is also a provision in the Registration Act which provides for the delivery of the documents to the registering person or to any other person to whom it has to be delivered in the presence of the registering officer. Now, if a person is authorised by a power-of-attorney to carry out the whole of these operations, it is a little doubtful whether the instrument which is so drawn up comes within the definition of a power-of-attorney 'executed for the sole purpose of procuring registration of one or more documents in relation to a single transaction.' We therefore propose in order to remove these doubts to indicate that the document bearing this smaller stamp may cover the whole of the transaction which takes place before the registering officer, by saying that the word 'registration' shall include every operation incidental to registration under the Indian Registration Act.

"The eighth amendment is a little more than a typographical correction. A reference was made to article 13 (b), whereas, as a matter of fact, the reference ought to be made to the whole of the article 13, and not only to a portion of it.

"The ninth amendment refers to the duty upon a proxy. A proxy is, of course, a power-of-attorney, and, unless we had a particular provision relating to it, it would have to be stamped as a power-of-attorney, but in order to provide for documents so frequently used for what may be called a mere incidental purpose, we have prescribed certain cases where a proxy may be used instead of a power-of-attorney and on which is paid a stamp-duty of one anna instead of eight annas or a rupee, which would be required if it was called a power-of-attorney. One of these cases is a proxy empowering any person to vote at any one meeting of a local authority, such as for example a district board or a municipal board. Now by an order which has been notified under the Stamp Act, it has been declared that this one-anna duty is sufficient in the case of a proxy which is given, not for empowering any person to vote at a meeting of a local board but empowering him to vote at an election of a local board, carried out under the law of the Local Government concerned. These elections do not involve meetings at all or they may not do so, and, if the article of the present Stamp Act, which in that respect is the same as the provision of the Bill, stood alone, a proxy given for that purpose would require an eight-anna stamp. We have, therefore, modified article 52 so as to show that a proxy bearing a one-anna stamp is sufficient not only for empowering any person to vote at a meeting, but also empowering any person to vote at an election. I may mention that the law as it at present stands applies this duty only to the case of a proxy given by a female. There is no particular reason why it should be limited to females, and there is no reason why we should levy a higher duty upon proxies given by males than those given by females.

"As to the tenth amendment the remarks which I made with reference to an instrument of partition apply. A proviso is to be added in exactly the same sense and which runs as follows :—

"Provided that, where an agreement to settle is stamped with the stamp required for an instrument of settlement, and an instrument of settlement in pursuance of such agreement is subsequently executed, the duty on such instrument shall not exceed eight annas.

"Its object is to prevent a double levy of duty upon what is practically a single transaction.

"The eleventh amendment is complementary to the fifth amendment, and it explains that the smaller duty levied upon a transfer of a certain description is equally applicable whether the transfer is made with or without consideration. If it were not for this explanation it might be considered that a transfer without consideration was a gift and had to bear the full one per cent. duty.

"The twelfth amendment refers to the stamp upon a transfer of a lease. The provision as it stands at present is that no duty whatever is required in the case of the transfer of a lease which is exempt from duty. I am advised by the Legislative Department that the meaning of these words would be that the document exempted was a transfer of a lease which is, by the provisions of this law itself, exempt from duty. We wish to extend this a bit, especially as there is a very large class of leases which are exempted from duty by executive notification but are not exempted by the law itself, namely, agricultural leases. We, therefore, omit the words 'which is' and the result of that omission is that the exemption from duty extends not only to transfers of leases which are by law exempt from duty but also to transfers of leases which may by executive notification be exempted from duty.

"These, my Lord, are all the amendments that I have to move, and if Your Excellency will permit me, I propose not to make a formal motion with reference to each of them.

"I may also mention that it is intended that the Bill should be brought up to be passed at the next meeting of the Council."

The following amendments were then put separately to the Council by His Excellency THE PRESIDENT and agreed to:—

(1) That in clause 1, for the figures "1898", in both places, the figures "1899" be substituted.

(2) That in clause 2, sub-clause (13) (b), for the word "engrossed" the words "embossed or engraved" be substituted.

(7) That in Article No. 48 of Schedule I, after the words "one rupee for each person authorized" the following be added, namely:—

PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (1882) AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to further amend the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882. He mentioned that he would move at the next meeting of the Council that the Bill be passed.

INDIAN CONTRACT ACT (1872) AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS said:—"With Your Excellency's permission I desire to say a few words before I move that the Indian Contract Act Amendment Bill should be referred to a Select Committee. That Bill was introduced by my Hon'ble friend the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in March last year, and in introducing it he explained the circumstances which led to its origin. Owing to his elevation to his present high office, an elevation on which I am sure we may congratulate him and his province, he can no longer take charge of the Bill in Committee, and it falls to my lot to take his place. During the past year we have received many criticisms on the Bill—many of them exceedingly useful criticisms. This, of course, is not the time to deal with those criticisms or to reply to them, but I think I may say that, while they suggest valuable amendments in points of detail, the weight of opinion is very decidedly in favour of the principle of the Bill, and it is only on the general principle of the Bill that I propose to offer any remarks to-day.

"As Hon'ble Members are aware, the subject of agricultural indebtedness and of money-lenders and their dealings with the poorer and more ignorant classes has long been engaging the attention of the Government. Opinions may differ—and may fairly differ—as to the nature of the remedies which we ought to adopt to meet an admitted evil, but an evil the magnitude of which undoubtedly differs very considerably in different parts of India. We have been urged to put stern restrictions on the alienation of land and to apply universally the provisions of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act. But the conditions of land-tenure and of the land-holding classes are so widely divergent in the different provinces of this great Empire that legislation which would be suitable and beneficial in one province would be unsuitable and prejudicial in another. Then we have been urged to extend to all classes the custom of damdupat, according to which interest on a loan can never exceed the principal. We have been urged to re-enact the Usury Laws, and we have been urged to give the Courts a discretion in all cases over the amount of interest to be recovered in judicial proceedings. After careful consideration we have rejected these suggestions. We have no wish to interfere with freedom of contract where the parties to a contract are really free and contract with each other on a footing of equality. We think that under those circumstances the parties can make their own contracts and arrangements much better than we can make them for them. How then does the case stand? On the one hand, the existing law sufficiently provides for the case of fraud; under the law as it stands a contract induced by fraud may be avoided at the instance of the party defrauded. On the other, we do not wish to interfere with the discretion of the parties where they are in a position to give a free and intelligent consent to the terms of their contract. If a man makes a bad bargain he must stick to it, and learn wisdom for the future. But then there is an intermediate class of cases for which we think the law ought to make further provision. There may be no fraud, but the relations between the parties to a contract may be such as that one of them is practically in the power of the other, and that power may be used to extort unfair terms. In that case there is no real freedom of contract. There is consent, it is true, but it is consent obtained by unfair pressure. To some extent this intermediate case is provided for by the existing law. Section 16 of the Contract Act of 1872 provides for the avoidance of contracts in certain specified cases where undue influence has been used. But the framers of that Act did not see fit to embody in the Act the general principle which underlies the particular cases which they specified. That Act has now been in force for more than a quarter of a century, and it has been found wanting. Experience has shown that the existing provisions have failed to meet the evils with which we are now confronted. We must therefore enlarge the powers of the Courts; and we propose now to enact the underlying principle, and to provide that, where the relations between the parties to a contract are such that one of the parties is in a position to dominate the other, and he uses his dominant position to impose unfair terms on the other, then the Court is to be empowered to open up the whole transaction, and either set it aside, or, if the parties cannot be restored to their original position, to see that right and justice is done. Of course the Court will have to be satisfied that such relations do subsist between the parties as to enable one of them to dominate the will and consent of the other; but when this is shown, we think that the Court ought to have a free hand to go behind the terms of the contract and to see whether the transaction is fair and reasonable or not.

"Now I wish to point out that in arming the Courts with these powers we are not really making a new departure. The principle we propose to enact is a familiar one in English Courts of Equity. I will not inflict upon Hon'ble Members a disquisition on English law, but with Your Excellency's permission I will cite a short extract from a well known and authoritative English text-book which I think accurately sums up the English law on the subject. I refer to the last edition of Leake on Contracts. Discussing the doctrine of undue influence, the learned author says (edition 3, page 554, citing the words of Lord Selborne's judgment) :—

'Agreements between persons in certain relative positions are treated in equity as presumptively made under an undue influence of one party upon the will of the other; and when the relative position of the parties is such as primâ facie to raise this presumption the transaction cannot stand, unless the person claiming the benefit of it is able to repel the presumption by contrary evidence proving it to have been in point of fact fair, just and reasonable.'

"Then after discussing various heads of undue influence such as contracts with reversioners, agreements between guardian and ward, solicitor and client and so on, the learned author sums up the English doctrine by saying that 'the same general principle applies to all the variety of relations in which dominion may be exercised by one person over another, as in the case of dealing with a person who is illiterate and ignorant of business and who has no independent adviser, or with a person who is under such pecuniary necessity as not to be a free agent.' I think this quotation is sufficient to show that we are not embarking on an unknown sea. We are merely investing our Courts with equitable powers which have long been possessed by English Courts. In the exercise of those powers our Courts will have the benefit of English decisions, not, of course, as binding on them, but as useful lights to mark out the way.

"I think, too, that this Bill may fairly be regarded as restoring to our Courts an ancient jurisdiction rather than as creating a wholly new one. At present the Courts are bound by the somewhat too narrow provisions of section 16 of the Indian Contract Act. Before that Act they had a freer hand. The time-honoured direction to Indian Courts, embodied in many Acts, was that, in all matters not provided for by positive enactment, they were to act 'according to justice, equity and good conscience.' We all know the practical effect of that direction. The Courts administered English law, free of course from any peculiarities or technicalities of local origin. Apart from the restrictions imposed by the Contract Act, our Courts would have been at liberty to apply and develope the English doctrine of undue influence, and this liberty under certain limitations we propose to restore to them.

"There is one other matter I wish to refer to. Hon'ble Members are doubtless aware that during the past year the subject of money-lenders and money-lending contracts has been exhaustively investigated by a strong Select Committee of the House of Commons. The Committee have reported unanimously, and have made various recommendations for strengthening the law. Many of their suggestions would be inapplicable to India and the conditions of Indian life. But I should like to quote their first and main recommmendation and to say a few words about it. The Committee report as follows:—

'17. After carefully considering the whole of the evidence and opinions, your Committee have arrived at the conclusion that the only effective remedy for the evils attendant upon the system of money-lending by professional money-lenders is to give the Courts absolute and unfettered discretion in dealing with these transactions.

'18. They therefore recommend that all transactions, by whatever name they may be called, or whatever their form may be, which are in substance transactions with persons carrying on the business of a money-lender, in the course of such business should be open to complete judicial review.

'19. That in all legal proceedings to enforce, or for any relief in respect of a claim arising out of, such transactions, the Court should have power to inquire into all the circumstances of such transactions from the first transaction up to the time of the judicial inquiry.

'20. That in such proceedings theCourt should have power to re-open any account stated in the course of such transactions, to direct that an account be taken upon the basis of allowance of such a rate of interest as shall appear to be reasonable, having regard to all the circumstances, and to make such order as the Court may think fit.

* * * * * * * *

'22. That a borrower from a money-lender should be enabled, notwithstanding any provision or agreement to the contrary, to apply to the Court at any time to redeem any security, or for relief on the part of himself and any other person who acts as surety, or otherwise, upon payment of the principal sum advanced and such interest as the Court may cender reasonable.

'23. That the discretion suggested should be exercisable by any Judge of the High Court or any Judge of a County Court.

'24. That from any decision given under these powers by the judicial authority, there should be no right of appeal by either party except by leave of the Court.

'25. That no transaction between a judgment-debtor and a judgment-creditor by way of a renewal of the loan should be valid so long as the judgment remains unsatisfied.'

"If Hon'ble Members will compare the recommendations of the House of Commons Committee with our present proposals, they will see that our proposals are considerably less drastric than those of the English Committee. We recognise that as Indian agricultural society is at present constituted, the money-lender is the capitalist, and an essential factor in it. We have no desire to eliminate or unduly harass the people who make loans to the agricultural and poorer classes. It is the abuses and excesses and not the legitimate use of the system which we wish to curb."

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS then moved that the Bill to amend the Indian Contract Act, 1872, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Rivaz, the Hon'ble Sir Griffith Evans, the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur Pandit Suraj Kaul, the Hon'ble Mr. Mehta, the Hon'ble Mr. Spence, the Hon'ble Mr. Rees and the mover.

The motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN PETROLEUM BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ moved for leave to introduce a Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the importation, possession and transport of petroleum and other substances. He said :—" The main object of the Bill which I ask leave to introduce is to enable the Petroleum Act, which at present deals only with petroleum and its liquid compounds, to be applied to other illuminant or inflammatory substances, as for instance carbide of calcium, which, being a solid, is not covered by the present Act, whenever it may be found desirable in the public interest to regulate and control the use of any such substance in this country. It is proposed to provide at the same time for the laying down of special tests in the case of substances for which the tests prescribed in the schedule to the present Act are unsuitable; also, to enable the transport of petroleum to be exempted by notification in special cases and under special conditions from the restrictions at present prescribed for its possession and transport. The other alterations embodied in the Bill are of a formal character.

" The present opportunity has been taken to make the Bill which is now being introduced a consolidating as well as an amending enactment by repealing and reproducing three entire Acts and portions of two other Acts which deal with the subject under consideration."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ moved that the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons be published in the Gazette of India in English and in the local official Gazettes in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments think fit.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 27th January, 1899.

35. No instrument chargeable with duty shall be admitted in evidence for any purpose by any person having by law or consent of parties authority to receive evidence, or shall be acted upon, registered or authenticated by any such person or by any public officer, unless such instrument is duly stamped:

(b) where any person from whom a stamped receipt could have been demanded, has given an unstamped receipt and such receipt, if stamped, would be admissible in evidence against him, then such receipt shall be admitted in evidence against him on payment of a penalty of one rupee by the person tendering it;

(c) where a contract or agreement of any kind is effected by correspondence consisting of two or more letters and any one of the letters bears the proper stamp, the contract or agreement shall be deemed to be duly stamped;

(d) nothing herein contained shall prevent the admission of any instrument in evidence in any proceeding in a Criminal Court, other than a proceeding under Chapter XII or Chapter XXXVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898;

(e) nothing herein contained shall prevent the admission of any instrument in any Court when such instrument has been executed by or on behalf of the Government, or where it bears the certificate of the Collector as provided by section 32 or any other provision of this Act.

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the exemption from the operation of Municipal laws of certain buildings and lands which are the property, or in the occupation, of Government and situate within the limits of a municipality was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 27th January, 1899:—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to provide for the exemption from the operation of Municipal laws of certain buildings and lands which are the property, or in the occupation, of Government and situate within the limits of a municipality, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed hereto.

From Officiating Chief Commissioner, British Baluchistan, No. 7841, dated 4th November, 1896 [Paper No. 1].
From Chief Commissioner, Coorg, No. 1687, dated 12th November, 1896 [Paper No. 2].
From High Court, Calcutta, No. 2750, dated 8th December, 1896 [Paper No. 3].
From Resident, Hyderabad, No. 365, dated 7th December, 1896, and enclosures [Papers No. 4].
From Chief Commissioner, Ajmere-Merwara, No. 1479, dated 17th December, 1896 [Paper No. 5].
From Chief Commissioner, Assam, No. 207-L. & L.—5195-J, dated 21st December, 1896, and enclosures [Papers No. 6].
From Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 8860, dated 22nd December, 1896 [Paper No. 7].
From Chief Commissioner, Burma, No. 33—1 T.-1, dated 5th January, 1897, and enclosures [Papers No. 8].
From Government, Punjab, No. 71, dated 28th January, 1897, and enclosures [Papers No. 9].
From Government, Bombay, No. 268, dated 18th January, 1897, and enclosures [Papers No. 10].
From Government, Madras, No. 542-A.M., dated 15th March, 1897, and enclosures [Papers No. 11].
From Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 345, dated 4th March, 1897, and enclosures [Papers No. 12].
From Government, Bengal, No. 4177—M., dated 11th August, 1898, and enclosures [Papers No. 13].

2. In the heading and preamble we have inserted the word "building" before the word "laws," in order at once to indicate the limited scope of the measure. It is not intended by this measure to interfere with the taxation of Government property in municipalities, a matter which is already provided for by the Municipal Taxation Act, 1881 (XI of 1881).

3. In clause 2 and throughout the Bill we have substituted the more comprehensive expression "municipal authority" for "municipal committee." Municipal authorities are denominated "committees" in some, and "boards" in other, parts of the country.

4. From clause 2 we have omitted the definition of "Government," as being unnecessary in view of section 3, sub-section (21), of the General Clauses Act, 1897 (X of 1897).

5. We have, by means of an alteration in clause 3, confined the operation of the Bill to buildings used or required "for the public service or for any public purpose;" and, in adopting this phrase, we have followed the language of section 194 of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict., c. 38). A further amendment has here been made with the object of requiring notice to be given only in the case of material structural alterations: this probably would have been the construction put on the provision as originally drawn, but we think it better to make the point clear. Finally, the latter part of the clause seems to us to go too far, in that it contemplates the giving of notice in the case of all building operations undertaken by the Government. It is clearly necessary that buildings connected with Imperial defence, and buildings the plans or construction of which are of a confidential or secret character, should be excluded from the purview of the provision, and we have inserted words to effect that purpose.

6. The addition to, and alterations in, clause 4 are consequential. The clause should, we think, like the latter part of clause 3, avoid all reference to the maintenance of buildings.

7. The publication ordered by the Council has been made as follows :—

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, January 14th, 1899.

At the end of the previous week a shallow depression lay over South-West Bengal and Chota Nagpur. It was transferred eastwards to Upper Burma during the next 24 hours, where it filled up. Thunder-showers were received in Bengal, North Bihar and the Assam Valley between the 8th and the 10th from the disturbance initiated by this storm. Very strongly marked anticyclonic conditions, on the other hand, obtained during this period in North-Western and Central India and the northern half of the Peninsula, and higher pressures were recorded in Berar and at Nagpur on the 9th than have been observed in that area during the past ten years. Pressure gave way steadily during the remainder of the week over the Indian area, but this negative phase of the barometric oscillation was associated with no important change in the weather, which hence remained fine and settled throughout the period. A feeble and ill-defined depression was formed or appeared in Upper Sind on the 12th, and drifted eastwards across Rajputana on the 13th, where it disappeared during the day. It gave light to moderate snow in Kashmir on the 13th, but no rain in the plains and was hence of little importance.

The most noteworthy feature of the weather of the week was the prevalence of abnormally low temperature over by far the greater part of the country. This feature was, on the whole, most pronounced in Chota Nagpur, the Central Provinces and Berar, where the mean temperature of the week was 7° below the normal of the period. The deficiency was, it may be noted, exhibited somewhat more largely in the night than in the day temperature. Unusually low night temperatures were registered at some stations in the Central Provinces on the night of the 8th. The lowest in the plains was 40°·6 at Nagpur, which is 2°·6 lower than had been previously recorded at that station under the standard conditions of thermometer exposure.

A

Daily Summary.—Sunday, January 8th.—Pressure had increased briskly to rapidly over the greater part of Northern and Central India and the north of the Peninsula, and was steady over the remainder of the country. The depression which lay over South-West Bengal and Chota Nagpur at the close of the previous week had advanced into Upper Burma during the previous 24 hours and filled up. Pressure was in moderate to considerable excess in North-Western and Central India and in slight to moderate defect in the southern half of the Peninsula, the Bay of Bengal, Burma and East Bengal. Gradients were hence above their normal January intensity. Winds were generally from the r normal cold-weather directions. Skies were moderately clouded in Bengal, Assam and Upper Burma, and clear lightly clouded elsewhere. Showers, light to moderate in amount, had occurred in North Bihar, Bengal and Assam. A light shower of hail had fallen at Mussooree. The temperature conditions were very marked. Temperature was in considerable excess in Orissa and the Madras Deccan, and in moderate excess in Mysore, the Madras Coast and Burma. Temperature was, on the other hand, more or less largely below the normal over the remainder of the Indian area. The deficiency ranged between 6° and 11° over the area, including Baluchistan, the North-Western Provinces, Gujarat, the Punjab, Rajputana, Central India, the Central Provinces, Berar and the Bombay Deccan, and was absolutely greatest at Simla (18°) and Chakrata and Ranikhet (each 17°). Both day and night temperatures were in large defect in the area of decreased temperature.

Monday, January 9th.—Pressure was unchanged in Baluchistan and the Indus Valley and had increased throughout the remainder of the Indian region. The rise was brisk to rapid in the Peninsula, North-Eastern India and Upper Burma and slight elsewhere. Pressure was more or less above the normal everywhere, except in Lower Burma, where it was locally in slight defect. The excess was least in Southern India (·02"), and greatest in Berar and the neighbouring districts of the Central Provinces, where it averaged a seventh of an inch in amount. Strongly marked anticyclonic conditions hence obtained in India, more especially in Berar and at Nagpur, where pressure was higher than has been recorded during the past ten years. The wind system was of the usual cold-weather type. The air was abnormally dry in Cutch, the humidity at 8 A.M. being only 18 per cent. at Bhuj. Skies were more or less clouded in Baluchistan, the North-West Himalayas, Assam, Upper Burma and Southern India. Light thunder-showers had been received at Jalpaiguri and Cocanada. The temperature conditions were even more abnormal than on the previous day. Temperature was below the normal over the whole of the country, with the exception of Burma, Mysore and Madras, where it continued in slight to moderate excess. The deficiency exceeded 5° over the whole of Northern and Central India and the northern half of the Peninsula, and was greatest in Berar and the Central Provinces where it averaged 11° in amount.

Tuesday, 10th January.—Pressure had decreased over the northern half of the Indian area and increased over the southern half. The changes were, however, very small in amount and did not modify the pressure distribution to any important extent. Winds were normal in direction in India and more westerly than usual in Lower Burma. Skies were generally clear, and no rain had fallen anywhere beyond light local showers at Trincomalee and Bhamo. A very rapid rise of temperature had occurred in Baluchistan and the Upper India hill districts, and the mean temperature of the previous 24 hours was 4° above the normal in the former and 3° to 5° in defect in the latter area. Temperature had increased slightly to considerably in North-Western and Central India and the Deccan, and the deficiency in these areas was hence less marked than on the previous day. The low temperature conditions had, on the other hand, extended eastwards to Bengal, Assam and Orissa, and the mean temperature during the past day ranged between 4° and 10° below the normal in these areas. Temperature remained in moderate excess in Burma and Southern India.

Wednesday, 11th January.—Pressure was practically steady in the Peninsula and had decreased slightly to briskly in Baluchistan and Northern and Central India. The distribution of pressure was somewhat abnormal, pressure being lowest in Tenasserim and highest in the Central Provinces, Berar, Central India and Rajputana. Winds were little changed. Skies were clouding over in Baluchistan and Upper India, but remained clear over the remainder of the country. The only rainfall reported was at Negapatam and Trichinopoly. Temperature had decreased rapidly in Burma, due to the extension of the cool wave to that area, and was during the previous 24 hours more or less below the normal over the whole of the Indian area, excepting Baluchistan, South India, Mysore, Tenasserim and the Upper India hills, where it was in moderate to large excess. The deficiency was least in Burma (1°) and greatest in Orissa (8°).

Thursday, 12th January.—Pressure had given way briskly in East Baluchistan, Sind and West Rajputana, and a depression in which pressure was nearly a tenth of an inch below the normal had appeared in Upper Sind. Elsewhere the pressure changes were small and of no significance and the general pressure conditions remained unaltered. Winds were feebly cyclonic in Sind and more easterly than usual in the west coast districts. The air was very dry in the hill districts of Upper India and the Central Punjab. The lowest humidities recorded in these areas at 8 A.M. were 16 per cent. at Chakrata and Khushab and 23 per cent. at Simla. Skies were generally overcast in Baluchistan and Upper India and practically cloudless over the remainder of the country. Temperature had diminished briskly in Mysore and Southern India and was steady or had increased to a moderate extent over the remainder of the Indian region. The mean temperature of the past day was 7° in defect of the normal in Orissa and Chota Nagpur, 6° in Bengal, Bihar and Berar and 5° in Assam and the Central Provinces. It was, on the other hand, 11° above the normal at Quetta and 5° at Simla, Chakrata and Ranikhet.

Friday, 13th January.—Pressure had given way over the whole of the Indian region, with the exception of Baluchistan and the Indus Valley, where it had increased slightly to rapidly. The fall was brisk in East Rajputana and Bundelkhand, due to the transfer to that area of the depression which was passing through Sind on the previous day. Pressure was normal in Northern and Central India and in slight to moderate excess in the Peninsula. Gradients were, hence, feebler than usual over India. Pressure continued in slight to moderate defect in Burma, and the area of minimum pressure lay as for some days past over Tenasserim and the neighbouring sea area. Southerly winds prevailed in the hill districts of Upper India, and humidity had again decreased in that area. The air was driest at 8 A.M. at Chakrata where the percentage of humidity was 13 per cent. Skies had cleared in Baluchistan and the Punjab. They were overcast in Kashmir and light to moderate snow had fallen in that area. A cool wave of moderate intensity was affecting Baluchistan where temperature had fallen 11° during the past 24 hours. Temperature had increased slightly to briskly over the greater part of India and was now approximately normal, except in the Punjab, the Central Provinces, Berar, North-Western India, the Bombay Deccan and Upper Burma, where it was from 3° to 8° below the normal, due to much lower night temperature than usual.

Saturday, January 14th.—The pressure changes were again small in amount and of little importance. The chief features of the pressure conditions were a slight to moderate deficiency in Lower Burma and the adjacent sea area, and a moderate excess in Baluchistan. Winds were very light and irregular in the interior of India and north-westerly in Burma and the east coast of the Peninsula. They were exceedingly unsteady on the West Coast. A large increase of humidity had occurred in the hill districts of Upper India. Skies were generally free from cloud over the Indian region, with the exception of Southern India, where they were moderately clouded. No rain had fallen anywhere beyond a light thunder-shower at Mergui. The temperature conditions differed much less from the normal than for some days previously The mean temperature of the previous 24 hours was 5° below the normal in Chota Nagpur and Orissa, 4° in Bengal, and 3° in Assam, Berar and the West Coast. Elsewhere temperature was practically normal.

Temperature.—The most remarkable feature of the weather of the week was the abnormally low temperature which prevailed over by far the greater part of the country. On the average of the whole period temperature was normal (i.e., varied by less than 1° from the normal) in Burma, Mysore and Madras, and was more or less in defect over the remainder of the country.

The deficiency was considerable to large in amount over nearly the whole of Northern and Central India and the north of the Peninsula and was most marked in Chota Nagpur, the Central Provinces and Berar where it averaged 7°. The night temperature was somewhat more largely in defect in the area of decreased temperature than the day temperature. It is noteworthy that lower night temperatures were recorded at some stations in the Central Provinces than have been previously registered in January. The following gives data in illustration :—

STATION.	Lowest night temperature recorded during the week.	Date.	Lowest hitherto recorded in January.
Nagpur	40·6	9th	43·2 in 1878
Pachmarhi	30·3	9th	31·1 in 1878

The following table giving temperature variation data of the week shows that the mean temperature of the whole of India including Burma was in considerable defect of the normal on the first five days and in moderate defect on the last two days. For the whole week the mean temperature averaged 3°·6 below the normal as compared with 1°·5 during the previous week :—

Rainfall.—The rainfall of the week was small in amount and occurred almost solely in North-Eastern India. The rainfall returns show that the only districts which received effective rain during the week were Assam Brahmaputra and Hills, East, Deltaic and North Bengal, Bengal Hills, North Bihar and East Coast South. The average amounts over the region of effective rainfall ranged between 0·17 inch and 0·38 inch and were very slightly above the normal of the period.

A feeble disturbance gave light to moderate snow in Kashmir on the 13th, but over the remainder of the country the week was unusually free from disturbance, and characterized by the prevalence of fine settled weather with little or no cloud.

HEM RAJ,
Offg. Asst. Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India.

SIMLA, the 19th January 1899.

T. W. HOLDERNESS,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 21st January.—Light showers of rain fell in parts of the southern districts, but none elsewhere. The water-supply is generally sufficient. Some sowings are still being made. The standing crops are generally in good condition, except in parts of the Deccan. Harvesting continues, the outturn being almost normal. Pasturage is growing scarce, but fodder is sufficient. The condition of cattle is normal. There has been a general fall in prices.

Bombay.—For week ending 25th January.—Rain is wanted for the late crops in Shikarpur. The standing crops have been damaged by frost throughout Sind, and by rats or blight in parts of Bijapur and Dharwar. Harvesting of the early crops continues in three, and of the late crops in seven districts. Cotton-picking is progressing in parts of Gujarat and Kathiawar. Preparations for next season continue in parts of the Deccan and the Konkan. Fodder is sufficient, except in parts of Sind. Agricultural stock is healthy. Prices have risen in four and have fallen in six districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 23rd January.—There was no rain during the week except 1·18 inches at Darjeeling. Reports of all crops are favourable. The harvesting of winter rice is practically over, and the gathering of pulses and pressing of sugarcane are going on. The spring crops are thriving and are nearly ready to be cut. Poppy is also doing well. Caterpillars have appeared in Saran and Champaran, and are doing injury to the spring and poppy crops. The transplantation of spring rice is proceeding, and ploughing for autumn rice and jute has begun in some districts. The fodder-supply is everywhere abundant, and cattle are generally in good condition. No important change is reported in the price of common rice.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 25th January.—The weather is clear and cold. The standing crops, except for slight damage from frost in parts, are doing well. Irrigation and the pressing of sugarcane continue. Supplies and fodder are sufficient. Prices have slightly risen in places, otherwise they are practically stationary.

Punjab.—For week ending 25th January—Rain is badly wanted throughout the Province: none fell during the week. Sugarcane-pressing continues. Irrigation and weeding of the spring crops are in progress. Ploughings for the extra spring crops have commenced in Lahore. The standing irrigated spring crops are generally promising, but their condition is below the average in Dera Ismail Khan. Crops on lands dependent on rain are mostly suffering from drought, and the extreme dry cold has stunted the growing crops in Lahore. The gram and rapeseed crops are being damaged by caterpillars (sundi) in two tahsils of the Ferozepore district. The condition of cattle is generally good to fair, but poor in parts of Dera Ismail Khan. Fodder is getting scarce in Delhi, Shahpur and parts of Dera Ismail Khan, but is sufficient elsewhere. Prices are rising in Amritsar, Shapur, and Rawalpindi; falling in Delhi, Jullundur, and Sialkot; and are unchanged elsewhere. Wheat is selling from 15⅛ to 21¼, gram 21 to 24, barley 32, bulrush millet 20 to 26½, maize 27 to 33, great millet 25, and rice 13 to 14 seers per rupee.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 24th January.—The weather is clear and cold, the night temperature being very low. The prospects of the spring crops are fair in all districts, except in Saugor, Damoh, Chanda, and the Behir tahsil of Balaghat, where they are poor to gloomy. Frost has damaged the standing crops in Saugor, Jubbulpore, Narshingpur, the Behir tahsil of Balaghat, Damoh, the Lakhnadon tahsil of Seoni and parts of Chhindwara. Blight has caused slight damage in Hoshangabad, and drought and insects in parts of Raipur. The reaping and threshing of the autumn crops are almost complete, and the pressing of sugarcane continues. Reaping of linseed has begun in parts of Nagpur. The cheapest prices are—wheat 19, gram 32, rice 26, and juar 30 seers per rupee. The dearest prices are—wheat 12, gram 15, rice 11⅞, and juar 19$\frac{15}{16}$ seers per rupee. Wheat continues to sell above the normal rate in the south, east and west of the provinces, and the price of gram is still low in the Northern districts.

Burma.—For week ending 21st January.—In Lower Burma the reaping of the main crop has been completed in nine districts. Threshing continues. In Upper Burma sowing of dry weather paddy and other crops is still in progress. The standing crops generally promise well. The price of paddy has fallen slightly in Akyab and Myaungmya and risen in Pegu and Thayetmyo.

Assam—For week ending 24th January.—No rain fell during the week. Harvesting of the late rice crop still continues in Kamrup, Darrang and Nowgong. Gathering of pulses, pruning of tea, and pressing of sugarcane are in progress. The prospects of the mustard, pulse, and sugarcane crops are generally good. Fodder is scarce in Cachar, the Naga, Khasi and Jaintia Hills, and in parts of Sylhet. Water is insufficient in the Khasi and Jaintia Hills. Prices—common rice, Silchar 14½, Sylhet, Dhubri and Gauhati 16, Tezpur, Nowgong, Sibsagar and Dibrugarh, 13 seers per rupee.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 25th January.—MYSORE: The standing crops are in good condition. Prices have fallen slightly in Kolar and Kadur and risen in Bangalore. Ragi (Eleusine coracana) has been harvested in Bangalore, Kolar, Mysore, Chitaldrug and Shimoga.

COORG: The threshing of rice has commenced, whilst that of ragi (Eleusine coracana) and coffee-picking continue. Prices of food-grains are stationary. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 25th January.—BERAR: The weather is cool. The prospects of the winter crops are unfavourable. Land is under preparation for the ensuing monsoon crops in parts of the Province. Fodder is insufficient in two districts. A scarcity of water prevails in Akola, Amraoti, and Wun. Prices of wheat and jowar have fallen in the Akola taluka but are steady elsewhere.

HYDERABAD: No rain fell during the week. The autumn rice harvest has been completed, and that of the spring crops has commenced in parts. Winter rice is being sown. Insects are damaging the castor-seed crops in three talukas of the Naldrug and Warangal districts, and rats are causing injury to the jowar and gram crops in some talukas in the Aurangabad and Gulburga divisions. Prices continue to fall. Prices—wheat 9, coarse rice 10½, and jawari 22 seers per current sicca rupee.

Central India.—For week ending 25th January.—No rain fell during the week. Agricultural operations have been completed in Bundelkhand and are in progress elsewhere. The condition of the standing crops is indifferent in Baghelkhand, and the probable outturn will, it is estimated, be below the average. Crops have been damaged by frost in Baghelkhand, Malwa and two districts in Bundelkhand. Agricultural stock and pasturage are in good condition. Prices are rising in Baghelkhand and Indore. The condition of opium is good in Bhopal and fair in Malwa and Indore.

Rajputana.—For week ending 25th January.—No rain fell during the week. Irrigation of crops continues. Their condition is generally good but they have been damaged by frost in Jeypore and Kerowlee. Cattle are generally in good condition. The Government reserves have been opened to grazing in Ajmere-Merwara. Distress is spreading and increasing in Merwara. Takavi advances have been granted freely with beneficial results. In Ajmere distress is increasing in some villages of Gangwana. Fodder is scarce in parts of Marwar, Kherwara, Meywar, Haraoti, Ajmere, Jeypore and Bikanir. Prices are rising in Jhallawar and are steady elsewhere. Emigration from the distressed Ajmere villages and from Merwara continues: 143 persons emigrated during the week. The total emigration from Merwara up to date amounts to 3,869 persons. The numbers employed on relief works were—363 in Ajmere, 2,122 in Merwara, and 102 in Marwar. Prices—Ajmere 20, Beawar 22, and Marwar 14½ seers per rupee.

Kashmir.—For week ending 24th January.—The weather has been snowy and cloudy. Prices continue below normal. The price of rice is 27 seers per rupee.

JAMMU PROVINCE :—For week ending 25th January—No rain fell during the week. The condition of the standing crops is fair. Fodder is sufficient. Prices have risen slightly : wheat is selling at 18 and maize 25 seers per rupee.

Nepal.—For week ending 21st January.—Rainfall 0·11. The weather is intensely cold. Wheat is germinating. The price of rice is 9 seers per rupee.

KHORASSAN TRADE REPORT FOR 1897-98.

General Review of Trade.

It has been explained in previous reports that statistics as to the trade of Khorassan are not obtainable. This report is therefore necessarily restricted to Meshed.

The tabular statement showing the import and export of foreign goods to and from Meshed for the past five years, reveals that there was an increase in the year under report over the previous year of £40,735. This is due to the figures for the year 1896-97 being specially low, owing to the roads between India and Persia and Afghanistan and Persia having been closed for a considerable time on account of a scare caused by a fear of the Plague. Other reasons for this decrease were also detailed in the report last sent in. The year under report, as compared with the year 1895-96, shows a decrease of £68,885. There was, moreover, a decrease as compared with the years 1893-94 and 1894-95. From Russian territory, on the contrary, there has been a steady increase for some years as shown by the following figures:—

1894-95	59,208
1895-96	86,929
1896-97	92,547
1897-98	121,279

This is no doubt due to the Transcaspian Railway, and the existence of a cart-road between Meshed and Ashkabad. The Russian frontier is, as compared with the Indian frontier, very close to Meshed, and there is a large demand for the produce of Khorassan in Transcaspia.

The figures giving the imports from Europe viâ Turkey and Tabriz show that the year under report was the best of the last five years. The imports from Afghanistan were up to the average. The total imports tend to show that Meshed imports are somewhat declining. The figures have, however, been obtained from native sources, and can only be regarded as approximate. The exports to Russian territory, as compared with those to India, are about double. The figures of the exports of foreign goods passing through Meshed into Afghanistan show a steady increase. The total exports have much increased during the last five years.

BRITISH IMPORTS.

Imports from India.

Trade from India viâ Bombay and Bandar Abbas with Meshed appears to have increased. A considerable proportion passed through Meshed on its way to Russian territory. The figures given in the returns are approximate rather than accurate.

Tea.

There has been a decrease in the imports of green tea during the year under report, as compared with the previous year; while black tea has been imported in largely increased quantities, nearly all the green tea comes from China through Bombay, a very small proportion being Indian. The black tea is chiefly Indian. Only tea of a cheap description can find a ready sale in Meshed, the better descriptions being too expensive. There is no demand for uncoloured Indian green tea in Meshed, but about 300 packages of 100 lbs. each pass through Meshed on their way to Russian territory. The amount of green tea which passed into Russia through Meshed has decreased, while the amount of black tea increased. This subject was dealt with in extenso in last year's reports.

Indigo.

The imports of indigo into Meshed have trebled. The increase appears to be accidental, and not to have been caused by anything abnormal. The indigo brought to Meshed is of an inferior quality produced by native growers in Sukhur and Mooltan. There is no demand for the better descriptions such as are grown in Bengal.

Sheetings, longcloth—bleached and unbleached.

The figures, as compared with the previous year, show a considerable increase in sheetings and longcloth, both bleached and unbleached. These articles have not yet been driven out of the market.

Cotton prints.

Under the head Prints there has been a considerable decrease owing to Russian prints being cheaper and more attractive than those supplied by British firms. It was noted in last year's report that the Russian Government were granting a bounty on prints. Their command of the trade was enlarged on in that report and the reasons were given. Under the head "Miscellaneous piece-goods," there has also been a considerable decrease.

Muslin.

Large quantities of muslin were formerly imported to be sent on to Russia, but this year this commodity was only imported to the extent of £260. The Russians have manufactured muslin. In last year's report it was noted that it was imported into Central Asia viâ Batoum.

Cotton yarn and twist.

The imports of cotton yarn and twist have risen from £1,590 to £17,545. These commodities find great favour amongst the inhabitants of Khorassan for manufacture into country cloth of a rough quality. In 1895-96 and 1896-97 there was a great fall in this import. The figures have, however, again risen.

Drugs.

The import of drugs has risen from £154 to £2,100; the increase seems to have been due to an accumulation caused by the closing of the roads into Persia under the Russian plague regulations, otherwise there is no special reason why an unusual amount of drugs should have been imported. Most of these drugs are of Indian produce.

Coffee.

There is an increase under the head of coffee. It is said that there is an increase in the consumption of this article in Meshed and the district.

Spices.

There was an increase also in spices, said to have been caused by a large quantity coming in directly the roads were opened after they had been closed in consequence of the rumours of approaching plague.

Broadcloth.

Broadcloth was imported to the extent of £2,730; the importation of this article is said to be largely on the increase. Formerly broadcloth came viâ Turkey and Tabriz. The broadcloth coming from Bombay is of a finer quality and suits public taste better; an increase which has taken place in the import may be thus accounted for.

Russian Imports.

Sugar.

With respect to articles imported from Russian territory it is noticeable that there has again been a considerable increase under the head of loaf-sugar and crystallised sugar. The increase over last year is said to be due to a certain extent to the increase in the custom of drinking tea sweetened to an extent which would be unpalatable in Europe. Other sugars are practically entirely ousted from the market. There is no competition between Russia and other countries with regard to sugar. This point has been noted in previous reports.

Piece-goods.

In piece-goods there was a small decrease for which no very special reason can be assigned.

Iron goods and steel.

There has been an increase in iron goods (chiefly rods) used for a variety of miscellaneous purposes. There has also been a large increase in steel sheets.

Glass and Chinaware.

In glass and Chinaware there was a small increase. In the report submitted last year it was noted that Russian glass and China had ousted the manufactures of other countries.

Gold lace.

Formerly gold thread and lace was imported through Balkh to various parts of Afghanistan, but owing to heavy dues levied by the Amir these articles are now brought in through Russia and pass on through Meshed. This accounts for a large increase under this head.

Paper, Vitriol.

In paper there has been an increase, as is the case in vitriol, for which no specific reason can be assigned. Last year decreases under both heads were reported.

Cotton yarn.

An increased import of cotton yarn is reported. The Russians appear to be manufacturing this article with success.

Sack-cloth.

An increase in sack-cloth is accounted for by an increase in the export of wool to Russia, for the packing of which sack-cloth is required. This wool is not shown in these returns, as it goes from other parts of Persia without entering the town of Meshed.

Tea.

There has been an increase from £390 to £472 under this head. This is Chinese black tea, which is in some cases more appreciated by Persians of the higher classes than the Indian black tea. The increase under this head is not very considerable.

Merv and Bokhara trade.

With respect to the goods imported from Merv and Bokhara, the figures available show that there has been an increase from £1,729 to £4,997. The chief item is skins, the import of which has increased from £660 to £2,260, said to be due to the increase in the wearing of lamb-skin caps in Persia. There has also been an increase in the imports of hides to a considerable extent; they are much required for covering boxes containing opium which are exported to China.

IMPORTS viâ TURKEY AND TEHRAN.

In the articles imported viâ Turkey, Tabriz and Tehran, there is an increase of £6,933. The chief increases are in piece-goods, mostly English cotton prints. There is also a large increase under the head of aniline dyes; extensively used in dyeing wool and silk. It is to be regretted that popular taste should occasion a demand for these dyes, which are of bad quality and inharmonious colours.

AFGHAN IMPORTS.

In the imports from Afghanistan there was an increase of £5,972. The general increase is probably due to the opening of the roads from Afghanistan which had been closed on the plea of plague. With respect to "barak" there was a considerable decrease owing to the Amir's preventing the export. In sheep and lamb skins there was a very large increase. These articles are largely bought by Russian merchants in Meshed. There was an increase in the import of pistachio nuts, due to the removal of a prohibition placed by the Amir on their export.

EXPORTS TO INDIA.

Exports to India viâ Yezd or Kirman have increased by £20,402. The chief increase was under the head of opium from £14,680 to £37,770. This was partly owing to a favourable opium harvest. Probably most of this opium is for China. Opium is very largely cultivated in Khorassan. The export of silk, both piece and raw, decreased, while there was an increase in asafœtida owing to a favourable harvest.

Exports to Russian Territory.

As regards the export of articles from Meshed to Russian territory the returns show that the exports were almost stationary, there being a decrease of only £867. There was a considerable increase in skins owing to the possibility of buying them cheaply in Meshed, while a ready demand is found in Russia. A large decrease in turquoises is noticeable, probably due to their being readily carried by pilgrims and travellers and not passing through the custom house.

Exports to Afghanistan.

The total of exports from Meshed into Afghanistan show a slight increase. The figures hardly call for special remark.

Population.

As large numbers of people have come from various places to reside at Meshed, it can be safely estimated that the population of this town was about 80,000 souls this year.

Factories—Carpets.

At present there are about 200 carpet-weaving looms. Each loom turns out in a year three carpets, each measuring, on an average, 5 zars long by 4 zars broad. The length of the zar is 41½ inches. There is also a large number of carpet factories in Turshiz and Kain.

Baluch and Herat carpets, which are much appreciated at present, are exported in large numbers to foreign countries.

Silk.

Formerly there were 1,200 looms for silk-weaving in Meshed, but at present there are not more than 250. The falling off is due to a rise in the value of raw silk and less demand for Meshed silks owing to aniline dyes being used.

Shawls.

There are also shawl-weaving factories and other factories for the manufacture of inferior articles for local consumption, such as glazed earthenware, glass, soap, candles, etc.

Turquoise mines.

The turquoise mines at Nishabur are at present held by the Malik-ut-Tujjar of Khorassan (the head of the merchants) at an annual rent of 24,000 Tumans (£4,800). There is great uncertainty as to the continuity of the contracts, which is injurious to the mines. The outturn of the mines can only be a matter of estimate.

Despatch No. 3-Ry., dated 13th January, 1898, to Secretary of State.
Despatch No. 58-Ry., dated 14th July, 1898, from Secretary of State.

RESOLUTION.—In the correspondence quoted above, the Government of India have had under consideration various suggestions and representations which have been made in connection with the depreciation of the deposits of subscribers to the Provident Funds of State and Companies' lines, resulting from the fall in exchange. They have also noticed the inadequacy, in many cases, of the funds, as at present constituted, to fulfil the purposes for which they were instituted, and have discussed the question of suitable remedies. The conclusions arrived at were that, while it would be outside the agreement between Government and the depositors to adopt a suggestion, which has been made, that the deposits of non-domiciled employés should be repaid on retirement or death at a privileged rate of exchange, it was desirable and reasonable that depositors, whose intention it was to retire to Europe, America or the British Colonies, should be allowed to convert their subscriptions into sterling at the rate of exchange obtaining in the year in which they were deposited in the fund, subject to the condition that the rate of interest allowed should also be adjusted to that usually obtainable on sterling as distinguished from rupee transactions; also that steps were necessary to place the funds on a more efficient basis by increasing the rates both of subscribers' deposits and of the Government or Railway contributions; and, lastly, that some special concessions were required to meet the case of subscribers who were too near the end of their service to benefit materially by the reconstitution of the funds. The following arrangements for giving effect to those conclusions so far as they affect the Provident Funds of State Railways have been approved by the Secretary of State, and, except as otherwise provided, will come into force from the date of this resolution.

I.—Future entrants, whether married or single, will be required to subscribe to the Provident Fund at an uniform rate of one-twelfth of pay, to which Government will add half-yearly—

(a) a first sum out of the gross revenue of the railway equal to one-half of such subscriptions;

(b) a second sum not exceeding one-half of such subscriptions; and also not exceeding one per cent. of net earnings, calculated before any contributions to the fund have been added to the working expenses.

They will also have the option, to be exercised once for all within six months of joining the fund, of having their Provident Fund Account kept in sterling or in rupees, the amount being converted in the case of accounts kept in sterling once a year at the average rate of exchange obtained by the Secretary of State for his remittances for that year, interest being allowed at 3 per cent. only instead of 3½ per cent., which is the rate at present allowed on accounts kept in rupees.

Note.—Liberty is in both cases reserved to the Government to reduce the rate of interest in certain eventualities.

II.—As regards subscribers now in the service:—

(a) European and Eurasian subscribers of less than 20 years' service, or less than 40 years of age when the new scheme comes into force, and all other subscribers without respect to their age or service, will have the option, to be exercised within six months from the date of this resolution, of coming under the new scheme for the remainder of their service. They will also have the option, whether they elect for the new scheme or not, of having their accounts recast from the commencement on a sterling basis, and kept for the future in sterling as in Rule I; this option must also be exercised within six months from the same date.

(b) European and Eurasian subscribers of 20 years' service and upwards, or of 40 years of age and upwards, on the 1st January, 1898, that being the date from which the new scheme comes into force, will remain on the old scale and have their Provident Fund balances (compulsory subscriptions with bonus on those subscription and interest) paid to them on retirement to Europe, America or the Colonies, or in the event of death before retirement, to their heirs or assigns, if the latter reside or intend to reside in Europe, America or the Colonies, at 1*s*. 6*d*. per rupee; unless they elect within six months as above, to come under the new scale for the rest of their service, in which case they will be treated in the same way as men of less than 20 years' service or 40 years of age who elect to come under the new scale as in Rule II (a). The difference of cost between the actual market value of the rupee and 1*s*. 6*d*. will be chargeable to the working expenses of the railway as additional contributions to the Provident Fund.

III.—The following supplementary rule will apply to all persons:—

An employé with under 20 years' service who may leave the railway voluntarily, otherwise than on medical certificate that he is unfit for further service, or on transfer to another railway with the consent or his employer, or who may be dismissed for ordinary misconduct of negligence, will be liable to forfeit the whole or a portion of the railway contributions and interest thereon, subject to any orders that may be passed on specific cases by Government, on the recommendation of the Managers, or to any general rules on the subject that may be laid down hereafter.

The cases of employés dismissed for gross misconduct or fraud will be governed by the present rule, Public Works Code, Volume IV, Chapter X, paragraph 29.

IV.—The new rules, so far as applicable, will extend to the same classes of employés as those to whom the present rules apply, vide Public Works Department Code, Volume IV, Chapter X, paragraph 6.

V.—In the case of employés already in the service who elect for them under the option allowed in Rule II, the new rates of subscriptions and contributions specified in Rule I will come into operation with effect from the 1st January 1898. In individual cases however in which the Manager considers that there will be difficulty or hardship in collecting arrear subscriptions from that date, he may defer the application of the rules to the 1st January 1899.

2. It must be clearly understood that subscribers who do not elect the new rules will remain wholly under the old rules; that is to say, they will receive, as at present, a bonus of 50 per cent. of their compulsory subscriptions, and a second bonus not exceeding 50 per cent. of their compulsory subscriptions and calculated on one-half per cent. of the net earnings only, instead of on one per cent. as under the new rules.

3. The concession regarding payment of their deposits at the rate of 1*s*. 6*d*. per rupee to employés with 20 years' service and over, or of 40 years of age and above [Rule II (b)], extends to all persons who, during the years 1897 or 1898, or during the current year, before the issue of this resolution, may have been or may be compelled, by the operation of the 55 years' rule, to retire from the service.

4. Should it appear hereafter that the contributions made by Government to the deposits of subscribers under this scheme, with interest, are, either generally or in particular cases, in excess of the value of the pension admissible to pensionable officers of similar standing and on corresponding pay, Government reserves the right either to modify the rates, or to reduce the amounts payable in individual cases.

5. The question how far the arrangement above notified can be adapted to the Provident Funds of Companies' lines is under separate consideration and will be dealt with hereafter.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Governments of Madras, Bombay and Burma, Public Works Department, Railway Branch, the Chief Commissioner of Assam, the Resident at Hyderabad, the Consulting Engineers to the Government of India for Railways, Calcutta, Lucknow and Assam, and the Managers, North Western, Oudh and Rohilkhand, East Coast and Eastern Bengal State Railways, for information and guidance.

Ordered, also, that a copy be forwarded to the Accountant-General, Public Works Department, for information, and that it be published in the Gazette of India.

GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the exemption from the operation of Municipal laws of certain buildings and lands which are the property, or in the occupation, of Government and situate within the limits of a municipality. He said he would reserve any remarks he had to make till the next meeting of the Council, when he proposed to move that the Select Committee's report be taken into consideration and that the Bill be passed.

INDIAN STAMP BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR JAMES WESTLAND moved that the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Stamps, as amended, be passed.

The Hon'ble PANDIT SURAJ KAUL said :—" My Lord, the Bill now before Your Excellency's Council has been framed by the Hon'ble Member in charge of it after a good deal of careful investigation and consideration, and has, even after the presentation of the Report of the Select Committee, been further considered by him. The few amendments made by the Hon'ble Member in the Bill as altered by the Select Committee and carried by Your Excellency's Council are useful and are calculated to make the reading and application of the sections concerned clearer.

" The Bill, My Lord, is of great importance, and, detailed, lucid and comprehensive as it now stands, it will affect beneficially the interests of both the Government and the public.

" With these few words, my Lord, I beg to support the motion that the Bill as now amended be passed."

The motion was put and agreed to.

PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT (1882) AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to further amend the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882, be taken into consideration. He said that he had one or two brief remarks to make, but that he would make them on the next motion which stood in his name. He would, however, rather have any remarks Hon'ble Members might have to make at this stage.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS moved that the Bill, as amended, be passed. He said :—" In making this motion I desire to make one or two remarks about the Bill. The Bill, as Hon'ble Members are aware, is directed to two objects. In the first place, it gives the Local Government power to appoint, when necessary, a Chief Judge from outside the Court. The Select Committee had before them a suggestion that this should not be done when there was any Judge of the Court legally qualified to act. The Select Committee considered that recommendation, but they could not accede to it. They say in their Report, and I fully agree with it :

'As a general rule, no doubt, a Judge already in the Court, if legally qualified, would be the proper person to officiate for the Chief Judge during the latter's absence; but we feel that occasions might arise where the only Judge legally qualified to fill the place of Chief Judge might be a person whom it would be undesirable to appoint over the heads of his seniors on the Bench; and we have, therefore, made no change in clause 3.'

" I may say that the difficulty which the Select Committee refer to is a difficulty which in the case of one Court has already arisen in practice. As Hon'ble Members are aware, the Judges of the Small Cause Court are graded, and it would be clearly inexpedient that a Junior Judge, who might have the legal qualification for that position, should be put over the heads of the other Judges to act when the Chief Judge was absent. We might have a Junior Judge who was qualified to act but who had not been appointed more than a week. If there is a Judge qualified to act, clearly he is the proper person, and nobody wishes to go outside the Court if, taking all qualifications into consideration, there is a Judge who is qualified to act as Chief Judge.

"The other object of the Bill was to validate certain rules which had been drawn up for the Calcutta Small Cause Court by a Committee of the High Court Judges. That Committee was presided over by Mr. Justice Sale. The rules they framed are designed to accelerate and to make more efficient the proceedings in the Small Cause Court, and I think they are well adapted to effect those objects. They do not go quite so far as I should like myself. They do not make the procedure of the Small Cause Courts anything like so quick, or perhaps I might say so efficient, as the procedure of the County Court at home, but still they do effect a very great improvement in the practice, and they go as far as the Committee of Judges thought it was safe to go in the first instance at any rate. I think I may express our thanks to Mr. Justice Sale for the great care and skill with which he has drafted these rules—rules which undubtedly will benefit the practice of the Court and make it more efficient. The actual point on which the learned Judges of the High Court suggested legislation was this: in order to facilitate proceedings in the Small Cause Court they suggested that undefended cases and certain formal applications should be disposed of by the Registrar or Deputy Registrar, but they doubted whether under the existing rule-making power rules could empower the Registrar or Deputy Registrar to do this. We have now made the necessary amendment in the Act to make the rule-making power sufficient to cover the cases which I have alluded to."

The Hon'ble MR. REES said:—" I have only to add to the special reasons just mentioned by the Hon'ble Member that it seems to me on general grounds also desirable that in such a matter as this the hands of the Local Government should be, as far as possible, unfettered. The Bill produces this effect, as well as those which the Hon'ble Member has detailed."

The motion was put and agreed to.

ARBITRATION BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS moved that the Bill to amend the Law relating to Arbitration be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Rivaz, the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur Ananda Charlu, the Hon'ble Sir Griffith Evans, the Hon'ble Mr. Allan Arthur, the Hon'ble Mr. Mehta, the Hon'ble Mr. Spence and the mover. He said that this was a Bill of some little importance and complication, and therefore it had been referred to a large Select Committee in order to have the full strength of the Council represented on it.

The motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT (1872) AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR CHALMERS moved that the Bill to further amend the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Rivaz, the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur Ananda Charlu, the Hon'ble Mr. LaTouche, the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur Pandit Suraj Kaul and the mover.

The motion was put and agreed to.

PETROLEUM BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ moved that the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the importation, possession and transport of petroleum and other substances be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Chalmers, the Hon'ble Mr. Chitnavis, the Hon'ble Mr. Smeaton, the Hon'ble Mr. Rees and the mover, with instructions to report within one month.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 3rd February, 1899.

H. W. C. CARNDUFF,
Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of India,

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III, & IV of the Dictionary are ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross-references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal 8vo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L; and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which consists of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI), but a tenth volume has been issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index is practically a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, is a work of reference, which, it is hoped, will prove of considerable value.

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Government Buildings Act, 1899.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India; and

(3) It shall come into force at once.

"Municipal authority" defined.

2. In this Act the expression "municipal authority" includes a municipal corporation or a body of municipal commissioners constituted by, or under the provisions of, any law or enactment for the time being in force.

3. Nothing contained in any law or enactment for the time being in force to regulate the erection, re-erection, construction, alteration or maintenance of buildings within the limits of any municipality shall apply to any building used or required for the public service or for any public purpose, which is the property, or in the occupation, of the Government, or which is to be erected on land which is the property, or in the occupation, of the Government:

Provided that, where the erection, re-erection, construction or material structural alteration of any such building as aforesaid (not being a building connected with Imperial defence, or a building the plan or construction of which ought, in the opinion of the Government, to be treated as confidential or secret) is contemplated, reasonable notice of the proposed work shall be given to the municipal authority before it is commenced.

Objections or suggestions as to erection, etc., of certain Government buildings within municipalities how to be made and dealt with.

4. (1) In the case of any such building as is mentioned in the last preceding section (not being a building connected with Imperial defence, or a building the plan or construction of which ought, in the opinion of the Government, to be treated as confidential or secret), the municipal authority, or any person authorized by it in this behalf, may, with the permission of the Local Government previously obtained, but not otherwise, and subject to any restrictions or conditions which may, by general or special order, be imposed by the Local Government, inspect the land and building and all plans connected with its erection, re-erection,

2. We have made a formal amendment in the preamble, and have suggested the 1st May, 1899, as the date for the coming into operation of the measure.

3. In sub-section (3) of clause 1 of the Bill we have inserted words to make it plain that the new provisions are to apply to an unconscionable bargain set up after the commencement of the proposed Act by the defendant in any suit, whether or not the bargain was made before or after such commencement.

4. We have, by substituting for the phrase "where one party is in a position to dominate the other" the phrase "where the relations subsisting between the parties are such that one of the parties is in a position to dominate the will of the other," somewhat limited the scope of the new section 16 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, which clause 2 of the Bill is to enact. It seems to us that this more clearly brings out the doctrine of English law by indicating that there must be at the time of the contract a special relationship between the parties which puts one in the power of the other, and Illustration (c) has been simplified, while another Illustration (d) has been added, with the object of making this apparent. We have at the same time omitted, as unnecessary, the reference to the parties not contracting "on a footing of equality," as well as the concluding words as to the consent of the party subjected to undue influence being obtained to "terms to which he would not otherwise have consented."

5. We have made verbal alterations in sub-section 2 (a) of this new section, and from sub-section (2) (b) we have omitted the reference to persons who are "naturally feeble-minded," that being only one element for the consideration of the Court in determining whether a contract has been induced by undue influence or not.

6. Sub-section (3) has also been modified. We think that, apart from the cases covered by section 111 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, where one of the parties stands in a relation of active confidence to the other, the ordinary onus of proof ought not to be shifted until primâ facie evidence is given that the contract made by the dominating party is unconscionable.

7. We have recast the language of the new section 19A of the Act of 1872, proposed by clause 3 of the Bill, so as to bring it more closely into accord with the language of section 19. A contract obtained by undue influence is on a different footing from a contract obtained by fraud. In the case of the latter, a party who, with knowledge of the fraud, has taken any benefit under the contract, is held to have elected to affirm it; but, where a contract has been obtained through the exercise of undue influence, it is necessary that the Court should have power to relieve the party who acted under the undue influence, even although he may have received some benefit under the contract. On the other hand, where such benefit has been received, the Court ought to have full power to impose such conditions as may be just upon the party seeking relief.

8. To the new section 74 of the Contract Act, proposed by clause 4 of the Bill, an Explanation has been appended to make it clear that, where enhanced interest is payable under a contract from the date of default, the stipulation therefor may be by way of penalty or not, in accordance with the circumstances of the case. The Illustration (d), which is given, is an instance in which the stipulation is obviously by way of penalty, but is not intended to lay down any hard and fast rule. Similarly, Illustration (f) is merely an "illustration" to the section, and does not pre-judge the question whether, for example, in a case where the instalments agreed upon for the repayment of a debt comprise future interest, the stipulation that, in the event of any default, the whole sum (i e., the principal and the whole of the future interest) shall become due at once, is not a stipulation by way of penalty.

No. II.

A Bill to amend the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

X of 1872. WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Indian Contract Act, 1872; It is hereby enacted as follow :—

Short title, commencement and application.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Contract Act Amendment Act, 1899.

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of May, 1899; and

(3) It shall apply to every contract in respect of which any suit is instituted, or which is put in issue in any suit, after the commencement of this Act.

IX of 1872. Substitution of new section for section 16, Act IX, 1872.

2. Section 16 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, is hereby repealed, and the following is substituted therefor, namely :—

"Undue influence" defined.

'16. (1) A contract is said to be induced by "undue influence" where the relations subsisting between the parties are such that one of the parties is in a position to dominate the will of the other and uses that position to obtain an unfair advantage over the other.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing principle, a person is deemed to be in a position to dominate the will of another—

(a) where he holds a real or apparent authority over the other, or where he stands in a fiduciary relation to the other; or

(b) where he makes a contract with a person whose mental capacity is temporarily or permanently affected by reason of age, illness, or mental or bodily distress.

(3) Where a person who is in a position to dominate the will of another, enters into a contract with him, and the transaction appears, on the face of it or on the evidence adduced, to be unconscionable, the burden of proving that such contract was not induced by undue influence shall lie upon the person in a position to dominate the will of the other.

of 1872 Nothing in this sub-section shall affect the provisions of section 111 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872.

Illustrations.

(a) A having advanced money to his son, B, during his minority, upon B's coming of age obtains, by misuse of parental influence, a bond from B for a greater amount than the sum due in respect of the advance. A employs undue influence.

(b) A, a man enfeebled by disease or age, is induced, by B's influence over him as his medical attendant, to agree to pay B an unreasonable sum for his professional services. B employs undue influence.

(c) A, being in debt to B, the money-lender of his village, contracts a fresh loan on terms which appear to be unconscionable. It lies on B to prove that the contract was not induced by undue influence.

(d) A applies to a banker for a loan at a time when there is stringency in the money market. The banker declines to make the loan except at an unusually high rate of interest. A accepts the loan on these terms. This is a transaction in the ordinary course of business, and the contract is not induced by undue influence.'

Amendment of section 19 of, and addition of new section to, Act IX, 1872.

3. In section 19 of the said Act the words "undue influence" are hereby repealed, and after the same section the following is inserted, namely :—

Power to set aside contract induced by undue influence.

"19A. When consent to an agreement is caused by undue influence, the agreement is a contract voidable at the option of the party whose consent was so caused.

Any such contract may be set aside either absolutely or, if the party who was entitled to avoid it has received any benefit thereunder, upon such terms and conditions as to the Court may seem just.

Illustrations.

(a) A's son has forged B's name to a promissory note. B, under threat of prosecuting A's son, obtains a bond from A for the amount of the forged note. If B sues on this bond, the Court may set the bond aside.

(b) A, a money-lender, advances Rs. 100 to B, an agriculturist, and, by undue influence, induces B to execute a bond for Rs. 200 with interest at 12 per cent. per month. The Court may set the bond aside, ordering B to repay the Rs. 100 with such interest as may seem just."

Amendment of section 74, Act IX, 1872.

4. (1) Section 74, paragraph one, of the said Act is hereby repealed and the following is substituted therefor, namely :—

Compensation for breach of contract where penalty stipulated for.

"74. When a contract has been broken, if a sum is named in the contract as the amount to be paid in case of such breach, or if the contract contains any other stipulation by way of penalty, the party complaining of the breach is entitled, whether or not actual damage or loss is proved to have been caused thereby, to receive from the party who has broken the contract reasonable compensation not exceeding the amount so named or, as the case may be, the penalty stipulated for.

Explanation.*—A stipulation for increased interest from the date of default may be a stipulation by way of penalty."

(2) After Illustration (c) to the said section the following Illustrations shall be added, namely :—

"(d) A gives B a bond for the repayment of Rs. 1,000 with interest at 12 per cent. at the end of six months, with a stipulation that, in case of default, interest shall be payable at the rate of 75 per cent. from the date of default. This is a stipulation by way of penalty, and B is only entitled to recover from A such compensation as the Court considers reasonable.

(e) A, who owes money to B, a money-lender, undertakes to repay him by delivering to him 10 maunds of grain on a certain date, and stipulates that, in the event of his not delivering the stipulated amount by the stipulated date, he shall be liable to deliver 20 maunds. This is a stipulation by way of penalty, and B is only entitled to reasonable compensation in case of breach.

(f) A undertakes to repay B a loan of Rs. 1,000 by five equal monthly instalments, with a stipulation that, in default of payment of any instalment, the whole shall become due. This stipulation is not by way of penalty, and the contract may be enforced according to its terms."

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, January 21st, 1899.

Very strongly pronounced anti-cyclonic conditions obtained in the Indian area during the first two days of the week. A wave of low pressure crossed the North-West Frontier into North-Western India on the 17th, but it was of very slight intensity, and hence produced no important change in the weather conditions beyond giving a light fall of snow in Kashmir and perhaps the interior ranges of the Punjab Himalayas. Its disappearance on the 18th was followed by a brisk increase of pressure which re-established high pressure conditions of moderate intensity on the 20th and 21st.

Weather was hence unusually fine and settled throughout the week in the plains of India, except in South Madras, which obtained some local thunder-showers of little importance at the end of the week from intensified north-east winds.

The principal feature of the weather of the week under review, as also of the previous week, was the severe cold over the whole of Northern and Central India and the North Deccan. The mean temperature of the week averaged from 3° to 6° below the normal in these areas due chiefly to unusually low night temperature. The cold was most severe in Bengal on the night of the 17th, when lower night temperatures were recorded at several stations than have been observed for many years in January.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, January 15th.—Pressure was practically unchanged in Southern India, and had increased over the remainder of the Indian region. The rise was brisk to rapid in Northern and Central India. Pressure was in moderate to considerable excess in North-Western and Central India and Baluchistan, and strongly marked anti-cyclonic conditions obtained in that area. Pressure was approximately normal in the Peninsula, North-Eastern India and Burma, and the range of pressure was hence considerably larger in amount than usual over the Indian area in January. The air motion was of the ordinary cold weather type. The air was very dry in Kathiawar, Cutch and West Rajputana. Skies were overcast in the Kashmir Valley, and were clear or lightly clouded in the plains of India. No rain had fallen anywhere during the previous twenty-four hours. A cool wave of considerable intensity was affecting Baluchistan and Upper India, and causing a large reduction of temperature. The mean temperature of the past day was $15\frac{1}{2}^\circ$ below the normal at Quetta, 6° in Sind and 5° in the Punjab due chiefly to unusually low night temperature.

Temperature was in moderate to considerable defect of the normal in Bengal, Assam, Orissa, Bombay and Southern India, and practically normal in Burma, the Gangetic Plain, Mysore, Madras Deccan, Central India, Berar and the Central Provinces.

Monday, January 16th.—The pressure changes of the previous 24 hours were very irregular in character in the plains of India. They, however, tended to accentuate the abnormal pressure conditions obtaining in Northern and Central India on the previous day. Pressure was nearly two-tenths of an inch above the normal in Sind and a twentieth of an inch below it in Upper Assam and North Bengal, and there was hence an abnormal gradient of a quarter of an inch between these two regions. Pressure had increased with great rapidity locally in Kashmir, the rise being greatest at Astor, where it was three-tenths of an inch in amount. A slight local fall of the barometer had occurred in Baluchistan, and a feeble wave of low pressure was passing eastwards through that area. Winds were generally from their normal cold weather directions in the plains of India, but were somewhat stronger than usual. The air was abnormally dry in Sind, Cutch and Rajputana. The lowest humidity recorded in this area was 17 per cent. at Hyderabad. Skies had clouded over in Baluchistan and Upper India. No rain or snow had again occurred at any of the meteorological stations. Temperature had increased very rapidly in Baluchistan, and was only in slight defect in that area during the previous 24 hours. A further reduction of temperature had, on the other hand, occurred in Upper and Central India and also in the North-Western Provinces due to the extension of the cool wave to that area. The mean temperature during the past day was 7° in defect in the Punjab, 6° in Sind, 5° in Rajputana, 4° in Central India, Gujarat and the North-Western Provinces, 3° in Bengal and Orissa and 2° in Bihar, Chota Nagpur, the Bombay Deccan and West Coast. Elsewhere the variations of temperature from the normal were small and unimportant.

Tuesday, January 17th.—The wave of low pressure which was affecting Baluchistan on the previous day had entered North-Western India, and caused a brisk to rapid fall of pressure in that area. Pressure was now in slight to moderate defect in the Punjab, and in considerable defect at the stations in the North-Western Himalayas. Over the remainder of the Indian area the pressure changes were too small to modify the general pressure conditions. Gradients had diminished rapidly in Northern and Central India, and the winds were hence much lighter than on the previous two days. The air continued exceedingly dry in North Bombay. The driest station in India at 8 A.M. was Bhuj, where the percentage of humidity recorded at that hour was only 10. Skies had cleared in Baluchistan, but continued overcast in Kashmir, where light snow had fallen during the previous 24 hours. Temperature had fallen over the whole of Northern and Central India and the Deccan, and was now more or less largely below the normal. The deficiency was most marked in the Punjab, Sind, Central India, Rajputana and the North-Western Provinces, in which it varied between 6° and 11°. Temperature differed to no important extent from the normal in Burma and Southern India.

Wednesday, January 18th.—Pressure had increased in Baluchistan, Northern India and Burma, and had fallen in the remainder of India. The changes were, however, too small in amount to affect the distribution of pressure. The air circulation was similar to that on the previous day. Skies had cleared in Kashmir, and were now free from cloud over the whole of the country, excepting Southern India, where they were lightly clouded. Light snow had again been received in Kashmir. The most noteworthy feature of the weather was the low temperature over the whole of India to the north of Lat. 20° N. The mean deficiency exceeded 3° in amount over that area, and was greatest in the North Western Provinces and Central India (7°). The temperature conditions were practically normal in the Peninsula and Burma.

Thursday, January 19th.—Pressure had given way briskly in Baluchistan thus reducing the excess in that area. It had increased over nearly the whole of India and Burma, briskly in Southern India, Berar, the Central Provinces, Chota Nagpur and South and East Bengal, and slightly elsewhere. The variations of pressure from the normal were small, except in Baluchistan, Berar and the Central Provinces, where pressure was nearly a tenth of an inch above the normal. No change of importance had occurred in the air movement. The air was abnormally dry in Kathiawar, Gujarat and the northern districts of the Central Provinces. The lowest reported 8 A.M. humidity was 13 per cent. at Saugor. Skies were clouding over in Baluchistan and North-Western India, but remained clear over the remainder of the country. No rain had fallen in India during the previous 24 hours. A large increase of temperature had occurred in Baluchistan and a moderate increase in Northern India. The mean temperature of the previous 24 hours was in slight excess in Baluchistan, Upper Sind and the South-West Punjab and also in Burma, and was more or less below the normal in other districts. The deficiency was more than 5½° in amount in Central India (8°), Berar (7°) and the Central Provinces, the North-Western Provinces, Chota Nagpur and Bengal (each 6°). The decreased temperature in these areas was due chiefly to much lower night temperature thau usual.

Friday, January 20th.—Pressure had increased slightly at the great majority of stations, thus intensifying the high pressure conditions obtaining on the previous day. Pressure was now approximately uniform over Northern and Central India and the North Deccan, and winds were light and irregular in these areas. Winds were strong over the west of the Peninsula, where gradients were steep. Humidity had increased in the Gangetic Plain, Central India and the Central Provinces. Skies had cleared in Baluchistan and Upper India. No rain or snow had fallen anywhere. The temperature conditions were practically unchanged.

Saturday, January 21st.—Pressure had changed generally by small amounts except in Baluchistan and Upper India, where it had fallen slightly to briskly. Pressure continued above the average almost everywhere. The excess was moderate to considerable in amount in North-Eastern and Central India, Berar, the Central Provinces and North Madras, and small and unimportant over the remainder of the country. Winds had shifted to north-east on the Madras coast, and were blowing freshly. A northerly gale prevailed at Cherat. Skies were overcast in Southern India, and light showers had fallen in the extreme south of Madras and in East Ceylon. Skies were clouding over in Baluchistan and Upper India. Temperature had increased over the greater part of India, and the deficiency was hence less pronounced than on the previous day. The mean temperature of the previous 24 hours was from 3° to 9° below the normal in a large area, including the whole of North-Eastern and Central India, the Central Provinces and Berar, and approximately normal in the remainder of India. The night temperature was much more largely in defect in these areas than the day temperature. Temperature was, on the other hand, in considerable excess in Baluchistan, the Punjab hill districts and Central Burma.

Temperature.—The variations of the temperature conditions of the week from the normal were almost identical in character and amount with those of the previous week. Temperature was more or less below the normal over the whole of India during the first six days of the week, but rose above it to a slight extent in Gujarat and the coast districts of the Peninsula on the 21st. Temperature varied slightly but irregularly from the normal in Burma on the first four days, but was in steady slight excess during the remainder of the week. On the average of the whole period temperature was practically normal (i.e., differed by less than 1° from the normal) in Burma, the Madras coast and Madras Deccan, and more or less in defect of the normal in all other districts. The deficiency was small in amount in South India, Mysore, the West Coast and Bombay Deccan, and moderate to large over the whole of Northern and Central India and the North Deccan. It was most pronounced in Central India, where it averaged 6°. The night temperature was in much larger defect in the area of decreased temperature than the day temperature. The most striking feature of the temperature conditions of the week was the abnormally low night temperatures experienced in Baluchistan, the West Punjab and Lower Bengal. The following gives the lowest temperatures recorded in these areas and also the lowest hitherto registered in the month of January at the same stations for comparison :—

Rainfall.—Weather was feebly disturbed in Kashmir and the interior ranges of the Punjab Himalayas on the 17th and 18th due to the advance of a low pressure wave from Persia into North-Western India, and light snow fell in these areas during that period. Darjeeling was visited by a severe hailstorm on Wednesday evening, which gave it a fall equivalent to 1·18 inches of rain. With these exceptions no rain or snow was reported from any part of the Indian area during the week.

The chief abnormal features of the seasonal rainfall up to date may be summed up as follows :—

(1) Heavier rain than usual in Bengal (excepting Orissa), the Assam Valley and Hills, Oudh and North-Western Provinces East, and East Submontane.

(2) Scanty rainfall in Cachar, Orissa, the North-Western Provinces Central, West, West Submontane and Hills, the Central Punjab, the Punjab Hills, Central India East, and East Coast South.

(3) Absence of rain over the remainder of India, Burma and Baluchistan, and hence general deficiency, most marked in the Punjab, Baluchistan and parts of the Central Provinces.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 28th January.—No rain fell during the week except showers in the southern districts. The water-supply is generally sufficient except in parts of the Deccan. Some sowings are still being made chiefly under irrigation. The standing crops are thriving generally, except in the Deccan where some are not in good condition. The recent harvest has yielded a fair to normal out-turn. Pasturage is growing scarce, but fodder is generally sufficient. The condition of cattle is normal. The fall in prices continues.

Bombay.—For week ending 1st February.—The standing crops have been injured by frost throughout Sind and by white ants in one taluka of Thar and Parkar. Wheat has been injured by rats in parts of Bijapur and by excessive wind in two talukas of Dharwar. Cotton has been damaged by frost in parts of Baroda Territory. The reaping of the late crops is progressing in ten and preparations for next season are being made in seven districts. Cotton-picking continues in parts of Gujarat and Kathiawar. Fodder is sufficient except in parts of Sind. Agricultural stock are generally healthy. Prices have risen in five and have fallen in seven districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 30th January.—There was rain over a considerable portion of Bengal Proper and Chota Nagpur, and also in places in Bihar during the week. Prospects of the spring crops are generally favourable and some of them are being harvested. The poppy crop in Bihar, except for some damage done by caterpillars in parts of Darbhanga and Champaran, is flourishing. Spring rice is being transplanted and doing well. Ploughing for autumn rice and jute is proceeding. Fodder is plentiful in every district. Prices have slightly risen in some places: in others they are stationary.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 1st February.—Slight showers of rain fell during the week in three districts, otherwise clear weather has prevailed. The standing crops are in good condition. Pressing of sugar-cane and irrigation of the spring crops continue. Prospects, except for damage by frost in parts, are favourable. Markets are well supplied. Fodder is sufficient. Prices show a slight rise in some districts otherwise they are fairly stationary.

Punjab.—For week ending 1st February.—No rain fell during the week: It is badly wanted throughout the Province to improve the prospects of the standing spring crops. Sugar-cane pressing still continues in some districts. Watering of the spring and ploughing for the extra spring crops are in progress. The standing crops are generally in fair condition: they are up to the average in Jullundur and below the average in Dera Ismail Khan. Irrigated crops are promising while those dependent on rain are mostly suffering from drought. The rapeseed crop is being damaged by caterpillars in two tahsils and by cold in one tahsil of the Ferozepore district. Cattle are generally in good condition. Fodder is scarce in Delhi, Shahpur and parts of Dera Ismail Khan, insufficient in Lahore, and ample elsewhere. Prices, specially of wheat, are rising in Jullundur, Amritsar, Rawalpindi and Peshawar and are unchanged elsewhere. Wheat is selling from $15\frac{1}{4}$ to 21, gram $21\frac{1}{8}$ to 24, barley 32, bulrush millet 20 to $24\frac{5}{8}$, maize 26 to 3?, great millet 25, and rice 13 to 14 seers per rupee.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 31st January.—The weather is clear and cold. The prospects of the winter crops are fair to good in all districts except in Saugor, Damoh and part of Chanda where they are poor to gloomy. Some damage through frost to standing crops, more especially to pulses, is reported from Saugor, Damoh and Bhandara, and through frost and want of moisture from Mandla. The reaping and threshing of the autumn crops have almost been completed and the pressing of sugar-cane continues. The reaping of the winter crops has begun in some districts but employment for agricultural labour is scarce in Saugor and Damoh. Fodder has become scarce in the Burgarh tahsil of Sambalpur. The cheapest prices are:—Wheat 20, gram 32, rice 26 and juar 38 seers per rupee. The dearest prices are wheat 12, gram 15, rice 11⅞, and juar 20 seers per rupee. Wheat continues to sell above the normal rate in the south, east and west of the provinces, and the price of gram is still low in the northern districts.

Burma.—For week ending 28th January.—In Lower Burma reaping still continues in a few districts. In Bassein the outturn is found to be slightly less than was anticipated. In Upper Burma sowing and transplanting of dry weather paddy and miscellaneous crops are progressing. Prospects continue favourable. The price of paddy has risen slightly in Rangoon, Thongwa, Henzada, Thaton, Tavoy, Minbu and Bhamo and has fallen in Mandalay and to a less extent in Pegu.

Assam.—For week ending 31st January.—Slight rain fell during the week in all districts except Goalpara and Kamrup. Harvesting of the late rice crop still continues in Kamrup and Nowgong. Gathering of pulses, pruning of tea, and pressing of sugarcane are in progress. The prospects of the sugar-cane, mustard and pulse crops are generally good. Fodder is scarce in Cachar and the Naga, Khasi and Jaintia Hills. Water is insufficient in the Khasi and Jaintia Hills. Prices—common rice, Silchar 14½ to 15, Sylhet, Dhubri and Gauhati 16, and Tezpur, Nowgong, Sibsagar and Dibrugarh, 13 seers per rupee.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 1st February.—MYSORE: Prospects are good. Ragi (Eleusine coracana) has been harvested in parts of Bangalore, Kolar, Mysore and Chittaldroog. Prices have fallen slightly in Bangalore, Mysore and Kadur and have risen in Shimoga.

COORG:—The threshing of rice continues whilst that of ragi (Eleusine coracana) has been completed. Coffee is still being gathered. Prices of food grains are stationary. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 1st February.—BERAR: The weather is cool. The winter crops are not in good condition. Land is being prepared for the ensuing monsoon crops in all districts except Amraoti. A scarcity of fodder and water prevails in parts of the province. Prices are stationary.

Hyderabad.—No rain fell during the week. Harvesting of the spring crops continues and weeding of the winter crop is in progress. Insects are damaging the castor-seed crop in parts of the Warangal and Nalgunda districts. Prices continue stationary. Prices—wheat 9, coarse rice 10½, and juari 21½ seers per current sicca rupee.

Central India.—For week ending 1st February.—No rain fell during the week. Agricultural operations have been completed in Bundelkhand and are in progress elsewhere. The condition of the standing crops and their probable outturn are good, though slight damage has been caused by frost in Gwalior, Bundelkhand and Malwa. Agricultural stock and pasturage are in good condition. Prices are normal everywhere. The condition of opium is good in Bhopal and fair in Malwa.

Rajputana.—For week ending 1st February.—No rain fell during the week. Irrigation of crops continues. Their condition is generally good but they have been slightly damaged by frost in Merwara, Jeypore and Ulwar and considerably in Kishengurh. Cattle are generally in good condition. The Government reserves have been opened to grazing in Ajmere-Merwara. Distress is spreading and increasing in Marwar. Takavi advances have been granted freely with beneficial results. In Ajmere distress is increasing in some villages of Gangwana. Fodder is scarce in parts of Sirohi, Marwar, Kherwara, Meywar, Haraoti, Ajmere, Jeypore and Bikaneer. Prices are rising in Jhallawar and Jeypore, falling in Sirohi and Meywar, and are steady elsewhere. Emigration from the distressed Ajmere villages and from Merwara continues: 113 persons emigrated during the week. The total emigration from Merwara up to date amounts to 3,956 persons. The numbers employed on relief works were—409 in Ajmere, 2,608 in Merwara and 1,c87 in Marwar. Prices—Ajmere 20, Beawar 22 and Marwar 14½ seers per rupee.

Kashmir.—For week ending 31st January.—The weather has been snowy and cloudy but is now fine. Prices continue below normal. The price of rice is 27 seers per rupee.

JAMMU PROVINCE:—For week ending 1st February.—Report not received.

Nepal.—For week ending 28th January.—Rainfall ·06. The weather is foggy and damp. The price of rice is 8⅛ seers per rupee.

NEW MEMBER.

The Hon'ble MAHARAJA RAMESHWARA SINGH BAHADUR of DARBHANGA took his seat as an Additional Member of Council.

QUESTION AND ANSWER.

The Hon'ble MR. ALLAN ARTHUR asked:—" Are the Government of India aware that the levying of double income-tax, i.e., Indian income-tax and English income-tax, on incomes derived from many Indian securities is considered a very great hardship by the holders of Indian securities in Great Britain; and in view of the fact that this double charge on incomes derived from India must to some extent militate against the investment of capital in India, thus inflicting an injury on the country at large, and with a view to encourage the flow of capital to India, a consideration which Lord George Hamilton has stated on several occasions in the House of Commons is of the utmost importance to this country, will the Government of India move the Secretary of State to endeavour to arrange with the Home Government that income-tax shall not be levied on incomes derived from India, upon which Indian income-tax has already been paid?"

The Hon'ble SIR JAMES WESTLAND replied:—" I have no doubt that people who receive in England an income earned under circumstances which bring it within the purview of the Indian Income-tax Act, feel it a hardship that they are also charged with income-tax under the English Act. But I doubt whether the diminution of about three rupees out of every hundred which is thereby effected upon the return on capital invested in India, has much or any effect in diminishing the flow of capital to India.

" I shall cause the Hon'ble Member's question to be communicated to the Secretary of State for India; but I would call his attention to the remarks made by the present Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the House of Commons on the 13th June last (Hansard, VII, 107), when an amendment was moved to the Finance Bill, raising this particular question."

GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the exemption from the operation of municipal laws of certain buildings and lands which are the property, or in the occupation, of Government and situate within the limits of a municipality be taken into consideration. He said:—" The object of this Bill is to exempt Government buildings which are situate within municipal limits from the control which the municipal authorities ordinarily exercise over building operations. The Select Committee have made no material alterations in the Bill as introduced, but we have in the first place by a slight amendment of wording made it clear that the exemption claimed by Government is only from building regulations, and that the Bill does not deal in any way with other municipal matters, for instance, with the question of the taxation of Government property in municipalities. We have also confined the operation of the Bill to buildings which are used or which may be required for the public service or for any public purpose, as there is no need for any interference with the ordinary municipal control in the case of private buildings which may happen to be erected on land belonging to Government. And while maintaining the provision about notice being given to the municipal authorities before any Government building is constructed or materially altered, in order to allow them an opportunity, under certain conditions, of inspecting the building and the plans connected with it, and of submitting any objections or suggestions, we have expressly excluded from the purview of such provision all buildings connected with Imperial defence, or any other Government building, the plan or construction of which ought, in the opinion of Government, to be treated as confidential or secret. Such exclusion is so obviously necessary that the matter requires no explanation or further comment on my part. There are no other points in the Bill which I need notice."

The Hon'ble SIR JAMES WESTLAND said:—" I confess to feeling some regret that the Select Committee have restricted the scope of the Bill in every way in which they practically could do so. There are some other matters which I think might reasonably have been included in this legislation but which partly were not within the intention of the Bill in its original shape and are certainly not within its intention now. The Hon'ble Member has referred, for example, to the question of taxation. The question of taxation, as Hon'ble Members are aware, is regulated by the Act of 1881, and the Hon'ble Member in the Home Department and the Select Committee have, reasonably enough, left that Act to regulate the question of taxation on Government buildings; but still I wish to point out that this question is regulated by some special legislation in England which does not apply to this country. For example, it is specifically laid down in the statute law in England that light-houses shall not be subject to municipal taxation. That is a provision which does not apply to this country, and unless we fall back upon the general principle—the extent of whose operation I am unable to define—the general principle that the Crown and that property of the Crown is not subject to legislation unless expressly included, the result is that a municipality can in this country, to an extent to which it cannot certainly at home, levy rates upon buildings which are in the occupation of Government. The Hon'ble Member has referred to certain considerations in connection with buildings for military and naval defence. I certainly would have liked to have seen some provision made with reference to them. I think it is manifestly unfair and unjust that when the Government, for military reasons, puts down a fort for the defence of a big city, the first operation should be that the municipality pounce upon that fort and require the Government to pay so much per mensem as municipal rates upon it. However, I am perfectly willing to leave the matter to the regulation of the Act of 1881, and I have not proposed, and certainly do not intend to propose, any amendment in the Bill which I perfectly accept."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ said:—"Before moving that the Bill be passed I have to move three small amendments which are all merely formal ones. The first of such amendments is that in the proviso to clause 3 of the Bill as amended, after the word 're-erection' the word 'construction' be inserted. The word 'construction' is used in the clause itself, and it is obviously required in the proviso and was omitted by mistake."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ moved that from sub-section (1) of clause 4 of the Bill as amended, the word "said" be omitted. He explained that the word had slipped in by some mistake and was obviously not wanted.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ moved that in sub-section (1) of clause 4 of the Bill as amended, after the words "construction or", in both places where they occur, the words "material structural" be inserted. He explained that these words had been inserted in the proviso to clause 3 and that they ought also to be in clause 4.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ moved that the Bill, as now amended, be passed.

The motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN CONTRACT ACT (1872) AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT (1872) AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to further amend the Indian Evidence Act, 1872.

PETROLEUM BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the importation, possession and transport of petroleum and other substances. He said that he proposed to allow a fortnight before moving that the Bill be passed.

INDIAN CONTRACT ACT (1872) AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS:—"It may be convenient to Hon'ble Members if I explain that I propose to take the Indian Contract Bill into consideration this day fortnight."

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 10th February, 1899.
